Taft-Dewey Convention Control Deal Is Hinted

Alleged Agreement Said to Be Aimed At Blocking of All 'Outsiders'

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Talk of a Taft-Dewey "no outsiders" deal in the making gained currency yesterday in quarters close to both candidates, but it was definitely still in the talk stages.

The proposed agreement, being discussed around the fringe of both camps, involved an advance understanding on control of the Republican convention.

The understanding, if it comes off, would be this:

1. In event of a ballot deadlock between Dewey and Taft the two would first try to agree on throwing their pooled strength behind one or the other as the nominee.

2. If the stalemate continued, and neither would step aside, they would next try to agree on a candidate mutually agreeable to both Dewey and Taft.

So far as could be learned, there have been no direct negotiations to this end between the principals themselves although Taft and Dewey have had one or two personal conversations of a general nature.

Most of the talk stemmed from intermediaries who declined to be quoted and denied any real understanding has been reached to date.

Broached in 1940

In one interested quarter it was recalled that a similar agreement was belatedly broached at the 1940 Republican convention, but negotiations started too late to stop the nomination of Wendell Willkie.

In Dewey's interest, Herbert Hoover is reported to have phoned John W. Bricker, in Taft's corner at the 1940 show, after the third ballot made it apparent that Dewey and Taft would fall separately if they did not work together. But Willkie was coming up fast and went over on the sixth before any Taft-Dewey agreement was reached.

Pin Hopes On Deadlock

Nearly all of the dark horse and outsider emdidacies have been based on the assumption that Dewey and Taft between them will go into the June convention with a majority of the votes, but would deadlock so hopelessly that neither could win.

Friends of Senator Taft and the New York Governor say that as practical politicians, neither should allow that to happen.

For weeks now, there has not been a suggestion of surface hosti-

Advice Offered Forrestal on Keeping Secrets

Leading press, radio and motion picture representatives offered yesterday to advise Secretary of Defense Forrestal on which kinds of military secrets should remain secret.

They proposed that a security advisory council be set up for this purpose, with members named by various publishing, broadcasting and movie organizations. But they told Forrestal they did not believe "any type of censorship in peacetime is workable or desirable in the public interest."

Forrestal, meeting with the group, said the declaration against censorship was in line with his own views. He said he would ask the various organizations to appoint representatives to meet with him frequently.

The defense head had asked the newspaper and other representatives at a meeting March 3 to advise him on preventing "information which might endanger the United States from being given to any potential enemy." A subcommittee headed by B. M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Star, prepared a resolution which was adopted unanimously today.

High Tribunal To Rule on Court Rights

Similiar Privileges As in States Sought For D. C. Residents

The Supreme Court yesterday agreed to hear the claim of District people to the same rights in Federal courts as citizens of the States.

The court probably will settle the point before the summer recess starts in June. The ruling will mean much to business houses and others here, who have interests all over the country.

But it might affect anybody from here who found himself in court somewhere else. For instance, a Washington driver might have an accident in Maryland or Virginia. Under the law being considered in this case, such a person would not have to sue in the Maryland or Virginia courts, where the law—or the juries—might lean toward the other party.

Law Held Unconstitutional

He could go into the Federal courts in those States, where all Americans stand on an equal footing. However, the law to this effect was declared unconstitutional by the Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., a few weeks ago.

The Supreme Court has been asked to set this ruling aside. The justices yesterday agreed to hear the case, indicating that at least four of them have doubts about the ruling being correct.

Situation Foreseen

The framers of the Constitution foresaw situations of this kind. They provided that the Federal courts might hear cases involving citizens of two or more States, instead of one or the other having to go to trial in a State where his adversary might have an edge. But when the Constitution was adopted there was no District of Columbia and there were no territories, so nothing was said about them.

The latest law on the subject opened the Federal courts to people from Hawaii, Alaska and the District on the same basis as to people from the States. Three

Tass Says Subs Off West Coast Are Not Russian

London, March 29 (AP).—The official Soviet news agency Tass denied tonight that unidentified submarines sighted off the coast of the United States were Russian.

Tass described reports the submarines were Russian as an "absurd and grossly slanderous invention, calculated to deceive American public opinion."

Tass noted that Navy Secretary John L. Sullivan told a Senate committee last Wednesday submarines had been sighted which did not belong "to any nation west of the 'Iron Curtain.'"

Doctor Draft Is Prepared For Congress

Top Age for 'Scarce' Manpower Expected To Be 45, With Some Fathers Included

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Doctors, dentists and possibly some other "scarce" occupational groups will face a special draft under military manpower legislation being readied for Congress at the Pentagon.

So great will be the need for doctors and dentists under the new preparedness program, officials said last night, that older men and those with dependents must be made subject to call. The upper age for the special "scarce" draft is expected to be 45, instead of 25 for others, and some fathers will be included.

The immediate needs of the Army and Navy Medical Departments, however, probably can be met largely out of some 8000 to 9000 civilian medicos in their 20s whose professional education was paid for in part by the Government and who have given no service in return, one high officer stated.

Baruch Urges Enactment

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill Bereenactment of selective service, uninard M. Baruch called for prompt versal military training and a standby law for total industrial and economic mobilization.

The financier and adviser to several Presidents told the Senate Armed Services Committee that America must abandon its "wait-and-see" habit and "make up its mind on where it stands" on world affairs.

We must mobilize now for peace, he said, or be forced to mobilize later for war.

Baruch's stand was backed by Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric. He urged adoption of the draft, industrial mobilization, stockpiling of strategic materials, scientific research and UMT in that order.

Author Is Attacked

The Senate committee also heard a series of other witnesses testify pro and con on the controversial universal training plan. Proceedings were enlivened by a spirited attack on the Army by Author Pearl Buck and a counter-attack on Mrs. Buck by another feminine witness.

The latter, Mrs. Leslie Wright of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, accused the author of telling a "lie."

Chairman Caan Gurney (R., S. D.) announced a full schedule of hearings on the preparedness program for the remainder of the week, and said they will end Saturday night. Henry Wallace, he revealed, will appear this afternoon.

Gurney said he expected to receive the Administration's draft-UMT bill Wednesday or Thursday. Top officials atthe Pentagon are meeting today to put the final touches on the legislation.

Army officials said that any doctors or dentists drafted under the new selective service legislation would be given commissions. Therefore, older men and those with dependents can be taken. In other categories only single men aged 19 through 25 will be taken.

First to be called under such a special draft would be medics who

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis, who yesterday spurned a subpena from a Federal board of inquiry, was ordered into court today to explain why he should not be forced to obey it.

Federal Judge Richmond B. Keech issued the order yesterday afternoon. It commands Lewis or his counsel to appear at 11 a. m. before Federal Judge Edward M. Curran and show cause why he should not tell the board of inquiry his side of the current soft coal controversy.

The court order was served on Lewis at his home in Alexandria at 9:05 p. m. by three United States marshals. Lewis accepted it without to-do. But inexplicably, he spent the afternoon ducking service of the document.

Lewis Defies Board

It was issued after the mine union leader twice in one morning thumbed his nose at President Truman's board of inquiry, set up to report on the issues of the coal strike.

First, in response to a request to appear before it, he wrote its chairman, Sherman Minton, himself a Federal Circuit Judge, of his "disinclination." Minton responded by issuing a subpna.

Next, Lewis kept waiting for almost an hour the United States marshals before he accepted it. It ordered him to appear before the board at 2 p. m. He failed to come.

Since there is no penalty attached to failure to heed a board subpena, Minton was obliged to turn to the Federal court for help. He drafted a petition for a show cause order, which was taken to Judge Keech by Assistant Attorney General H. Graham Morison.

Morison explained that of Judge Curran should hold that the subpena was wrong, "that ends the matter."

"However," Morison continued, "if the court holds that Lewis should appear before the fact-finding board, it will then order his appearance before that board."

If he refused, he would then be in contempt of court and could be fined up to $5000, or be sentenced to a year in jail, or both.

Minton's board of inquiry set 2 p. m. today as the time of its next session. It hoped that by then the court would have directed Lewis to appear before it and give the last element of testimony needed before the board winds up its initial investigation of the causes of the soft coal strike.

Then it can complete its report and pass it on to President Truman.

Chronology of Events

The chronology of the attempts to bring Lewis before the board, involving a combination tag and hide-and-seek game with Peck's Bad Boy, had this sequence:

Lewis was requested to appear on Friday, but did not come. Instead, he sent the board a telegram saying his office was looking into the legal questions involved and would have an answer by some time Monday.

Minton promptly wired him to make his decision known by 10 a. m. today.

Lewis beat the deadline by three

Iran Objects To Russian Propaganda

Tehran, Iran, March 29 (U.P.).—Iran needs foreign military advisers because Russian governments have threatened its national interests for a century, the government has told the Soviet Union in a defiant note, it was made known today.

The note protested vigorously against Russian propaganda and warned that Russia's present attitude "can only lead to strained relations."

It was pointed out also that Russia's propaganda is in violation of a United Nations resolution of June 26, 1945.

Iran's note was one of a series of exchanges with Russia during the last two months because of Russian objections to the presence of United States Army advisers in this country.

The note, handed to the Russian Embassy here a week ago today, apparently crossed in transmission one from Russia which was made public yesterday. The Russian note continued its complaints against U. S. activities in Iran.

Iran's note said:

1. Iran in accepting a loan from the United States is no more surrendering its independence than has Russia "which has also received several foreign loans and has not given up its independence.

2. Despite Iran's assurances that it is conducting a purely independent foreign policy, Russia pursues the same unfriendly and baseless policy toward Iran.

3. Iran's engagement of foreign military advisers does not constitute a deviation from independent foreign policy.

The note denied allegations that Americans entered Iran in hope of getting oil concessions.

"As the Soviet authorities know well," the note said, "the Iranian government is precluded from granting Iran's northern oil to any foreign government."

Printers Drop 'No Contract' Strike Policy

ITU Agrees Upon Negotiations With 19 Newspapers

Hammond, Ind., March 29 (U.P.).—The AFL International Typographical Union agreed today to abandon its "no contract" policy and to enter into negotiations in an attempt to end all its present strikes against newspapers.

The agreement was announced in a joint statement by attorneys for the union and the National Labor Relations Board after Federal Judge Luther Swygert had denied the union a stay of execution on a temporary injunction enjoining the union from sanctioning strikes in violation of the Taft-Hartley law.

The union's "no contract" policy was formulated at its annual convention at Cleveland last August in an attempt to circumvent the closed shop ban of the Taft-Hartley law.

The agreement did not mean an immediate end to ITU strikes against 18 newspapers in 9 cities. The strikes will continue while negotiations are conducted on wages and working conditions.

Swygert's injunction, issued Saturday, contained to a paragraph which indicated that the ITU no longer could continue to furnish strike pay to striking locals. Under today's agreement, the international may continue to finance strikes provided the locals involved "immediately take steps to reenter negotiations with publishers in good faith."

The announcement said an outline of a contract between the union and publishers, which would be acceptable to the NLRB, was drawn up at today's conference.

The conferees included Wood-

'Ike' Unchanged On Presidency, Friend Declares

Maj. Gen. Floyd Parks, Army information chief, said last night Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower "has not changed his stand one iota" about not running for President.

Parks, a close friend who talks with Eisenhower "several times a week," said in answer to questions that the former chief of staff "stands four square behind" the statement he issued last January saying he would not accept a nomination for high political office.

"I am sure that General Eisenhower's statement applied equally to the Democratic and Republican parties, and to all political parties," Parks said.

"There has been nothing to indicate that he has changed his mind. I feel certain that he will not change his mind in the future."

National headquarters of a Veterans-for-Eisenhower organization were opened here yesterday.

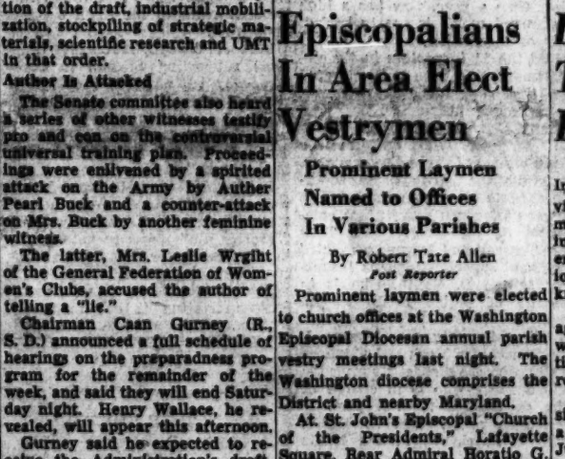
Kissing Wife While Driving In Traffic Held Dangerous



MR. AND MRS. BRADLEY COLLETT
Still Bussing, Police or No Police

Kssing your wife, Judge George D. Neilson allows, is a fine thing, but you shouldn't let it interfere with your driving.

He made that observation in Traffic Court yesterday when he found a 21-year-old gas meter reader guilty of failing to give full time and attention to his driving Thursday night.

The gas man, Bradley C. Collett, 3034 19th st. ne., was bussing his bride of seven months, Verona, 17, while driving on Reservoir rd., police said. As a consequence his car wasn't keeping on the straight and narrow.

The way Police Pvt. L. L. Turner told it, he was in his scout car and noticed a car swerve, jerk back to the right side of the road and then suddenly swerve again. Turner said he saw two heads meet and some arm intertwine each time the car swerved.

But the Colletts denied kissing at all.

Verona's version was that she

Supreme Court Strikes Down N. Y. Law Against Crime Books

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

The Supreme Court voted 6 to 3 yesterday to strike down the New York law against books and papers that are mostly about crime.

Laws of the same kind in at least 10 other States, and maybe 23, probably fell with the ruling. However, the court left the way open for all these laws to be drafted more tightly and passed again.

Justice Reed said for the majority that the New York law was too vague, even after the State Court of Appeals explained it. Under the law, Reed said, a man might publish something he thought could do no harm, and then go to jail because a judge and jury didn't agree with him.

Although the majority could see no possible good in the "detective case" magazines that were before them, Reed said, "They are as much entitled to the protection of free speech as the best of literature."

The Justice said, too:

"The present case as to a vague statute abridging free speech involves the circulation of only vulgar magazines. The next may call for decision as to free expression of political views in the light of a statute intended to punish subversive activities.'

Joining in the majority view were Justices Black, Douglas, Murphy and Rutledge, and Chief Justice Vinson.

Justice Frankfurter dissented, joined by Justices Jackson and Burton, in a 21-page statement. He deplored the far-reaching results of the ruling, twitted his colleagues about the time the court

Step Toward Partition

U. N. Palestine Unit to Rush Provisional Jewish Rule

Lake Success, March 29 (AP).—The United Nations Palestine Commission decided tonight to proceed as rapidly as possible to create a provisional Jewish government in Palestine.

The decision was announced in a letter to Moshe Shertok, head of the political department of the Jewish Agency. A high U. N. official said the agreement was unanimous.

The five-member commission informed Shertok that it was obligated by the General Assembly's resolution of last November 29 to take all possible steps to implement the partition of Palestine. It said it intended to do so unless it received orders to the contrary from the Security Council.

The commission cautioned the Jewish Agency, however, that because of Britain's refusal to turn over authority in Palestine before May 15 the provisional government could exercise no authority before that date.

The decision came a few hours after a spokesman for the United States delegation disclosed that Chief Delegate Warren R. Austin would go before the Security Council on direct White House orders to appeal for a truce in Palestine.

An American spokesman said tonight Austin would offer a formal cease-fire resolution. He also was expected to ask the Council to order a special session of the United Nations Assembly to consider the Holy Land problem.

The American delegation still had no instructions to press immediately for U. N. acceptance of an interim trusteeship over Palestine.

There was little optimism that President Truman's truce proposal would succeed.

10 Police Department Promotions Given to Comparatively Young Men

Like their chief, the 10 men involved in inspectorship and captaincy promotions yesterday in the police department are young men.

"These are all up and coming young policemen," said Maj. Robert J. Barrett, their chief, in announcing the promotions. "I expect them all to do an excellent job."

The average age of the 10 men promoted is 45.5 years which appropriately enough is just about the age of Barrett. The ages range from 42 to 51.

Inspector Floy A. Truscott, who becomes executive office and ranking assistant superintendent, is 48. A native of Hilltop, Kans., Truscott, saw service in both wars and was appointed a policeman May 27, 1925. During World War II he served more than four years with Navy intelligence.

ROBERT C. PEARCE
Chief Clerk

Truscott was made a detective sergeant in 1931, a lieutenant in 1935 and a captainin1939. Following his return from military service, he was made an inspector and assistant superintendent in charge of the detective bureau in June, 1947. Truscott has received numerous citations, particularly for his work in the solution of homicides.

One of the most spectacular advancements on the promotion list was that of Robert S. Bryant, only 45, who was upped from an acting captaincy to an inspectorship and named assistant superintendent in charge of the detective bureau.

Bryant was appointed July 16, 1924, became a detective sergeant February 1, 1935, a lieutenant February 15, 1943, and an acting captain July 1, 1946. At one time or another, Bryant had headed practically every squad in the detective bureau. In 1931 he was awarded the department's gold medal for heroism when he shot it out with three holdup men in a running gun battle.

Another promoted to inspector is Robert C. Pearce, 47, who was appointed November 17, 1923. was made a sergeant October 1, 1930, a lieutenant September 1, 1935, and a captain October 1, 1941.

Except for an 11month period at the Sixth Precinct, Pearce has commanded the First Precinct continuously since 1941. A Navy veteran of World War I, he orginally came to Washington to study medicine at Georgetown University. When his funds ran out, he applied for appointment as a policeman. His citations include one for solving a murder. He helped raise more than $20,000 in the last Police Boys' Club fund drive.

Another new inspector is John A. Jefferies, 51, who has been a policeman since December 20, 1922. Jefferies, a nephew of former Gov. R. M. Jefferies of South Carolina, won his promotion despite the fact that he lacked seniority over five other police captains.

"I recommended him," said Barrett, "because he is a good policeman."

Jefferies was made a sergeant January 1, 1929, a lieutenant February 16, 1933, and a captain November 1, 1942.

Robert V. Murray, 43, who becomes an acting captain and second in command of the detective bureau, directed the investigation which resulted in the capture of the killers of John Paul Knight in 1946. Appointed September 3, 1930, he was made a detective sergeant October 1, 1938, and a lieutenant May 1, 1945.

The 44-year-old Anthony Richitt, who becomes a captain, is a former Marine and in his early police days was such an adept pilot of his police motorcyle that he was appointed to stage stunt shows for the benefit of the police retirement fund. He was appointed November 25, 1925, advanced to sergeant October 1, 1940, and to lieutenant August 1, 1945.

Another new captain is Thomas E. Edwards, 42, whose father, Inspector L. I. H. Edwards, retired in 1941. Appointed September 10, 1930, Edwards was made sergeant August 1, 1936, and lieutenant April 1, 1941.

The permanent rank of captain was also bestowed on John J. Agnew, 47, who commands the department's new central complaint bureau. Agnew served two years as a Marine before his appointment as a policeman in December, 1924. A lieutenant since February, 1940, he was for 21 months a member of the District Boxing Commission.

The other new captains, both named on a temporary basis, are Charles J. Sullivan, 45, and Howard Covell, 43. Sullivan was appointed January 13, 1931, became a sergeant May 1, 1937, and a lieutenant August 1, 1946. He spent four years in the Coast Guard during World War II, attaining the rank of lieutenant commander.

Covell was appointed to the force on the same day as Sullivan. He was made a sergeant June 1, 1940, and was promoted to lieutenant August 1, 1945.

Sergt. Arthur E. Fredette, from the Second Precinct to administrative headquarters.

Corpl. Cyrus F. Thompson, from the Twelfth Precinct to administrative headquarters.

Corpl. Percy A. Deanell, from the Tenth Precinct to communications.

Corpl. Adelbert A. Schmidt, from the Tenth Precinct to the AIU.

Nearly Half His Selection

As a result of the new promotions, Major Barrett, although he has headed the department for less than a year, now has a high command which is nearly half of his own selection.

Of the 11 inspectors in the department, five have been elevated to that rank since Barrett was named superintendent. They are Truscott, Bryant, Jefferies, Pearce and Inspector Walter Storm who is in charge of the police academy.

Two of the three assistant superintendents have been promoted to these posts since Barrett took command of the department. They are Truscott and Bryant. The third assistant superintendent is Inspector Milton D. Smith, who is in charge of police uniforms and equipment.

Other inspectors are Oscar J. Letterman, Ira Keck and Clarence Tally, who are district supervisors; Lloyd Kelly who is in charge of the department from 4 p.m. to midnight, and Arthur E. Miller, who is in charge of the traffic division.

and her husband had been fishing at Chain Bridge with good luck and were returning with 15 fish. It was cold, she said, and she moved over toward her husband and he tucked a blanket around her.

That was all there was to it, she said.

"Well, I believe you kissed," said Judge Neilson kindly. "I realize that when spring is in the air, a young man's fancy turns to love. But despite such things you must realize it's dangerous to let your attention stray from your driving."

And with that, Judge Neilson let the couple go.

Gov. Control Deal Hinted

lity betwen Dewey and Taft. Rumors that Taft might team up with Harold E. Stassen to "stop Dewey" died out completely after Minnesota's former governor decided to run against Taft in his own Ohio primary.

Antagonism Denied

Recently, highly placed friends of Taft have been at some pains to stress that there is not now, and never has been, any "personal antagonism" between Taft and Dewey—that the two not ony "get along" personally but could work together.

Just who would be reckoned an "outsider" if the Taft-Dewey deal crystallizes is a matter of extreme speculation but General Eisenhower would probably be at the top of the "unacceptable" list. Nor is it likely, if their own prospects fade, that Taft and Dewey ever would jointly back Stassen.

There certainly would be some differences between them on Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, and many another compromise possibility.

Rise of Gen. Douglas MacArthur to a threatening position in the April 6 Wisconsin primary campaign meanwhile ran into this stepped-up Dewey and Stassen activity:

Governor Dewey, in Albany, announced he will make four speeches during his two-day invasion of Wisconsin. He will speak at Racine and Milwaukee on Thursday and Eau Claire and Appleton on Friday. The Milwaukee speech Thursday night will be broadcast (9 to 9:30 p. m.) coast to coast over an NBC network. Dewey will return to New York Sunday and then make a swing into Nebraska before the April 13 GOP "popularity" run-off in that State.

Stassen Starts Tour

Starting yesterday at Janesville, Wis., Stassen arranged to hit more than a dozen cities and towns in Wisconsin before the April 6 primary vote.

Senator Joseph McCarthy (R., Wis.) supporting Stassen in the three-way primary race, charged Dewey's hurried trip is due to "frantic reports sent to Albany by his New York lieutneants in Wisconsin that Dewey is running third in the State."

Independent reports from Milwaukee and Madison, Wis., generally concede MacArthur a "favorite son" majority vote lead in the tussle for the State's 27 convention delegates.

That would leave Dewey and Stassen fighting it out for the State's second choice position.

Court Rights Case Accepted

Federal District courts have upheld this law.

But eight others, and three Circuit Courts of Appeal have found it void, saying that the District and the territories are not "States" and so their residents cannot be heard by Federal courts.

The most recent of these rulings was in Richmond, Va., in which the National Mutual Insurance Co. of Washington, lost a $10,000 suit to the Tidewater Transfer Co. of Virginia. Two judges said the insurance company could not be heard in a Federal Court, because the District was not a State. Senior Judge John J. Parker dissented, saying that Congress could set up special courts all over the country, to hear such cases. If Congress could do that, he argued, then Congress was within its rights when it provided that such cases might be heard by the regular Federal Courts.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman las week told the Supreme Court that Judge Parker was right, and urged the justices to settle the law accordingly.

The case probably will be argued in about a month.

Tommy Touhy Still On Parole in Arizona

By The Associated Press

The United States Parole Board said yesterday that Tommy Touhy, 55, of Chicago is still on conditional parole in Arizona. He was released a year go from prison where he was serving 25 years for robbery.

Board records list him as an invalid. He is said to spend much of his time in a wheel chair.

Touhy was convicted 12 years ago of a $78,000 railroad depot holdup in Minneapolis.

First House Tests Weathered By ERP

Recovery Measure Unscathed Despite Bitter Oratory, Amendment Struggle

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The huge foreign aid program came through its first House tests without a scratch yesterday, in spite of hours of bitter oratory from its opponents.

A major test came on an amendment by Representative Ralph Gwinn (R., N. Y.) virtually scrapping the European recovery program and setting up a 500-million-dollar relief corporation instead.

The amendment had the strong backing of business groups, and brought out opponents of ERP in almost full force. A similar proposal by Senator Homer Capehart (R., Ind.) had been rejected by the Senate two weeks ago.

Vote is 103 to 60

The House vote against it was 103 to 60, a proportion that will be exceeded overwhelmingly when the bill comes up for its final vote tonight or Wednesday. Floor managers of the $6,025,000,000 measure still feel confident that les than 100 votes will be cast against it and more than 300 for it in the end.

While the House was brushing this and other amendments aside yesterday, the Senate approved by a voice vote a 55 million dollar appropriation for additional relief for Austria, Italy and France. This amount was requested to prevent a break in the supply lines bringing food and fuel to the three countries.

Other Changes Rejected

Apart from the Gwinn amendment, the House rejected three minor changes in the bill, as follows:

1. A proposal by Representative Hale Boggs (D., La.) to require "political cooperation" as well as economic cooperation by the recipient nations, and to mention European political "unity" as one of the objectives of the bill. This was beaten by 58 to 24 after Representative John M. Vorys (R., Ohio) had warned that to put it into the bill might be "political dynamite."

2. A proposal by Representative Charles R. Fersten (R., Mo.) to put the "life, liberty and pursuit of happiness" language of the Declaration of Independence into the preamble to the bill. This was beaten 50 to 18.

3. Another by Kersten calling for the free passage and movement of persons from one participating country to another. This was turned down 33 to 10, after a protest from Corys that it had been offered at the last minute without giving the Foreign Affairs Committee a chance to consider it.

Would Have Included Spain

Still another amendment, proposed by Representative Alvin O'Konski (R., Wisc.) and loudly applauded on the Republican side, would have included Spain among the countries in the European recovery program. O'Konski argued that the Spain had a free government, elected by the people last summer; that it was "the only country in Europe that has shown any success in stopping Communism"; and that in case of war with Russia it would be the only country able to offer effective resistence. A vote on his amendment was deferred until today.

Earlier, the House Foreign Affairs Committee had held firm in executive session against two strongly backed changes—one to knock out the provision for the chartering of 200 merchant ships to Europe; the other, to add 220 million dollars for relief in Germany, Japan and Korea.

Mundt Proposed Approved

The committee approved only one amendment, a proposal by Representative Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.) giving the Administrator virtual veto power over export licenses to Russia and her satellites. The Mundt amendment provides that if the Administrator thinks it is against the national interest to export particular goods, the heads of the executive departments will be bound by his decision.

Anger blazed up again on the House floor over the reported exports of war materials to Russia, with Representatives Howard H. Buffett (R., Nebr.) and Ross Rizley (R., Okla.) leading the attack. Representatives Vorys, who is piloting the present bill through the House, thought it should be unnecessary for Congress to have to "protect the United States against treasonable actions of this kind in the Government offices," and said he was "amazed that this situation had developed."

Four-Year Commitment?

Another question that produced fireworks was whether Congress was assuming a four-year moral commitment in approving the European Recovery Program. Representative John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), thought it was only "frank and honest" to recognize the four-year commitment; in fact, he said in an impassioned speech, if western Europe cooperates and carries out its pledges, and if the United States then fails to go through with its help for four years, the Europeans "will be justified in saying that the United States broke its promises."

The Senate bill authorizes the program until June 30, 1952, with yearly appropriations; the House bill also mentions the 1952 date, but calls for annual authorizations as well as appropriations by Congress. Representative Mundt, a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, announced that if he were one of the conferees to settle the difference with the Senate h would "hold out to the bitter end for the one-year basis."

Source of Most Heat

What generated the most heat on the House floor yesterday was the charge by Representatives Eugene Cox (D., Ga.), John McDowell (R., Pa.) and others that officials of doubtful loyalty had helped to formulate the Marshall Plan. Cox scattered names of officials into his speech on the subject; Representative Graham A. Barden (D., N. C.) declared that "as far as I'm concerned there will be no pinko handling my money in this program."

Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.), of the Appropriations Committee, entering the debate for the first time, said that "under decisions of the Supreme Court it is absolutely impossible for us to prevent the employment of any person through appropriation bills."

"We can only do this," he aded, "—withhold funds from the State Department or any other agencies that keep someone in employment when he should not be employed. It is an indictment of this program that they have built it up with such people."

Tries to Still Uproar

Former Speaker Sam Rayburn tried to still the uproar by saying that "there is more tinder in the world" today than in 1938 or 1939.

"I realize that in passing legislation like this there is a risk, a great risk," he said. "But I think the President of the United States will name a good administrator of this law, and I think that out of the 140 million people of the United Sates he can find a few hundred good people, hones people, to administer it."

'No Contract' Policy Ended

ruff Randolph, ITU president, Gerhard Van Arkel and Henry Kaiser, ITU attorneys; and David R. Findling, counsel for the National Labor Relations Board.

Hope For Agreement

Van Arkel said he and Kaiser would return to their Washington offices tonight and that he hoped to "have something definite" tomorrow in the form of an agreement which could be negotiated on.

He said he would not know whether the union would continue with plans to abandon an appeal of the injunction.

Van Arkel said any publisher who has accepted the union's "conditions of employment," replacing formal contracts, would be asked to enter into definite term contracts for at least one year.

Negotiations Resumed By New York Printers

New York, March 29 (AP).—Negotiations for a new contract covering 2500 printers employed by 14 daily newspapers here were adjourned late today, with no comment fro meither the union or employers.

The discussions were scheduled to resume tomorrow afternoon.

With the present contract scheduled to expire at midnight Wednesday, both union and employer spokesmen have expressed hope an agreement could be reached before that time.

Laurence H. Victory, president of Local 6 of the AFL International Typographical Union, said earlier an effort would be made to arrive at a settlement at today's meeting—by keeping the session going all night, if necessary. However, the meeting adjourned about 5 p. m. (EST).

Meanwhile, some 3000 printers in New York job shops remained idle in protest against special work rules posted by employers. The stoppage began two weeks ago.

Gentile Insists Thieves Got $700 Not $20,000

A College Park, Md., bowling alley operator yesterday agreed publicly with police that his home had been robbed, but not of the $20,000 officially reported.

Charles A. Gentile, 7306 Hopkins ave., College Park, insisted to newspaper reporters that cash taken totaled about $700. Both Prince Georges County police and Gentile agreed that valuables also taken included a $20 diamond ring and a woman's lapel watch valued at $50.

Gentile told police he found the money gone from a tin cash box he kept under his bed when he returned home at 1 a. m. Sunday from his bowling alley. A glass in the rear door had been broken, police said.

minutes. His letter to Minton yesterday accused the other two members of the board, Louisville publisher Mark Ethridge and University of Pennsylvania professor George W. Taylor, of being "biased and prejudiced."

Besides, he said in effect, neither he nor his union had done anything falling within the scope of the Taft-Hartley Act, under which the board was acting. Lawyers' and courts' attempts to apply the law, he seemed to be saying, "will consume tedious time."

Subpena Promptly Issued

Minton at once issued a subpena for Lewis to appear at a board session set for 2 p. m. yesterday. But thereupon it was Lewis, not lawyers and courts, who consumed tedious time.

United States Marshall carried the subpena to the headquarters of the United Mine Workers but found that the elevator operator there would not let them off at the sixth floor, the location of Lewis' office.

They climbed up and down stairs, only to find the door to his office suite locked.

Lewis Avoids Marshals

Two o'clock came and the board of inquiry convened. It began to hear another witness, but there was no sign of Lewis. After half an hour had passed, Minton signed a petition which Assistant Attorney General Morison took to court.

Judge Keech issued his show cause order about 4 p. m. A brace of marshals took it to UMW headquarters and were shown an empty room. Thereupon they drove around the corner to the Carlton Hotel, favorite haunt of the union boss.

The marshals told reporters that they got no farther than the hotel manager.

They quoted the manager as saying he had not seen Lewis all day and that he was not in the hotel. The marshals left. Half an hour later Lewis strolled out of the hotel and stepped into a taxi. It was last seen crossing the Highway Bridge to Virginia.

Marshals Try Again

The marshals returned to their office and girded themselves for another attempt. They were joined by a colleague from Richmond, J. A. Braithwaite, whose presence was felt necessary in case there was a jurisdictional dispute when the document was served in Virginia.

It was he who served the order, in the vestibule of Lewis' house.

Yesterday afternoon's session of the board of inquiry, without Lewis, were anticlimatic. The principal witness was Thomas E. Murray, formerly the third, neutral trustee of the miners welfare and retirement fund. The trustees' inability to agree on a pension fund for the miners is the root of their current strike, now two weeks old.

Murray told a story of obduracy on the part of the two other trustees, Lewis and Ezra Van Horn, representing the operators. From the picture he painted, it was hard to tell which had been more stubborn. Murray's account:

Lewis proposed that all members of the union, over 60 and with 20 years' service in the mines, be eligible for a pension of $100 a month. Actuaries, hired by the trustees, returned a report which Murray felt proved Lewis' plan unsound.

Van Horn proposed no pension plan.

Murray Outlines Plan

Murray proposed a plan under which 20 million dollars of the estimated 50 million dollar annual fund be set aside for pensions—the rest to go for death and disability benefits. Miners over 60 who were still at work or who had retired after July 1, 1947, would have first preference for the $100 monthly pension. If there was any money left over, miners who had previously retired would then be able to participate.

Murray said he was convinced the plan was actuarily sound and met the requirements of the union-employer contract. Lewis and Van Horn both objected to the plan.

Despairing of getting any agreement between them, Murray resigned as trustee. The deadlock led to the strike.

Einstein Says Wallace Can Save the U. S.

Scientist Albert Einstein said yesterday that Henry A. Wallace can save the United States "from the threatening domestic and international situation."

In a statement released here by the national Wallace for President Committee, he compared the third party presidential candidate with the late President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie.

"Only men who are above the petty bickering of the day and without any selfish interest can save us from the threatening domestic and international situation," he said.

Picket Lines Patrol N. Y. Exchanges

New York, March 29 (AP). — A strike of union employes of the New York Stock and Curb Exchanges today brought picket lines to Wall st., heart of world finance, but markets maintained their operations.

With members of the United Financial Employes (AFL) out, the stock exchange volume was 760,000 shares. It was the smallest full session since March 15.

Most of the employes on strike were page boys, runners, clerks, telephone operators and pneumatic tube operators.

Bankers at Telephones

Bankers who have not appeared on the floor of the exchange for years were handling telephone orders.

Brokers who ordinarily have no other duties than filling customers' orders were running slips to the quotation room, answering telephones, operating pneumatic tubes.

Women and girls appeared on the floor of the exchanges as pages and messengers for the first time since the war.

It was impossible to determine the exact effect of the strike on the volume, which can vary widely on successive days. Brokers termed the trading "more or less normal."

Excepting Saturday, the last five successive trading days had recorded volumes of better than a million shares. During the first quarter of 1948, however, less than a million share days have been common.

Quotation Service Stops

The internal quotation services, through which prices are posted on the big board in the exchange, were not operated and members obtained quotations from the floor.

Outgoing quotation ticker services, which carry the quotations from the exchange to members' offices and news services, went along without a hitch, however.

Emil Schram, president of the stock exchange, said "the strike will have no serious effect whatever on the exchange."

Schram said the main issue of the strike is union security.

"We have never discharged an employe for joining a union," Schram told newsmen, "and we will never discharge one for not joining a union."

In Supreme Court

Taft Labor Politics Ban Debate Set

The Taft-Hartley ban on labor political action will be debated in the Supreme Court on Monday, April 26.

The hearing was set yesterday, after both the Justice Department and the CIO asked for a speedy ruling. The court also agreed to hear AFL attacks on two State laws to outlaw closed shops.

The Taft-Hartley Act last year made it a crime for a lobar organization to spend any money in connection with a Federal election, or with a caucus, convention or primary to pick candidates for a Federal election.

A few weeks after the law was passed, Philip Murray, the CIO president, wrote an editorial urging Maryland voters to send Judge Ed Garmatz to Congress. The CIO published the editorial in The CIO News and sent 100 copies into Maryland where they were used by the CIO Political Action Committee.

Garmatz won, and after several months Murray and the CIO were indicted. Both faced fines, and Murray was liable to a year in jail, until two weeks ago Federal Judge Ben Moore, sitting in the District Court here, threw out the charges, Judge Moore said this part of the Taft-Hartley Act was against the Constitution, being an unlawful abridgment of freedom of speech, press and assembly. It was the first time any court had struck down any part of the act.

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman at once appealed to the Supreme Court. The hearing late in April makes it almost sure that there will be a ruling in time for the National campaigns this summer and fall.

There are now about 20 States that have laws against the closed shop—that is, contracts saying employers who sign them will hire only members of the unions in their plants. Arizona put a closed shop ban into its constitution in 1946, and North Carolina passed a law against the shops last year. Both were upheld by the State courts, when the AFL attacked them there.

The Supreme Court yesterday agreed to hear the AFL arguments that the State laws violate civil rights, such as freedom of contract. The Constitution does not allow States to impair the obligation of contracts, although Congress—which banned closed shops in the Taft-Hartley Act—was left free to do so.

Text of Letter From Lewis

Following is the text of John L. Lewis' letter refusing to attend sessions of the Special Coal Inquiry Board:

Hon. Sherman Minton
Room 3422, Department of Labor,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:

My disinclination to attend falls substantially into two categories:

1. The law:

No action has been taken by this writer or the Unted Mine Workers of America, as such, which would fall within the purview of the oppressive statute under which you seek to function. Without indulging in analysis, it is a logical assumption that the cavilings of the bar and bench in their attempts to explicate this infarmous enactment will consume a tedious time:

2. Prejudice:

Two members of your board are biased and prejudiced and in honor should not serve. They are Ethridge and Taylor. Since the inception of this imbroglio, Ethridge has published biased and prejudicial editorials and special articles deleterious to this union and this writer in a newspaper controlled by him.

Taylor for years has been an administrative hanger-on in Washington, and he has never lost an opportunity to harass and persecute this union and this writer. He is inherently incapable of determining the distinction between a fact and a scruple.

In attendance is Ching, a truly remarkable man, who sees through eyes of United States Rubber.

Yours truly, (signed)

were deferred from actual service during the war while in medical and dental school. They include men who were in the Army Special Training Program and Navy V-12 program, and who had their professional education at least partiily subsidized by the Government, but who never repaid this aid by any actual service as Army and Navy doctors or dentists.

The Army says that there are some 4500 ex-ASTP civilian doctors and perhaps 2600 ex-ASTP civilian dentists in this group. The Navy declared that about 850 v-12 doctors and probably several hundred dentists are in somewhat the same category. All but 150 of the former-V-12 doctors are reservists. Therefore, the Navy wants authority in the bill to call in reserve doctors and keep reserve doctors and dentists now in service beyond their normal tours.

Take Different View

Army medical chiefs take a different view. They want to release all the 1600 former ASTP doctors who complete 18 months Army service this June and replace them with physicians called by the proposed special draft.

Baruch urged the Senate committee to "act how" on the defense program to let "the other free peoples on earth know where to rally." He presented a six-point program, as follows:

1. Prompt passage of UMT.
2. Compulsory rehabilitation of all youths with physical or mental defects.
3. Extension of the period of training under UMT from six months to a year.
(4) Immediat eenactment og a stopgap draft.
(5) Adoption now of a total plan for industrial mobilization to give us a "solidly grounded" basis of total preparedness. This program then could be swiftly put into operation by action of the President and Congress if war comes.
(6) Establishment of a "watchdog" to observe the effect of the "partial mobilization" now proposed on our economy to assure that our "growing commitments" are balanced against our resources.

Agrees With Byrd

The silver-haired financier agreed with Senator Harry Byrd (D., Va.) that the American people "don't know what our foreign policy is," but declined to be drawn into a criticism of it "at this time or place."

Essentials of the stand-by industrial mobilization law, Baruch said, include: priorities, allocations, and rationing power; taxes to take the profits out of war; a work-or-fight wartime draft; a ceiling over all prices, wages and rents; stockpiling of scarce matrials, and decentralization of industry.

He said the proposed preparedness program of three to four billion dollars more than the 11 billions already budgeted for defense is "pretty nearly the limit" of what the country could stand without controls. No slack exists today in materials, factories, food, labor or prices, said Baruch. He added: "Were war to burst upon us in the near future the civilian economy would have to be drastically curtailed immediately."

Must Be Fully Staffed

Wilson, vice chairman of the old War Production Board, told the committee that "nothing short of an Army. Navy and Air Force fully staffed with thoroughly trained personnel could be adequate at this stage of world events."

After this is assured by selective service, he said, a program of industrial mobilization, stockpiling and research must be provided. After that should come UMT, declared the General Electric head.

In a prepared statement, Pearl Buck attacked "military officers" as not being men of the "highest caliber as human beings." Men like Eisenhower and Marshall "are noble exceptions," she added.

Terming UMT a "military antique," Mrs. Buck said that youths in camps "will be exposed to the worst type of woman." It "will be taken for granted that he will need prophylaxis against venereal disease," she said.

"Surrounded by this atmosphere he will learn to look lightly on the very forces in society which build the home, the church, the school, the decent comunity," the author added.

Boys Not Corrupted, She Says

Taking the stand to support UMT, Mrs. Wright said she represented the General Federation of Women's Clubs which has a membership of three million.

"I had three boys in the Army," she declared heatedly. "I don't think my boys were corrupted. They came back as fine as when they went into the Army. We want peace. We want liberty. I think every GI should send a letter to Mrs. Buck and tell her what she said is a lie."

Mrs. Buck gave no indication she had heard Mrs. Wright's words.

The committee also heard Mrs. Alexander Stewart of the Women's Committee to Oppose Conscription, attack the draft and UMT proposals. Charging that the Administration is using a "crisis psychology" to put over such plans, she urged that instead President Truman call a disarmament conference.

Miss Elizabeth A. Smart of the Women's Christmas Temperance Union declared her organization was against "any conscription in peacetime." Edesse Dahlgren, representing the American Women's Association, said her group overwhelmingly favored UMT as good for the youths of the country and necessary for preparedness.

House Committee Requests Guard for Consul to Canada

By The Associated Press

The House Un-American Activities Committee yesterday requested special protection for John Bankhead, United States Consul at Windsor, Canada, because of three recent attemps on his life

Bankhead

The request was made of the Justice Department by Representative McDowell (R., Pa.), chairman of a subcommittee investigating illegal entry of Communists and undesirable aliens from Canada.

He said all three attempts followed Bankhead's secret testimony before the subcommittee.

The State Department said Bankhead is a nephew of both former Senator Bankhead and House Speaker William B. Bankhead. He is a cousin of Tallulah Banakhead, stage and screen actress.

Winsor, Ontario, March 29 (U.P.).—Authorities today blamed a vigorous crackdown on Communist border traffic by United States Consul John Bankhead for a third attempt on his life last night.

An assailant leaped from behind bushes and fired two shots at Bankhead as he drove up to his suburan residence. The bullets lodged harmlessly in his car.

Royal Canadian mounted police said poisoned candy and liquor were sent to his home and, sand put in his gas tank.

Indian Maharajah Pays 2 Million for Diamond

Bombay, India, March 29 (U.P.).—The Bombay Sentinel said today an unidentified Indian maharajah has paid two million dollars for a 107-carat diamond imported from the United States.

The Sentinel said the stone rivaled the world famous Kohinoor diamond, which weighed 186 carats when it was acquired by the Persian conqueror Nadir Sheh. The stone was recut and now weighs 101 carats.

The famous Hope diamond weighed 44 carats. Its original purchase price was reported as $100,000.

New Report To Hail China As Partner

By the United Press

Chairman Arthur H. Vandenberg will file in the Senate today a revised Foreign Relations Committee report on China. It will hail the Chiang Kai-shek nationalist government as a partner with the United States in "the common front against Communist aggression."

The document will replace a report highly critical of the Chiang regime and which was withdrawn by Vandenberg Saturday with "regrets."

The Michigan Republican plans to make the revised report public shortly before he asks quick approval of a 463-million-dollar bill for both civilian and military aid to Chiang.

The new report closely identifies China with the United States "quarantine communism" program. Sections roundly criticizing Chiang's military and civilian leaders for ineptitude and corruption are deleted.

Striking out language which portrays the United States as sympathetic toward China but also frustrated by that country's failure to aid itself, the new report portrays the Chiang government as "an important part of a common front against aggressive communism."

Vandenberg ordered withdrawal of the original report, stating that it did not "reflect the viewpoint of the committee or its chairman."

Office Holders Plan Appeal to Chinese And American Public

Nanking, March 29 (AP).—Generalissimo Chiang Kia-shek told a dissident group of his party today they must surrender their seats in the Chinese National Assembly because "I have made my decisions and as national leader they cannot be changed."

The insurgents reported only three of their number accepted Chiang's offer of "high positions" equal to assemblyman, and that 51 voted to appeal to Chinese and American public opinion to support their election claims.

Ten others who went on a sit-down-hunger strike in the Assembly auditorium were removed by police and confined to a hotel.

The Assembly, meanwhile, opened without a quorum, and was marking time in hope additional members would arrive. The only task at this, its first session, is to elect China's first constitutional President and Vice President.

The controversy over seating began in November in China's first national election.

The Kuomintang (government party) promised several hundred of the 3045 seats to the minority Young China and Democratic Socialist Parties for joining a government coalition.

However, up to 700 Kuomintang members ran as write-in candidates in districts where the Kuomingtang had promised the minorities there would be no opposition. These Kuomintang insurgents now are claiming election.

Government spokesmen have conceded that possibly 400 of them were actually elected only about 100 are making a fight of it.

Chiang Kai-shek previously had asked them "gently" to withdraw for the good of the government, but they refused.

Despite the unresolved row, Chiang is a virtually unanimous choice for the Presidency, which he already holds.

Leading vice presidential candidates are the incumbent Sun Fo, Generals Li Tsung-jen and Cheng Chien, and the elderly Yu Yu-jen, at present head of the Control Yuan.

Chinese Nationalists Recapture Yuhsien

Peiping, March 29 (AP).—Chinese government troops today were reported pursuing Communists who launched an abortive offensive in Inner Mongolia nine days earlier.

The official Central News Agency said the Nationalists had recaptured Yuhsien, 100 miles west of Peiping.

Costa Ricans Admit Defeat At San Isidro

Panama City, Panama, March 29 (U.P.).—The Costa Rican rebels, after inflicting a decisive defeat on loyal forces at San Isidro del General, are advancing on Cartago, key road center only 14 miles from the capital at San Jose, Costa Rican sources here said today.

The government admitted the San Isidro defeat last night, through a radio broadcast by Communist Deputy Carlos Luis Fallas. Fallas said government columns had been "forced to retire, with considerable losses, after bloody hand-to-hand combat" with the rebels.

The vanguard of Gen. Jose Figueres' rightist insurgent army was reported to have reached the village of Tejar, four miles from the Caratgo "gateway to San Jose."

Traffic Ticket Adjustments Drop to 121

Police yesterday reported 121 parking tickets were adjusted during last week, compared to 140 the week before.

Of that number, 110 were warnings and 11 were cancellations, the latter including adjustments because of diplomatic immunity given to Joseph Ku, first secretary of the Chinese Embassy; Jose E. Weissheimer, Brazilian Embassy; Youssef Rakha, embassy not listed; Orlando Rangel, military attache of the Brizilian Embassy, and Manuel J. Abanto of the Peruvian Embassy.

A warning was issued to Edgar J. McCloy, deputy United States marshal, for violation of "no parking at any time" regulation, while on official business. Other adjustments were made for physicians on emergency calls, strangers in the city and for illness of drivers.

Hanns Eisler Calls Hollywood 'City in State of Hysteria'

Prague, March 29 (AP).—Hanns Eisler, composer who left Hollywood after a tangle with the House Committee on Un-American Activities, surveyed the sunny, peaceful streets of Prague today and said to Czech friends: "How different!"

Then he gave his impression of present-day Hollywood:

"It is a city in a terrible state of hysteria.

"Old friends regard each other with suspicion. You don't know whether you can trust your neighbors. People whisper. There are prying eyes. If you have had a brush with the authorities, no matter how slight, your pals shun you. There is conspiracy in the air, and nervous thousands are quite sure the war will start next week or next month."

Eisler said he is not a member of the Communist Party and does not intend to become one. He attributed his difficulties in America to trying to help his brother, Gerhardt, a German Communist.

Eisler plans to go to Austria.

In Palestine

Sporadic Battles Take 16 More Lives

Jerusalem, March 29 (AP).—Sporadic Jewish-Arab fighting claimed 16 more lives in Palestine today but the pace slackened after the heavy weekend battles in which 100 were killed and more than 200 wounded.

The bodies of seven Jews, one a girl, were removed from the wreckage of an armored car near an Arab village.

Police discovered the bodies of four more Jews at El Kabri village, bringing the death toll in the Arab attack that wiped out a Jewish convoy there to 46.

Three explosives which fell near a Greek orthodox school in Jaffa today were mortar shells and not bombs dropped from a plane, police said.

Today's death brought to 2208 the unofficial toll since November 29.

The last few women and children remaining in the battered Jewish district of Montefiore in Jerusalem were moved out.

In Haifa 737 Jews were deported to Cyprus. They were aboard the refugee vessel Yehiam intercepted by the British last night.

Threat of Force By Party Defied By de Gasperi

Rome, March 29 (AP).—Two Communist were killed and a Communist and a Rightist were reported injured today in preelection disorders in the Milan area.

Milan police headquarters said the Communist casualties occurred during shooting at the village of Samoglia, 25 miles southwest of Milan.

The Rightist, a speaker for the national bloc, was said to have been beaten in Legnano, 12 miles north of Milan.

Parliamentary elections will be held April 18.

Premier Alcide de Gasperi defied threats by Italy's Communists to use force if they are denied positions in the government after the election.

[Government lottery odds, the United Press said, indicated that Italians believed the Communists will gain only 30.5 per cent of the vote, finishing second to the Christian Democrats.

The lottery, in which Italians daily pick the number of seats they think each of eight parties will win in the 574-seat Assembly, showed today they are betting: the Christian Democrats will win 38.9 per cent of the vote, or 220 seats; the Communist Front 30.5, or 175 seats, and the remainder to smaller parties.

In Bogota

Delegates Arrive for Conference

Bogota, Colombia, March 29 (AP).—Diplomats from 21 nations gathered today for a Pan American Conference which faces the issues of Communism in the Western Hemisphere.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman received a warm welcome upon their arrival at Techo Airport from Balboa, Canal Zone.

Marshall's welcome was somewhat marred by Communist posters depicting him as a Nazi.

The delegates then will go to work on three basic projects calling for:

Reorganization of the inter-American system into a strong regional bloc within the framework of the United Nations.

Establishment of a program of economic aid for Latin America.

Enactment of a pact providing for the peaceful solution of differences between the American republics.

Trieste Denies Trade Permit To Tito Agency

Trieste, March 29 (U.P.).—Trieste's Italian city council, encourage by United States and British policy, defied Marshal Tito today by denying a trading license to the huge semi-official Yugoslav Corp. Ulvod.

Italian newspapers demanded that the corporation, which had filtered into the city's economic life, be close at once but the authorities pointed out that under Italian law it has the right of appeal against the council's decision.

Momentary excitement swept Trieste this eveniny when Italian newspapers published a report that an American Army sergeant was shot "mysteriously" last night by unknown assailants

The Army reported after an investigation that Sergt. Cleason Cox, Miami, Okla., was wounded in the left shoulder by two car thieves who escaped.

Japan Strike Again Banned By MacArthur

Tokyo, March 29. (U.P.)—Gen Douglas MacArthur's Allied Occupation headquarters banned a nationwide strike today for the second time in 14 months in a memorandum declaring a stoppage at thi stime woudl be harmful to the nation's recovery.

An estimated 400,000 Japanese communications workers had scheduled a walkout for 12:01 a. m Wednesday (Tokyo time).

Plans for a general strike by 6,000,000 workers were canceled in January, 1947, after MacArthur threatened labor leaders with imprisonment and other "severe punishment" if the strike took place.

Labor Minister Kanju Kato received a memorandum from Maj. Gen. William Marquat, stating in part:

"It is expected the Japanese government will tak the necessary steps to prevent the communications work stoppage because of its drastically unfavorable impact upon economic recovery and public welfare."

Telegraph, telephone and postal services in the Tokyo and Yokohama areas were disrupted, meanwhile, except for Allied use, when 160,000 workers reported to their posts, but refused to work.

In the 1947 crisis, MacArthur made a statement in which he said he had informed labor leaders "that I will not permit the use of so deadly a social weapon in the present impoverished and emaciated condition of Japan."

First news about today's memorandum came from Japanese sources. Allied sources declined comment, but later issued a formal announcement.

Flood Control Land Cost Put at $442,605

Cumberland, Md., March 29 (AP). A net expenditure of $442,605 must be made by the city of Cumberland to acquire land needed for the Cumberland-Ridgeley flood protection project, real estate agents informed city officials today.

Supreme Court Strikes Down N. Y. Law Against Crime Books

set up as an authority on the chemistry of breadmaking and said the judges ought to be slow to claim like authority on a question of psychology—which he said was at the bottom of the magazine case.

Passed Over 60 Years Ago

The New York law was passed over 60 years ago, backed by the Societies for the Suppression of Vice and Prevention of Cruelty to Children. There have been few changes in the words, but for many years the law has been in this form:

"A person who . . . prints, utters, publishes, sells, lends, gives way, distributes or shows, or has in his possession with intent to sell, lend, give away, distribute or show, or otherwise offer for sale, loan, gift or distribution, any book, pamphlet, magazine, newspaper or other printed paper devoted to the publication, and principally made up of criminal news, police reports, or accounts of criminal deeds, or pctures, or stories of deeds of bloodshed, lust or crime . . . is guilty of a misdemeanor."

Apparently Used as Model

The New York law seems to have been used as a model for laws passed by Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Washington and Wisconsin. Frankfurter said all these were struck down by yesterday's ruling, and that laws in Colorado, Indiana, South Dakota and Texas were similar, but might still stand.

Nobody paid much attention to the law for years, until December 2, 1942, when the police and an agent of the antivice society raided the Murray Winters bookstore in New York. They seized about 2000 copies of the magazine Headquarters Detective.

Justice Albert Cohen of the New York Supreme Court said the magazines "portray in vivid fashion tales of vice, murder and intrigue. The stories are embellished with pictures, of fiendish and grewsome crimes, and are besprinkled with lurid photographs of victims and perpetrators. Featured articles bear such titles as 'Bargains in Bodies,' 'Girl Slaves to a Love Cult,' and 'Girls Reformatory.'"

Winters was fined $100.

Fine Was Upheld

The New York Court of Appeals upheld the fine, saying the magazines were "indecent and obscene" because they massed together stories of bloodshed and lust. And that was what the Legislature had in mind, the court said, rather than books or criminal law, or newspapers or other things that might seem to be covered by the words of the law.

Winters' appeal to the Supreme Court was argued in the 1945 term and in the 1946 term. The court then put the case down for a third argument, causing Prof. John P. Frank of the University of Indiana to scold the justices in the University of Chicago Law Review.

"The basic issues . . . could have been decided if the court had wanted to decide them," said Frank. "Nothing but pure discretion forced these delays."

The third argument of the case—which led to yesterday's opinions—was last November 10.

Jury Law Upheld

The justices voted 5 to 4 to uphold the New York "blue ribbon" jury law, which was attacked by two men given death sentences for a holdup killing. Justice Jackson said for the majority that there was no showing that Negroes were kept off the juries, as was claimed, and recalled that the "blue ribbon" system was upheld last year.

Justice Murphy said for the dissenters that hand picked juries violated the Bill of Rights and opened the way to grave abuses.

Condon Seeks Right to Querry Witnesses

By the United Press

Counsel for Dr. E. U. Condon demanded yesterday that he be permitted to defend himself and cross examine witnesses when he testifies before the House Un-American Activities Committee next month. A subcommittee has accused him of being "the weakest link' in atomic security.

Condon, atomic scientist and head of the National Bureau of Standards, is represented by a law firm headed by Thurman Arnold, former assistant United States Attorney General; Abe Fortas, former Undersecretary of the Interior, and Paul Porter, former OPA Administrator.

In a letter to Chairman J. Parnel Thomas (R., N. J.), of the committee, they questioned tactics of the group. and asked Thomas what procedures would be used in questioning their client.

Called for April 21

Condon, who has been given a clean bill of health by Secretary of Commerce W. Averill Harriman, has been subpenaed to appear before the committee April 21. The subcommittee has charged that he "knowingly or unknowingly" associated with "alleged Soviet espionage agents."

The attorneys asked Thomas whether the committee would:

1. Permit the testimony of "distinguished scientists who are fully qualified concerning the subject matter of your hearing."

2. Permit Condon t answer in "factual and dispassionate form" accusations made against him, to read a statement answering questions asked by his own counsel, and to present evidence and witnesses of his own.

For Cross-Examination

. Permit Condon to "cross-examine any witness whose testimony may be considered or made public by the committee."

4. Advise Condon in advance of and additional charges to be made against him "so that he may prepare the material and have present at the hearing witnesses necessary to meet such charges." The lawyers also asked to be informed of any new witnesses.

"We assure you, on behalf of ourselves and Dr. Condon, that if these fundamental rights are accorded, the hearing so far as we are concerned, will be conducted with dispatch and within the scope of the issues," they wrote.

The lawyers charged that the "inflammatory and reckless manner" in which a Thomas subcommittee published its charges against Condon has "impaired the security and peace of mind" of nearly all atomic scientists.

Injunction Sought Seizure of Novel

Radio Permit Requested

Washington, March 29 (AP).—Sidney H. Tinley, jr., today asked the Communications Commission for authority to build a new standard broadcast station of 250 watts at Baltimore, Md. He proposes to operate on 1400 kilocycles.

Russians, North Koreans Dig Trenches

Outpost 18 on Thirty-eighth Parallel, Korea, March 29 (AP).—Soviet soldiers and North Korean villagers are digging trenches, foxholes and gun emplacements along the Thirty-eighth Parallel dividing the Soviet and American occupation zones of Korea.

Americans don't know why. They assume the Soviets ordered the World War I type of defensive line to justify reported Russian statements to North Koreans that that Americans and South Koreans plan to attack North Korea.

The digging was first observed by American patrols early this month. They presumed they were irrigation ditches. The activity stepped up sharply about March 9; the nature of the work became clear. One and two-man foxholes appeared.

The ditches became trenches six feet deep. Sometimes they were connected by communications trenches 2½ feet deep. Holes 10 feet in diameter were dug and given turret tops with openings for guns pointed south. No weapons were observed but at least one emplacement contains a bipod mount as large as that for an American 81-millimeter mortar.

Airing Asked on Air-Cooler Oil Firm Put in for Henderson

By the United Press

A State Department official had his hotel apartment air-conditioned by the Arabian-American Oil Co. in the summer of 1945, but the department says it wasn't a gift and that anyway all he got out of it was a lot of hot air.

Walter Winchell, radio columnist, said Sunday night that the oil company installed the ventilating equipment at its expense in the Washington Hotel apartment of Loy Henderson.

Representative William J. Miller (R., Conn.) introduced a resolution calling for a congressional inquiry to find out whether there was anything sinister about a Near Eastern oil company cooling off a Government official who helps decide Near Eastern policy.

Lincoln White, a State Department press officer, told reporters the affair went about like this:

Henderson was transferred from Baghdad to Washington early in 1945 and moved into a residential hotel which didn't have air conditioning equipment. Along about June, Henderson and James Terry Duce of Arabian-American Oil, got talking about living conditions in Saudi Arabia.

Duce mentioned that his company was buying up a lot of second-hand air conditioning equipment to cool off one of its camps there.

Duce said sure, he would have one installed in Henderson's apartment and if it proved satisfactory the State Department official would pay Arabian-American $350 for it.

"Mr. Henderson accepted the offer," said White.

American's Trial For Treason Begins

Boston, March 29 (AP).—The treason trial of Robert H. Best, former American newsman accused of broadcasting for the Nazis during the war, opened today. He tried unsuccessfully to get the panel of 175 prospective jurors tossed out.

Best released.

Federal Court Judge Francis J. W. Ford then excused 64 prospective jurors who pleaded to be released.

Selection of a jury to try Best on charges of "traitorously and treasonably" adhering to an enemy of the United States will get under way tomorrow.

Best, 51, a native fo Sumter, S. C., sat within the bar enclosure today. He was given permission to direct his own defense, assisted by Charles Bartlett and Henry Leen of Boston, and Maximillian St. George of Chicago.

The court gave access to the Federal Library, and permitted him to leave jail two days a week to consult law books.

The Government charges Best worked for the German radio.

ON MORE THAN 350 PRODUCTS

The following reductions are effective at once.

Heating Oil and Kerosene.
A special summer "fill-up" discount to September 1st of 7/10 of a cent per gallon below our regular price at time of delivery.

(NOTE: This is to accomplish a double purpose. First, it means dollar savings to our customers. In addition, it should help in the vital job of getting every oil user to have his tank full when cold weather comes. Full tanks at the start of the heating season will help substantially by lessening the effect of transportation and distribution difficulties during the winter months.)

Bottled Gas. (PROPANE)
A reduction of 1/2 cent per pound in cylinders to all customers.

Farm Tractor Fuel.
A reduction of 1/2 cent per gallon.

Roofing Asphalts.
A reduction of 5% in all grades.

Industrial Lubricants.
More than 325 industrial lubricants, greases and cutting oils reduced by varying amounts up to 25%.

Our gasoline prices are not being reduced. These prices have been held behind the trend of prices generally and are low today as compared to prices of almost all other commodities.

Altogether, we estimate these price reductions will directly benefit more than 1,000,000 consumers of our products. Indirectly, these reductions should help to reduce the cost of living for many millions of people.

A STATESMAN SPEAKS

Text of a statement made on March 22, 1948
by the Australian Minister for External Affairs, Deputy Prime Minister, and Chairman of the AD HOC Committee on the Palestinian Question of the United Nations General Assembly,
the Right Honorable DR. HERBERT V. EVATT

Decisions of a competent international conference should be accepted after there has been full enquiry and fair debate and a just settlement has been reached. Accordingly any setting aside of the United Nations Assembly decision on Palestine must be closely scrutinized. It is impossible to examine the new plan in detail because nothing definite is known about it. It is said that "Trusteeship" will be the new solution. But the word itself is ambiguous. What does it mean? It certainly seems to imply that the peoples to be placed under "Trusteeship" are not sufficiently "advanced" for self-government. Such a suggestion would seem to be untenable in relation either to the Palestinian Arabs or to the Palestinian Jews. If, however, what is now proposed is a temporary United Nations Trusteeship merely for the purpose of carrying out the Assembly's decision it would be a very different matter. But is that intended? The final decision was reached in November last after two General Assemblies had dealt most carefully and exhaustively with the matter, after all parties were heard, and after a special Commission involving very heavy United Nations expenditure had visited Palestine and reported in favor of the principles of the plan ultimately adopted in the Assembly. The plan adopted is inappropriately labeled "partition" because it involves four separate points: First, economic union of the whole of Palestine under the control of an authority with a majority of United Nations membership; second, political division of Palestine into two new states, Jewish and Arab; third, United Nations Trusteeship over Jerusalem and Bethlehem; and fourth, full safeguards for the holy places and especially for the Christian churches throughout the whole of Palestine. The only alternative plan suggested to the Assembly was to establish a unitary state under Arab domination with no adequate safeguards for the protection either of the Jewish people or of the Christian churches. This alternative was plainly inadmissible and was rejected by an overwhelming majority. The United Nations decision was reached by more than a two-thirds majority, the only dissentients being the Arab States and certain nations very closely associated with them. The decision was a just and impartial one and must not be lightly set aside.

The United Nations did not intermeddle in the Palestine matter. It intervened only after the United Kingdom Government had especially requested the United Nations Assembly to handle the matter, as all previous efforts at reconciliation between the Arabs and Jews had entirely failed. At the United Nations the British Government did not itself propose any solution, and announced it would accept the United Nations decision. In these circumstances Canada, Australia, South Africa and New Zealand all supported the proposal finally adopted. After all that has occurred, to throw the solution into the melting pot again may be very damaging to the authority of the United Nations. It has been contended that the "enforcement" of the Assembly's decision is not possible. Had the great powers who supported the proposal at Lake Success, New York, adhered firmly to it there probably would have been little difficulty. In any event, under the Assembly's decision the new Jewish State and the new Arab State was each to be entitled to establish its own militia forces for the defense of the new territory, and this decision clearly carried with it the right of jews, as well as Arabs, to import arms and equipment for the purposes of defense. It is impossible to pass final judgment on the new proposal because no one has explained it as yet. I was chairman of the Committee which worked assiduously to obtain a just solution. The Committee repeatedly modified its proposals at the suggestion of the Mandatory Power in order that the United Kingdom should be able to withdraw its forces after its long, its thankless, but on the whole, successful development of the Palestine area since it was captured from the Turks by the British and Australian forces in 1918.

In my opinion, the United Nations decision has been gradually undermined by intrigues directed against the Jewish people. It would be little short of a tragedy if the fundamental right of self-government were to be denied to both the Jews and Arabs as it is guaranteed to them under the Assembly decision, just as religious freedom is also guaranteed to the Christian churches throughout Palestine. The only considerations that influenced the United Nations Assembly were those of justice and fair dealing to all concerned. It would be most disturbing if mere considerations of power politics or expediency were allowed to destroy the decision. However, if a Special United Nations Assembly is called it is hardly likely to accept any plan which involves the annihilation of the previous decision unless new facts of overwhelming cogency are proved to exist.

I need hardly add that under the United Nations Charter the Security Council has no power whatever to overrule the recommendation of the Assembly.

Newsmen Win Decision Over MacArthur

By the United Press

The Army yesterday deprived its overseas commanders of their authority to take away the credentials of American press and radio correspondents or to censor them in any way.

A new policy directive placed correspondents in overseas Army areas directly under control of the Secretary of the Army and the Army chief of public information.

The order apparently was aimed at settling the long-standing row between Gen. Douglas MacArthur and newsmen in his Far Eastern occupation area. They had complained that he was trying to "muzzle" all criticism of his command.

The newsmen won out on their stand that MacArthur should not be permitted to take away their credentials. They were overruled, however, on their contention that, as civilian correspondents, they were not subject to military law. The new directive says they are.

Criticism Insufficient Grounds

But it said unfavorable criticism of Army palices or of an individual commander in the overseas areas would not be considered grounds for discrediting a correspondent.

When an overseas headquarters thinks disciplinary action should be taken against a newsman, it must forward the facts to Washington.

"All cases involving revocation of credentials will be referred to the Secretary of he Army for decision," the directive said.

It also forbade overseas commanders to write directly to a correspondent's employer complaining about his activities, as some newsmen in Tokyo accused MacArthur of doing.

Writers Subject to Law

The directive reminded correspondents, however, that they are subject to military law while working in an Army area overseas. They are, it said, "under the same restrictions as military personnel as regards the settlement of accounts, compliance with standing orders and law, and observance of dignity and decorum."

It said correspondents may lose their overseas credentials for any of the following reasons:

Personal misconduct of a moral or criminal nature.

Violation of journalistic codes and standards.

Violation of Army security regulations.

Membership in or close relationship or adherence to subversive organizations.

Engagement in unauthorized activities.

Driving Them Together

The turning of Moscow's wrath against the Scandinavian countries may be largely an attempt to complete the intimidation of Finland, whose negotiators are discussing a treaty of "cooperation" with the Russians. It may reflect in part also a normal reaction of the Soviet Union to the recent announcement by the prime ministers of Norway, Sweden and Denmark that they would use all means to defend the freedom of their countries against aggression. Nor can its relation to public opinion in Russia be discounted. With the Italian campaign apparently going badly from the Moscow point of view, it is doubtless good strategy to shift attention to alleged dangers to the USSR from another part of Europe. If the fact-starved people of Russia can be made to believe that the Swedish military are conspiring with the United States for the construction of bases for American planes and parachute troops on Swedish soil adjacent to Russia, more sympathetic support for the Kremlin's aggressive policy can be anticipated.

Apparently there are many people in Sweden, Norway and Denmark who fear, as a result of these attacks, that their countries are marked as the next victims of Moscow's police-state imperialism. Anti-Communist sentiment has taken a sharp rise since the fall of Czechoslovakia. General Jung, chief of the Swedish general staff, has called for a preparedness program including more secure fortifications, construction of airdromes, bigger military appropriations and complementary military training for conscripts in certain age groups. It is for this program that he is now being denounced in Moscow. Any country which prepares to defend itself against Soviet aggression is automatically written down by the Stalinists as a tool of the warmongering United States.

The other unforgivable sin of the Scandinavian countries is their support of the Marshall Plan. They hope to see the European continent restored as a prosperous economic unit even if American dollars aid in the process. For this crime against the miserymongers they must expect denunciation and abuse. We cannot suppress the hope that the meaning of these attacks will not be lost upon Stockholm, Oslo and Copenhagen. Despite the traditional neutrality of the Scandinavian Peninsula—a neutrality that was destroyed in World War II—these peoples have taken their stand for freedom. The logic of the situation seems to point unmistakably to closer ties with the other nations that have made similar decisions. The excess of the Kremlin's expansionism is driving the democracies ever closer together, and they can resist the trend only at their peril.

Lewis' Gobbledegook

There is a body of opinion which holds that John L. Lewis calls coal strikes for the pleasure he gets from loosing blasts in a quasi-prose of his own invention. The Lewis idioglossia, typified in the letter he wrote yesterday to the Federal board of inquiry, sounds like the work of a Hottentot impressed by a month in London. It suggests that the miners' boss, who has little regard for his fellow citizens, has none at all for his native language.

"Without indulging in analysis, it is a logical assumption that the cavilings of the bar and bench in their attempts to explicate this infamous enactment will consume a tedious time," Lewis writes. After sorting this out and supplying the necessary grammar, which Lewis omitted, we conclude that he believes procedures under the Taft-Hartley Act will waste time. Skipping several sentences framed on the principle of never using a simple and precise word when a pretentious and inexact one can be found, we come to this gem: "He (Dr. George W. Taylor) is inherently incapable of determining the distinction between a fact and a scruple." Translated literally, the sentence appears to say that Taylor can't tell the difference between a fact and (a) a minute portion, (2) a Roman coin, (c) a unit of weight, or (d) hesitation as to action or decision from the difficulty of determining what is right. Here we admit defeat and bow to Lewis' demonstration that no one need be difficult when, with a little effort, he can be impossible.

Some students of the great man assert that he is a thwarted actor, suffering from a suppressed desire to play Hamlet. We disagree. Yesterday's letter makes it clear that it is a Welsh, not a Danish, psyche that makes the man cluck. John Llewellyn is a thwarted baritone, aching to declaim the lead in an eisteddfod.

Bogota Fences

Precisely because it has been postponed at the instance of the United States, the ninth International Conference of American States which opens today at Bogota, Colombia, has a significance even greater than that ordinarily surrounding a meeting of Western Hemisphere nations. On the surface, at least, this importance is being given ample recognition by the United States. No fewer than three Cabinet Secretaries are on hand for the beginning ceremonies. Barring critical developments requiring his presence at home, Secretary of State Marshall plans to remain the full six weeks of the conference.

The initial presence of Secretaries Harriman and Snyder is also appropriate. For, if the conclave is to succeed, from our point of view, it will require all the persuasiveness of which our representatives are capable. Secretary Marshall demonstrated an adroit hand in developing the Rio defense pact last fall. He will need the same adroitness now in what is a combination of delaying action and economic fence mending. His job essentially will be to soothe the feelings of Latin representatives who fear that the United States has turned a cold shoulder to them, and at the same time to convince them that the European Recovery Program must be our primary economic target.

It is natural that Latin-American nations should ask why, when the United States has pressed so hard for hemisphere solidarity, it focuses so much attention on Europe. The obvious answer is that first things must come first; the United States has at best limited resources, and Europe is where free institutions are most directly threatened. Nevertheless, it would be folly to overlook the vital part of genuine economic solidarity in the Western Hemisphere if armed conflict should break out in Europe. Basically, then, our job at Bogota is to show Latin-American nations that we are not insensitive to their economic needs and at the same time to relate their needs to the needs of Europe and thereby bring about a sort of hemisphere acceptance of ERP as a mutual responsibility.

Offshore buying under the Marshall Plan —which deserves to be stressed far more than it has been—can promote this feeling of participation. Latin America stands to benefit considerably from many of the purchases to be made outside the United States. Increased Government lending through the Export-Import Bank also can help provide the industrial development these countries are seeking. Probably the chief emphasis, however, will be placed on devising better ways to attract private capital to Latin America. It is in this sphere that funds for expansion are now most readily available; it is here also that nationalistic restrictions are the most crippling. The task of the United States delegation is to help evolve a formula, giving due deference to Latin pride, that will prevent the sort of flagrant exploitation which has sometimes taken place in the past and at the same time guarantee foreign investments adequate security and equality of treatment. Such a formula would be beneficial in two ways: it would provide the funds for new industries and it would help develop new sources for strategic materials, such as oil and tin, important to our own security.

Aside from such corollary aims as the minimizing of travel restrictions, the second principal task of the Bogota Conference will be to knit together more closely the inter-American defense system under the United Nations. Given the preliminary accord at Rio, this should not be too difficult. It is important, however, that the meaning of the Rio agreement be spelled out, particularly with regard to the present territorial disputes between several Latin-American countries and Great Britain. These controversies, while no doubt they loom important to the countries concerned, detract from the larger purpose of defense of the Americas. The United States can serve the common good by facilitating adjudication of these disputes in their proper context. One of the most hopeful developments in this crisis-ridden world is the genuine cooperation which the American nations have achieved. Our goal at Bogota is to eliminate the sore points in this cooperation as well as to expand the economic foundation on which all other measures of defense rest.

Further Omens In Italy

The anti-Communist forces in Italy, which a fortnight ago were reported almost in despair, are now said to have gained fresh hope and courage. At the same time the Communists are reported to have been highly disconcerted by the sudden outburst of nationalistic enthusiasm which followed the announcement of the three-power proposal to revise the peace treaty to provide for the return of Trieste to Italy. On Sunday they suffered another blow in the great demonstration for Pope Pius XII after he had appealed to the people, without mentioning the election, to understand the momentous decision they have to make. "There is no room," he declared, "for blind belief toward those who first abundantly acclaim respect for religion and then, alas, reveal themselves as deniers of that which is most sacred in this religion."

The Communists, who throughout the pre-election campaign had been carrying the attack, have been suddenly thrown on the defensive. Signor Togliatti is now trying to persuade the Italians that an amicable arrangement with Marshall Tito for the reunion of Trieste with Italy could easily have been made, if the British and American powers had not forbidden the government to enter negotiations. A peaceful settlement of the question, however, said Togliatti, is not what the imperialist powers want. What they want is to set off a spark that will send the whole world into flames again. All this must seem a little lame to Italians, most of whom clearly remember that until recently Signor Togliatti had no better settlement of the problem to propose than an exchange of Trieste for Gorizia.

A realization by the Communists that they may not win the election after all seems implicit in the violent speech of Luigi Longo at Bologna. He asserted that the Reds are prepared to use force if their adversaries try to keep them out of the offices "which the majority will give to us." The general shift in sentiment since the three-power announcement concerning Trieste seems also to be reflected in the demand of Vice Premier Pacciardi that the Communist action squads which have been conducting a violent propaganda and attempting to break up meetings of the opposition parties be disbanded immediately. If they do not disband of their own accord, said Signor Pacciardi, they will be disbanded forcibly. The activities of these bands at Milan in the north and at Otranto in the south recently provoked counter-demonstrations by the populace. There were serious riots in which the Communists appear to have been worsted.

Meanwhile, Marshal Tito is said to be massing troops near the British and American zones of occupation in Trieste. It is also rumored that the American and British garrisons have been reenforced. General Airey, in command of the Anglo-American forces, has denied this, explaining that military police posts have been strengthened from the regular garrisons. Thus, although the Communists have certainly suffered a sudden loss of prestige, it cannot be said that the general situation is any less explosive than before the announcement by the Western powers. If anything, it is a little more so.

Looking Backward

Senator Kenneth Wherry has raised again the issue of civilian as opposed to military control of atomic energy—an issue thoroughly debated and definitively resolved two years ago when the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 was passed. The sense of destiny with which this issue was considered by Congress and the people is recalled by James R. Newman and Byron S. Miller in their recently published study, The Control of Atomic Energy. "The bitterness of the struggle and the zeal of the participants can be taken," they observed, "as indicating the depths to which men had been stirred by the formidable power of atomic energy and also the general conviction that what was being decided in the halls of Congress was no simple issue of domestic politics but the whole nature of our political institutions and perhaps the future of the world."

Nothing can be deemed more fundamental to the American idea than the subordination of the military to civil authority. Even Senator Wherry has acknowledged the validity of this principle "in peacetime." But, he argues, "if the situation is so serious as it is described by President Truman . . . then it is as essential for military men to control the atom bomb as it is for them to control the Army, the Navy and the Air Force." This seems to us a classic non sequitur. Military men "control" the Army, Navy and Air Force in peace and war alike in the sense that they man and administer these services. It is indisputable that they must be the utilizers of atomic bombs if war should develop, just as they must be the utilizers of tanks, ships and planes.

But the control of atomic energy is the control of something much more than a bomb. And there is no more sense in giving the military such control than in giving them control over the steel industry, the shipbuilding industry or the aircraft industry—and of the whole realm of research lying behind these industries. Military authorities themselves, of course, have no desire to assume such control. On the very day that Senator Wherry made his proposal to turn atomic energy over to the Army, Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall testified before the Senate Armed Services Committee that "the Atomic Energy Commission and the representatives of the military are working splendidly together. We need not suggest a change."

There are thoroughly pragmatic reasons, apart from the principle involved, for keeping atomic energy development in civilian hands. These were summarized in an editorial published two years ago by the Atomic Scientists of Chicago and quoted in the Newman-Miller book:

> Military control will not assure our continued advantage over the rest of the world in atomic armament and in scientific war potential in general. The Army will inevitably put emphasis not on creative research, but on building the largest number of atomic bombs of the existing type and protecting the secrecy of present processes by strict security regulations, and other police methods. The really good scientists feel that their effort will be wasted if they are forced to work under the conditions of secrecy and compartmentalization, without the benefit of free exchange of ideas . . .

Senator Wherry's proposal, it should be noted, would go far beyond the May-Johnson bill defeated in 1946. That measure was thought to permit military control simply because it permitted the appointment of men in uniform to the commission itself. But Mr. Wherry would now turn the whole problem over to the armed services, abolishing the civilian commission entirely. "The probable effect would be," as Senator McMahon observed, "to destroy the best chance that peace now has. It would be a notification to the world that we had abandoned hope for peace, and that the Congress of the United States accepted the inevitability of war."

Three Little Maids

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Cloture Is the Test

A TEST is soon to come in the Senate that will have far-reaching political significance in this year of division. It may well determine whether the Democratic Party is to remain an effective unit or whether it is to shatter into warring fragments.

The test will come over the issue of cloture. Will a sufficient number of Northern Democrats join with Republicans to shut off Senate debate and thereby make it possible to adopt an antilynching or an antipoll-tax bill?

Under the rules of the Senate, two thirds of those present and voting must vote in favor of cloture —a limitation on debate which would end a Southern filibuster. Repeatedly, in the past, cloture has failed and the hated legislation has been drowned in talk.

There had been some expectation that this time enough Democrats, following the lead of President Truman's civil rights message, would go for cloture. But that was before the revolt within the Democratic Party threatened a break-up beyond hope of repair.

Today Northern Democrats are acutely aware of the emphasis that Southern leaders will put on cloture. The Southerners may take it as the final test of whether they remain within the framework of their party.

THIS UNHAPPY situation promises to produce acute political colic. On the day of the cloture vote, certain Northern Democrats will discover that they must have a long-neglected hospital checkup. They will not be present and voting when the roll is called.

This is the strategy of those who feel that in the present desperation there is only one course left—to save the remnants of the Democratic Party. They would try to preserve the alliance between the Northern and Southern wings so that the present shattered forces may some day be re-formed to fight another battle.

These are the same men who are talking of saving the party by sidetracking Mr. Truman. With cloture rejected, the Southerners would fall in line behind a substitute ticket and the basic structure of the party would thereby be preserved.

Powerful forces see in the present Southern revolt a heaven-sent opportunity to split the conservative Southern wing from the Northern wing, with its reliance on organized labor. To break up what is regarded as an unnatural alliance is the real goal.

In the South these forces are concentrated in the most reactionary wing of big business. The Southern Industrial Council of Nashville, Tenn., has sent out a flood of propaganda intended to fan the revolt.

The stake is, of course, the lower wage base in the South. By paying the Negro less than the white worker, a reservoir of cheap labor helps to maintain the base. Anti-discrimination laws would end all that.

NOT MUCH has been needed to touch off the Southern revolt, according to reports from that region. Feeling is deep and widespread.

What Southerners took more or less quiescently from President Roosevelt, they would not hear of from Mr. Truman. In part, at least, this seems to come from a sense of betrayal by one who had represented himself as their ally. A prominent Southern politician, in a letter to the President, put it this way:

"When I talked to you at the Democratic convention in Chicago in 1944, you said you were not in favor of this kind of enforced equalization. That is one of the reasons I worked in your behalf for the vice presidential nomination."

All this adds up to the likelihood that no civil rights legislation will be passed at this session. While the Republicans may shed crocodile tears at that outcome, they will not be too distressed.

They are well aware that if legislation were passed now, President Truman would deserve not a little of the credit. If, on the other hand, they wait until next year, when there will presumably be a Republican President and overwhelming Republican majorities in Senate and House, no one will have any doubt as to where credit should go.

These are the somewhat sordid realities of behind-scenes politics. They show men acting under the compulsion of swiftly moving events that spin the wheel of fortune so fast most politicians, accustomed to the slower tempo of another day, cannot keep up with the changes. Another whirl might bring Mr. Truman's number up again but the professionals are not counting on it.

"Imputing Motives"

Congratulations on your editorial of March 25, "Imputing Motives," in which Senator Glen Taylor's attack on Secretary Forrestal is dismissed as a "sort of shoddy attribution of guilt by association."

The Senator says the Secretary tries to shape American foreign policy in accordance with "oil imperialism." This kind of name-calling ignores the substantive questions: Are the policies, irrespective of oil, sound or unsound? And is not the Secretary of Defense obliged, by reason of his office, to give special consideration to issues—such as oil—directly affecting our national security?

Senator Taylor's charge reminds us that he is a most appropriate partner for his running mate, Mr. Henry Wallace. Both gentlemen try to make American motives and policies look so black that Russian policies assume a not-unbecoming shade of grey by comparison. As an occasional practice, this might be entirely excusable; as a consistent habit, it must raise questions as to the whereabouts of a man's loyalty.

Picket Violence

On March 21 The Washington Post carried a story under the headline "Pressman Told to Avoid Violence," quoting Judge McMahon's remarks in sentencing a member of our union for assault on a nonstriker. This story leaves an unwarranted impression that our union condones violence or our members have to be warned not to engage in violence.

A full and fair coverage of the trial which resulted in Judge McMahon's actions will immediately dispel that impression. Our union has been on strike since February 2. Three of our members have been tried for assault before Judge McMahon. Two were found not guilty. The third was jointly tried with one of those acquitted and the complaining witness in that case said that "he had been assaulted by both pickets." The union is considering the filing of an appeal.

Judge McMahon addressed his warning to the individual involved and not to the union or other striking members of the union. Our union is opposed to violence as all good citizens are and the bringing of assault cases only hurts the union, while it stirs up sympathy for the employers.

"More Daylight"

I'll wager the person who wrote the editorial entitled "More Daylight" in your issue of March 25, does not have a small school age child.

If the daylight saving goes into effect April 25, that will mean at least eight weeks before school ends. Most parents aim to get their children in bed so the children will have 11 hours' sleep—so 7:30 is bedtime, with 8 as the deadline. A doctor in Philadelphia went on record in the press last summer stating that daylight saving was causing nervous disturbances in children and advocated return to standard time.

MABEL VAN DYKE BAER.
Washington.

If you really wanted to help people to straight thinking, you would advocate that standard time be adhered to everywhere. In winter many thousands of Washingtonians leave home before light and even have to turn on the lights when they reach their offices, and they are happy when the time of year comes that they can enjoy these early hours of the day because they are light and warm.

E. CEDARGREN.
Washington.

I wonder how you can justify the statement that daylight saving time had a popular approval last year.

What little excuse there ever was for daylight saving time is gone now that we do not work 10 and 12 hours a day, six and seven days a week.

Since most buildings in which men and women work are now automatically cooled during the summer, I think it is foolish for us to be turned out of these buildings at an hour when the heat is the most uncomfortable.

If any group of workers desire to go to work earlier and get off earlier, I think this could and should be arranged among themselves and their employers.

A. E. UNDERWOOD.

Editor's Note: On the basis of representative surveys, The Washington Post Poll has consistently disclosed a majority of persons in Washington and vicinity favoring daylight saving time. On September 29, 1947, after a summer of daylight saving, 66 per cent of the persons interviewed in the metropolitan area said they would like to have it again.

Butter Vs. Red Cross

I was highly incensed recently when I read of the vengeful, childish and vicious action of the dairy interests whose selfish attempt to force the public to use butter instead of margarine are now aimed at the Red Cross. There will be suffering by innocent children as the result of the dairy interests' refusal to support the Red Cross simply because margarine was mentioned as an "acceptable" substitute for butter.

Enclosed you will find one dollar for forwarding to the Red Cross. I have already made one contribution this year but I feel that in view of the action of the butter industry more is needed to reach a worthy goal and I am taking this method of swelling the fund in hopes that others will read and feel so inclined.

Exports To Russia

Why did you not place the news story "Spotlight on Sales to Soviet" (page 2 The Washington Post, March 25), next to the Page 1 story, "Registering Men 18-45 is Part of Defense Plan," and let the right hand know what the left one is doing?

A Mr. Carruthers is quoted as saying that "to halt shipment of goods sold in the earlier period would cause hardship to all exporters and might even put some of them out of business." That's just too bad.

All exports to Russia and her satellites should be banned at once —not ony materials "predominately for military purposes." Anything at all that we send to an enemy is useful for war.

American Plan Of Action

It is no easy task to chart our course in relation to the daily mounting tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Our first obligation is to withstand the atmosphere of hysteria and fear which is engulfing America, and which is likely to paralyze effort or lead to blind and unreasoning action. We can try to understand Soviet statements and actions in terms of the present Soviet position and of their estimate of us and be willing to judge our actions by the same standards to which we subject hers.

Our second obligation is to view the many problems connected with the present crisis in global terms, and not primarily from the American point of view. Peace is possible only as the United States and the USSR recognize that they must coexist in the same world. We can take comfort in the fact that in spite of the great concentration of power, neither nation is in a position to dominate the world alone, and neither wants war at the present time.

A third demand upon us is that we try to view the present in historical perspective. The United States and the Soviet Union are adjusting to new roles in international affairs. Both feel the stirrings of power and leadership driving them out of isolation. Each feels its importance and wants to widen its sphere of influence, and each calls the other imperialistic. There is no use ignoring the facts of the differences and conflicts arising from these respective national roles and policies. Neither is there any use hoping to reshape Russia into our own pattern or according to our own interests.

Those who believe that a constructive policy is the wisest way to meet the problems of Soviet-American relations will agree that the action by the United States should follow these channels: (1) Support the United Nations wholeheartedly, even at some risk of not having our own views prevail; (2) strengthen our economy; (3) strengthen our democracy; (4) help to strengthen the economies and democratic institutions of other nations.

Our support of the United Nations must be consistent in spite of the difficulties presented by Russia's noncooperation. Placing military bases and troops for necessary policing under United Nations control; supporting and not bypassing United Nations organs such as the Economic Council for Europe; refraining from building a bloc of votes to force the Assembly to adopt our views.

To strengthen the economy of the United States it is essential to control inflation and prevent a depression, not (as some writers imply) in order to frustrate Russia's hope of ideological gains from a failure of capitalist economy, but in order to preserve our citizens from breadlines and our country from economic chaos. This would require actions like the following: Rationing of scarce commodities, price control, restriction of monopolistic practices, expansion of production and no general reduction in taxes.

It is also essential to protect the economic status of individual Americans. This requires particularly a higher minimum wage, extension of the social security program, a fair employment practices act and aid to education.

To strengthen our democracy it is necessary to insure our citizens of the freedom and equality of which we boast. This calls for such measures as abolition of the poll tax, insurance of nondiscrimination in education, a Federal anti-lynching law, repeal of repressive labor legislation, protection of freedom of thought from persecution under loyalty oaths and investigating committees. Do we dare to carry out the recommendations of the President's Committee on Civil Rights?

To strengthen the economies and democratic institutions of other nations we must first of all, adopt the Marshall Plan, not as a move against Russia, but as a major constructive program in international economics. In this connection we should avoid supporting reactionary governments which do not have the confidence of the democratic people of their own countries. Similarly, we should not attempt to oppose the "socialistic" programs of the more democratic countries in western Europe.

In addition, our country should cooperate in the expansion of international trade both through speedy acceptance of the International Trade Organization and through extension of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

Through the strength of our own democracy, generating self-respect other than fear, we can meet the challenge of the Soviet Union, cooperating as friends if that is possible, upholding justice and freedom in any case. Not by competitive armaments, universal military training, and war hysteria, shall we build this strength.

Today And Tomorrow

Half Measures And Generalities

Lippmann

IF IT WAS in fact necessary that Secretary Marshall should leave Washington at this time in order to go to Bogota, he cannot come back too quickly. For the condition of our affairs is very serious indeed, and without continuous attention it may become unmanageable. The President's message, the speeches, testimony, and press conferences of Mr. Marshall, Mr. Forrestal, Mr. Royall, Mr. Sullivan, and Mr. Symington have put this country in the position of preparing slowly and with half measures for a war of undefined objectives.

The peril of war will become more acute and more immediate unless the Administration accelerates its military measures and clarifies its diplomatic objectives.

OUR POLICY, it is said, is to convince Stalin and the Politburo that aggression will mean war. But half-measures, taken slowly, are quite as likely to convince the Kremlin that our policy can be defeated by bold and ruthless measures taken quickly. There is good reason to think that this is precisely what the Czechoslovak coup, the Finnish action, the menacing pressure on Scandinavia, and on Iran signify—namely, the conviction in Moscow that they can obtain the strategical advantage before this country can mobilize and deploy its forces. It is by no means certain that the Russians have not concluded that the risk for them is less if they bring about a showdown in the near future than if they wait until western Europe is united and recovering and until we are rearmed.

FOR OUR power, though potentially great, requires time to develop. It has to be exerted at the end of long lines of supply. And, morally and politically, we are committed in a dozen scattered areas of the globe, all of them within much easier reach of Russia than of the United States. Moreover in all these areas the Russians can intervene, using the native Communists, far more easily than can we, supporting the mixed and divided factions that are anti-Communists. Our superiority in the great weapons, like the atomic bomb and in long-range aircraft, no doubt exists. But time, distance, and mass on the one hand,—the ability to provoke civil war and to seize hostages on the other hand—are, if not a defense against our superior weapons, a very considerable offset.

SO WE must not think that the measures the President has recommended and the declarations about no more appeasement are anything more than the first beginnings of a national policy to deal with the situation. They are in fact rather like digging a hole which is to be the foundation of a house for which the architect has not yet made a plan or the contractor assembled the materials.

The military measures recommended by the Truman Administration will remain half measures, even though they are backed by an industrial and financial mobilization, until definite strategic decisions are taken as to where and for what purpose American military power is to be deployed. These decisions have not been taken. They have not been taken because the diplomatic policy of the Administration is still the policy of containment, which means in military terms that American forces may be required all around the periphery of the Soviet Union in Europe and Asia, when, where, and as the Soviets choose to take the initiative. It is impossible to make effective military preparations to support a policy of this kind. We shall never have enough military forces, or be able to get them to these scattered theaters at the right time, or having gotten them there to do more than win local, indecisive, engagements.

THE ALTERNATIVE is a policy designed for a concrete, and therefore a limited but decisive objective. That objective can be only, it seems to me, a settlement, induced by power and facilitated by compromise, which results in the withdrawal of the Red Army from the Stettin-Trieste line to the frontiers of the Soviet Union. Such a settlement may be impossible to achieve without war. But whether it was achieved by diplomacy or war it would be a settlement of the main conflict between the Soviet empire and the western world.

It would not settle all the troubles of mankind. It would not end the ideological conflicts that divide the world. But nothing will settle all the troubles of mankind. Containment will not settle them. No war will settle them. An anti-Bolshevik crusade will not settle them. All that can be settled now is whether half of Europe shall remain under occupation by the Red Army and the other half in danger of occupation.

IN ONE way or another that will have to be settled, and upon that settlement all our power and all the resources of our diplomacy should be focused and concentrated.

Off The Record

Elements Of Security

By Sumner Welles

Moral Leadership Missing

THE OFFICIAL explanations of the reversal of our policy on Palestine at least make two points wholly clear. There is no shadow of justification for this reversal; and the position which the United States now occupies is profoundly humiliating.

Secretary Marshall states that our action is due to "vital elements of our national security." He implies that the enforcement of partition would bring about the dispatch of Soviet troops to Palestine, and that the resulting situation would "touch off the powder keg."

If this Government had had the foresight, when the Assembly adopted its partition resolution, to insist upon the creation by the Security Council of a United Nations constabulary for Palestine composed of contingents from the lesser powers, there would have been no possibility that Russia or any other major power could seek to police Palestine. The Arabs would never have resorted to extreme measures. Today Arab aggression is increasing. Encouraged by the way in which the mighty United States has weakly given in to their threats, the Arabs have flouted the United Nations. They reject any suggestion of a trusteeship. They will try to seize the whole of Palestine as soon as the British withdraw.

The Jews are defending the areas granted them under partition. They have announced the establishment of a provisional government to assume control of those areas the day after the British leave. They are abiding by the terms of the Assembly's decision. But they will resist any proposal that does not give them their promised freedom.

BECAUSE OF our previous vacillation, partition may now mean local hostilities, but a trusteeship would touch off the very "powder keg" of which we are told to beware. In that event Russian intervention would be certain.

Are military dispositions the only "vital elements of our national security?"

To many of us the good faith of the United States, the preservation of its moral leadership among the nations of the world, the confidence that other peoples possess in its dependability, and the survival of the United Nations are elements that are also vital. It is these elements that the reversal of American policy on Palestine has flagrantly disregarded.

The legalistic arguments that the American delegate was instructed to deliver to the Security Council represent a flat denial of the responsibility of the United Nations for the preservation of world peace. That denial undermines the very foundations upon which the United Nations was built. The action of the United States in regard to Palestine can be as far-reaching in its results as the refusal by the League of Nations to protect China when Japan invaded Manchuria in 1931. We are destroying the faith of the peoples of the world in the efficacy and authority of the United Nations.

ARE THE American people willing to agree that the United Nations has already ceased to be a "vital element of our national security?"

What confidence can the weaker nations have in our good faith when this Government welshes on its commitments?

The United States was chiefly responsible for the adoption by the Assembly of the partition resolution four months ago. Since that time the President, the Secretary of State and the American delegate to the United Nations have given repeated assurances that the American Government stood four-square behind that decision. The Jews of Palestine have relied on those assurances. Their course has been governed by that faith. Yet those assurances have now been deliberately violated.

The lesser members of the United Nations are already in open revolt.

The effect upon the confidence of the smaller nations in American leadership can best be illustrated by the published statement of a representative of one of the Latin-American republics: "First they convinced us that partition was the only answer. Now they are trying to convince us that partition is insane. It is true that I represent a small nation which can not stand alone. I am willing to accept United States leadership. But this is treachery. By this latest reversal the United States has forfeited whatever moral justification it once had for leading the small nations."

AT THIS crucial moment when we seek to rally the countries of western Europe to our leadership in the face of Russian expansion, are we prepared to agree that our moral prestige and the confidence of other peoples in the good faith of this country are no longer "vital elements of our national security"?

This reversal by the United States will increase, and not diminish, the danger of a major war in the Near East. It deals what may well be a death blow to the United Nations, and to our hope for collective security. It shakes confidence in the United States throughout the world.

For what is alleged to be momentary expediency we have thrown away national assets that were essential to our safety. And these, unfortunately, are not assets which can be soon regained.

Atom Control Plan of Soviet Faces Toss-Out

Lake Success, March 29 (AP).—A majority of the United Nations atomic conferees lined up today behind a move to toss out Russia's atomic control proposals.

The move was started by Britain, France, China and Canada in the 11-nation working committee of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. They were quickly joined by the United States, Argentian, Colombia and Belgium.

Britain and the United States demanded an immediate vote, but dropped their request when Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko asked for more time. Despite this, Gromyko said the conferees had reached a "dead end."

The committee will decide the issue Monday. With 8 of the 11 delegates already on record as favoring the four-power proposal. Its approval appeared assured. Seven votes are needed for approval.

It seemed that after 21 months of debate, the U. N. atomic delegates were ready to act on the American proposals originally submitted June 14, 1946, by Bernard M. Baruch.

The United States plan calls for a tight system of international control to be put into effect by stages. Atomic bomb production would be prohibited only after adequate safeguards had been set up against violation.

Russia wants an immediate treaty outlawing all atomic bomb production and requiring that present stockpiles be destroyed. Te Soviet plan also calls for a limited system of inspection to be put into effect after the outlawing of atomic bombs.

The four-power declaration declared the Soviet proposals were inadequate, unrealistic and misleading. The declaration also said the Soviet plan might help an aggressor nation.

Gromyko reported that the authors of the resolution were approaching the problem like "accountants and clerks." He called the report "the work of bookkeepers trying to square their views with the United States."

Gromyko devoted most of his 38-minute speech to another bitter attack on the United States.

The four-power declaration said:

"The Soviet government has not only proposed a scheme that is fundamentally inadequate for the control of atomic energy, but at the same time has made the overriding stipulation that they will not agree to establish even such a feeble scheme of control until all atomic weapons have been prohibited and destroyed. It is completely unrealistic to expect any nation to renounce atomic weapons without any assurance that all nations will be presented from producing them."

Donnell Would Bar Church, Private Schools From U. S. Aid

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.) yesterday introduced an amendment to the 300 million dollar Federal aid to education bill forbidding the states to use any of the Federal funds for church or private schools.

The amendment was opposed by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) author of the education bill on which the Senate is expected to vote this week.

Taft, who describes his measure as "home-rule for the states in the education field," said Donnell's proposal would impose a strict Federal control upon the states.

Donnell based most of his two-hour argument for his amendment upon the constitutional requirement for separation of church and state.

Taft pointed out hat the States are bound by the Federal Constitution, and that while some States have gone even further than the Constitution and marred use of State funds to aid pupils in parochial and private schools, others have not.

"My theory is that the State chooses a policy," Taft told the Senate, "and I don't think we should force it upon them."

Earlier Taft had said that under recent Supreme Court decisions it seems clear that a State can aid parochial or other sectarian schools only with bus transportation and certain health or welfare services.

Donnell said that as a resident of Missouri where use of Federal funds is barred to non-public schools, he objected to having his Federal tax money channeled to States having no such prohibition.

"The Senator is taxed as a citizen of the United States," replied Taft, "not as a citizen of Missouri. On that theory I might say I do not want to be taxed for reclamation because we don't have any reclamation in Ohio."

Donnell quoted from an article by Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer in the March issue of Reader's Digest during his argument for his amendment.

He told the Senate that both Mrs. Meyer and her husband (Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of the Washington Post) have been "outstanding citizens of this community for many years."

The sentence Donnell quoted was:

"Public support of one sectarian school system would bring many otehrs into existence and undermine our public education system and the future development of our Republic."

The quotation was correct, but Donnell failed to say that earlier in the same article Mrs. Meyer had stated explicitly that all children, regardless of what school they attend, are entitled as Americans to public community services such as health, welfare, school lunches and transportation.

In response to questions from Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), Donnell said he did not oppose the school lunch program, handled under separate legislation, because it was of direct benefit to the child, not to the particular school.

He said he would oppose expenditure of any of the Federal funds in this bill for some of the customary community services such as bus transportation, health services and the like extended in many States to all children.

Might Make Him Healthier

"You can't say that building a basketball court for a child, giving him a glass of milk or fixing his teeth would make him an atheist, a Mohammedan, a Hindu, a Protestant, a Catholic or a member of any other religious group," retorted McMahon, "but it might make him a healthier and stronger American."

Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) said he was vigorously opposed to the Donnell amendment because it would have a directly harmful influence in Vermont.

Aiken explained that Vermont, the first State to establish a complete system of public education, depends upon some of the small private academies to furnish high school education in towns too small to support a public high school. These are non-sectarian schools but are legally designated as private schools to which town school boards pay tuition.

Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) said the Donnell amendment seemed to enter a field reserved to the States in educational policy.

Head of ANG Cites Russia's Press Curb Law

Geneva, March 29 (AP).—Harry Martin, president of the American Newspaper Guild, cited a law of the Soviet Union today as proof the Russian press is government-controlled.

Yacob Lomakin, of the Soviet Union, in turn charged the American press with attempting to spread abroad "pornographic literature and pin-up girls" which he said led to a wave of juvenile delinquency in the United States itself.

The exchange took place at the United Nations Conference on Freedom of Information.

Martin read to a committee the entire statute on control of the press in the Soviet Union and upon conclusion declared:

"I submit that the representatives of any government practicing a control so rigid, so complete and so monopolistic as this, are scarcely in a postion to criticize the free press of any other peoples."

Lomakin spoke after Martin, but made no reference to the latter's quotaton of Soviet law.

The 1000-word statute of Gavlit, which Martin read, placed full control over all newspapers, periodicals, photographs, radio broadcasts, lectures, exhibitions and films in the hands of the "people's commissariat of education."

It authorized banning any works containing "agitation and propaganda against the Soviet authority and the dictatorship of the proletariat," Martin said.

Poet Rebels at Orders of Czech Reds

London, March 29 (AP).—A young Czech Communist poet rebelled against the party tonight for giving poets "a list of themes for our poems."

Van Blatny, 29, said he is quitting the party, resigning from the Czech Syndicate of Authors, and refusing to go home.

"No self-respecting artist," he told reporters, "can live and work freely in Czechoslovakia since it became a police state run by the Bolsheviks."

Blatny came here in a government-sponsored exchange of culture and information with Britain.

"If I were to follow the instructions given to me by the Czech organizers of the trip," Blatny said, "I should have to assure the British public that everything in Czechoslovakia is perfectly in order, and that situation is the expression of the will of the people.

"But my conscience forbids me to spread such lies."

Blatny said the list of acceptable poetry topics was sent the delegation by the central committee of the Czech Communist Party.

"To my fellow writers in the west who still sympatize with communism in any shape," Blatny said, "I should like to give a warning:

"As soon as you concede absolute political power to the Communists you become their absolute slaves."

Strong Unity in Americas Held Answer to Soviet Challenge

A strong inter-American system would be one of the most realistic answers to the challenge we face from Russia, according to John Parr of the National Catholic Welfare Conference inter-American bureau.

In a discussion of the Bogota inter-American conference which opens today, Parr told the 20th annual conference of the Catholic Association for International Peace yesterday that the only language understood by Stalin and his minions was that of strength and unity.

The definite and organized system of states which is about to be erected for the Americas at Bogota should not be an aggressive one, he said, but one that does not intend to have its principles and purposes thwarted by any other system.

Dr. Helen Potter, professor of economics at Seton Hill College, Greensburg, Pa., said additional aid to Latin America is politically unfeasible at this time because of the Marshall Plan and because Congress wants lower taxes and fears competition with United States manufacturers.

Dr. Brendan F. Brown of the Catholic University Law School, chairman of the discussion meeting on the inter-American system, read a paper prepared by Dr. Charles G. Fenwick of the Pan American Union's international law division. Dr. Fenwick said the most controversial element of the peace system to be considered at Bogota is a provision for compulsory arbitration of disputes if inquiry, mediation or conciliation fails.

Final meetings of the Association for International Peace will be held today at Trinity College. Morning discussions will deal with the United Nations, while Asia will be the topic in the afternoon.

Finland-Russia Treaty Parley Takes Day Off

Moscow, March 29 (AP).—Premier Mauno Pekkala of Finland and Foreign Minister V. Y. Molotov of Russia had no meeting scheduled today for discussion of a proposed friendship and military treaty, a member of the Finnish delegation said.

Beyond this there was na official news on the activities of the Finnish delegation.

(In Helsinki it was reported that President Juho K. Paasikivi and his top advisers met, apparently to consider a detailed Soviet proposal for the pact. Political sources said the Finnish government is preparing new instructions for its delegates.)

Senate Puts 37½% Tax On Platinum Fox Furs

A bill putting a 37½ per cent tax on platinum fox furs was passed by the Senate and sent to the House yesterday. When the 1930 tariff act was written, there were no such furs, and no duty was imposed on them.

The Senate also passed and sent to the House a bill taking import duties off small logs or briquets made of sawdust. All come from Canada.

The Senate also voted to permit the free entry of exposed X-ray films used for medical treatment of patients from foreign countries. The House has not acted on the measure.

Denial by Quill

N. Y. Transit Union Stays In CIO Body

New York, March 29 (AP).—Leaders of New York's CIO Transport Workers Union (TWU) said tonight the group would remain affiliated with the Greater New York CIO Council.

Reports that the TWU would leave the Council had followed the resignation of Michael Quill, TWU president, as president of the Council.

Quill and Austin Hogan, local president, said in a joint statement that no such recommendation was made, nor "will be made." The TWU claims to represent a majority of the city's 42,000 transit workers.

The union's executive board reaffirmed its instructions to TWU delegates to the CIO council to reject recommendations from national CIO officers that all local councils indorse the Marshall Plan and reject the presidential candidacy of Henry Wallace. The New York Council has refused to go along with national policy.

Quill has made no public announcement of his reasons for quitting as head of the council.

Mortgage Insurance Extended for Month

The House passed yesterday and returned to the Senate legislation extending for one month the Government's authority to insure mortgages on new homes. Passage was by voice vote.

The House previously had approved a bill to extend this authority for another year from its present March 31 expiration date. The Senate passed a 60-day extension measure, pending further study of a long-range bill. The House reduced the extension to 30 days before sending the bill back to the Senate.

Railroads Accept Pay Hike Proposal

Chicago, March 29 (AP).—The Nation's railroads today accepted the recommendation of President Truman's fact-finding board that engineers, firemen and switchmen be given a 15½-cent-an-hour pay increase.

The wage boost is the same as that accepted by the conductors and trainmen in November. The same increase had been awarded to 17 unions of nonoperating workers on the Nation's carriers by an arbitration board two months later.

Management estimated the cost of the wage increase and certain changes in working rules recommended at 80 million dollars a year.

The recommendations of the board are not mandatory. The chiefs of three unions said they are "very disappointed" with the report made Saturday by the fact-finding board. They added that all general chairmen of their unions were being called to meet next Monday in Cleveland.

Carrier spokesman said, however, that while they deplored taking on so large an additional financial burden, they felt it was in the public interest to uphold the "spirit and intent of the Railway Labor Act."

Unions involved in the dispute are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, and the Switchmen's Union of North America. In addition to the wage hike the board recommended adoption of 37 changes in working rules sought by the railroads and the unions.

"What this country amounts to depends on what happens to its homes."... That's why the life insurance companies and their agents are bringing you this series of messages from the nation's foremost authorities, to help you plan for happiness in the handling of your family money. (This is Message No. 33.)

"But, Daddy... it only cost 24 cents!"

MONEY... how shall our young people learn to handle it wisely? Experience is the best teacher, says this distinguished authority. And the sooner the teaching starts, the better!

by ANGELO PATRI
Noted author on the problems of raising children

ANGELO PATRI

IT'S SHAMEFUL how many grown-ups don't know how to handle money. "I wouldn't lend him a nickel!" we hear. Or "She spends money like water!" Or, "What penny-pinchers they are!" Handling money is a real art. And the time to start learning it is in childhood.

That's why a father I know (let's call him Mr. Perkins) decided to put his little girl, Peggy, on an allowance. As a start, he gave her a quarter to last the week.

Next day, she came home grandly wearing a battered old hat. She'd bought it at a play auction in a girl friend's attic. Cost: 24 cents!

Her father shook his head. But, being wise, said nothing! Of course, the glamour of the hat soon faded, and Peggy was begging Daddy for more money! Just a dime "to go to the store" with the other girls.

Then Mr. Perkins patiently explained why she couldn't have both the hat and the soda. But Peggy had an idea! "Can't I have the dime from next week?"

"Indeed, you can't!" he said firmly. "You'd be spending money you haven't got. And that is just what gets people into trouble!"

Such experience is the way a boy or girl learns to spend wisely. An allowance also helps them learn to save . . . by giving up candy bars this week, the boy learns he can buy that big yellow ball next week!

Another plan is to reward your child with a bonus every three months, if he has spent his money sensibly. Or, to encourage him to save in the "big bank," offer to double anything he deposits.

Never think of his allowance as pay for doing regular work around the house. That's his duty as one of the family. But if certain jobs are usually done outside—like washing the car, or shining Dad's shoes—let him earn this money; if he wants to. Earning is part of living.

Let your children learn about money through actual experience, and you'll worry much less about rash spending when they're on their own!

Give them a REGULAR AMOUNT! The allowance may be small. But it should be a definite amount, at a definite time.

Let them spend it THEMSELVES! If your child makes his mistakes when he's young, he'll make fewer when he's older.

Never DISCIPLINE with money! Don't withhold the allowance as a punishment. This puts a false money price on duty.

How to PLAN for Family Happiness

● Providing for children's allowances is only part of sound money planning. You'll be more likely to have enough money on hand when you need it, if you'll follow these few simple rules:

FOR TODAY... The first thing, for most families, is to take care of the larger fixed items such as rent, taxes, insurance, mortgage and installment payments, etc.

So start by adding up all your fixed items for the year, divide by 52, and set aside that amount weekly.

Also, every family should have a "rainy day" fund equal to at least four weeks' income. Set aside a little every week until you have that much. Then you'll know how much you can spend for food, clothing, heat, light, amusements, and so forth.

FOR TOMORROW... We live in a changing world. Family needs and circumstances change... living costs... taxes. If you have not had your life insurance program reviewed lately, the chances are 2 to 1 that it should be brought up to date.

There are so many ways in which you can use your life insurance that you should have the life insurance you now own checked to see if it is suited to your needs. This is a service that comes with your life insurance.

The person best equipped to help you with this is the well-trained life insurance agent. Get in touch with your agent, or write your life insurance company. INSTITUTE OF LIFE INSURANCE, 60 East 42nd Street, New York 17, N. Y.

Court Decision Clears Way For Construction of School

A District Court order yesterday cleared the way for construction of the long-delayed Kelly Miller Junior High School at 49th and Washington pl. ne.

The ruling throwing out an injuncton action tying up construction was given by Justice Richmond B. Keech. By this move, the residents of the two remaining dwellings on the school site must move by April 5.

The school, which will be for Negro children, was first authorized in 1942, according to Assistant Corporation Counsels John J. Donnelly and Oliver Gasch. At that time, the land was condemned and the householders there were all compensated for their dwellings. But unforseen difficulties prevented getting a contractor for construction of the project and the dwellers were allowed to remain on the site for a nominal rent.

However, the J. D. Hedin Construction Co. last November was given a $1,616,000 contract for the school, according to the company's attorney, Arthur G. Lambert. The contract, however, conveyed all remaining homes on the site to the construction company.

On December 1, an eviction order was obtained against the persons dwelling on the project. A court fight then was begun which delaped imposition of the order until March 17.

Then a District Court suit for an injunction and damages was instituted. Bringing this action were Mrs. Harriette Johnson, a school teacher in the Negro Schools, Mrs. Sarah Brown and Mrs. Margaret J. Taylor.

They contended that the proposed eviction was illegal and that they should be allowed to repurchase their homes for $100. The construction company held out for $600.

Yesterday's order dismissing the injunction decreed that the householders can have their homes if they pay $100 and the cost of moving the houses by April 5. Should they lose the pending damage suit, furthermore, they must pay an additional $500 a house to the construction company.

At Alexandria

5 Veterans Indorsed in Council Race

A group of Alexandria veterans last night indorsed five candidates, all veterans, for nomination in the April 6th Democratic primary for City Council.

Voters will at that time select nominees at large for council seats to stand election June 8.

Meeting in the Veterans of Foreign Wars Chapter House, 508 Wolfe st., the Veterans Committee for Veterans threw its support to Leroy S. Bendheim, Marshall J. Beverley, Roy C. Bragg, Claude R. Harris and John T. Worthington.

No Particular Slate

Campaign Chairman Addison B. Clohosey emphasized the committee was not supporting a particular slate of candidates. He said the voters will be asked merely to pick their choice from this group.

The committee pointed out each of the five men is an independent candidate and a qualified representative of all Alexandrians."

Slashes at Four Others

The committee lashed out at four other candidates who announced two weeks ago they would run as a slate. They are Albert A. Smoot, David D. Squires, Arthur F. Campbell and Randall J. Hicks.

After the rally, the meeting split up into ward groups to plan a campaign to get out the vote. The group will meet Saturday at 8 p. m. at Gadsby's Tavern to hear the five candidates they indorsed.

Pay Plea Planned for Health Officials

Higher salaries for the Montgomery County health officer and his assistant will be asked of the County Commissioners by five county groups and a State health official.

Fear that present "inadequate" salaries paid the two officials may cause them to take higher-paid jobs elsewhere have led to plans for the "emergency" appeal to the county commissioners on Thursday, spokesman for the groups said yesterday.

Ellicott Draws $6250

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, who has been health officer since 1932, earns $3150 in State funds and $3100 in county funds. His assistant, Dr. Claire A. Christman, assistant health officer for five years, draws $4140 paid by the county.

President Walter S. Pratt of the Montgomery County Tuberculosis Association, will be spokesman for the delegation, which is slated to include representatives of the Mental Hygiene Society, the County Medical Society, League of Women Voters, Tuberculosis Association, and the Public Health Lay Council.

Praises Both Highly

Pratt said the group is acting "on the basis of essential service in the county continuing without a break in the accepted plan of public health." He also praised both health officials highly.

The coordinated drive by the social welfare agencies and civic groups comes as county officials are currently preparing budget estimates for the 1948-9 fiscal year.

C. & P. Gets Permission to Build Annex

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. was given permission by the District Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday to erect a $1,200,000 annex alongside its present structure at 723 13th st. nw.

Permission was denied last November by the board, but the firm redesigned the building to conform with height regulations. The building will house toll equipment for long distance telephone service.

The board denied a request by Joseph Tucci to construct an eight-story bank and office building at the southwest corner of 16th and K sts. nw. The denial was based on a lack of parking facilities at the busy intersection.

George Washington University was permitted to establish an auto parking lot on the south side of I st. between 23d and 24th sts. nw., but authority was denied for erection of a public storage garage in the area.

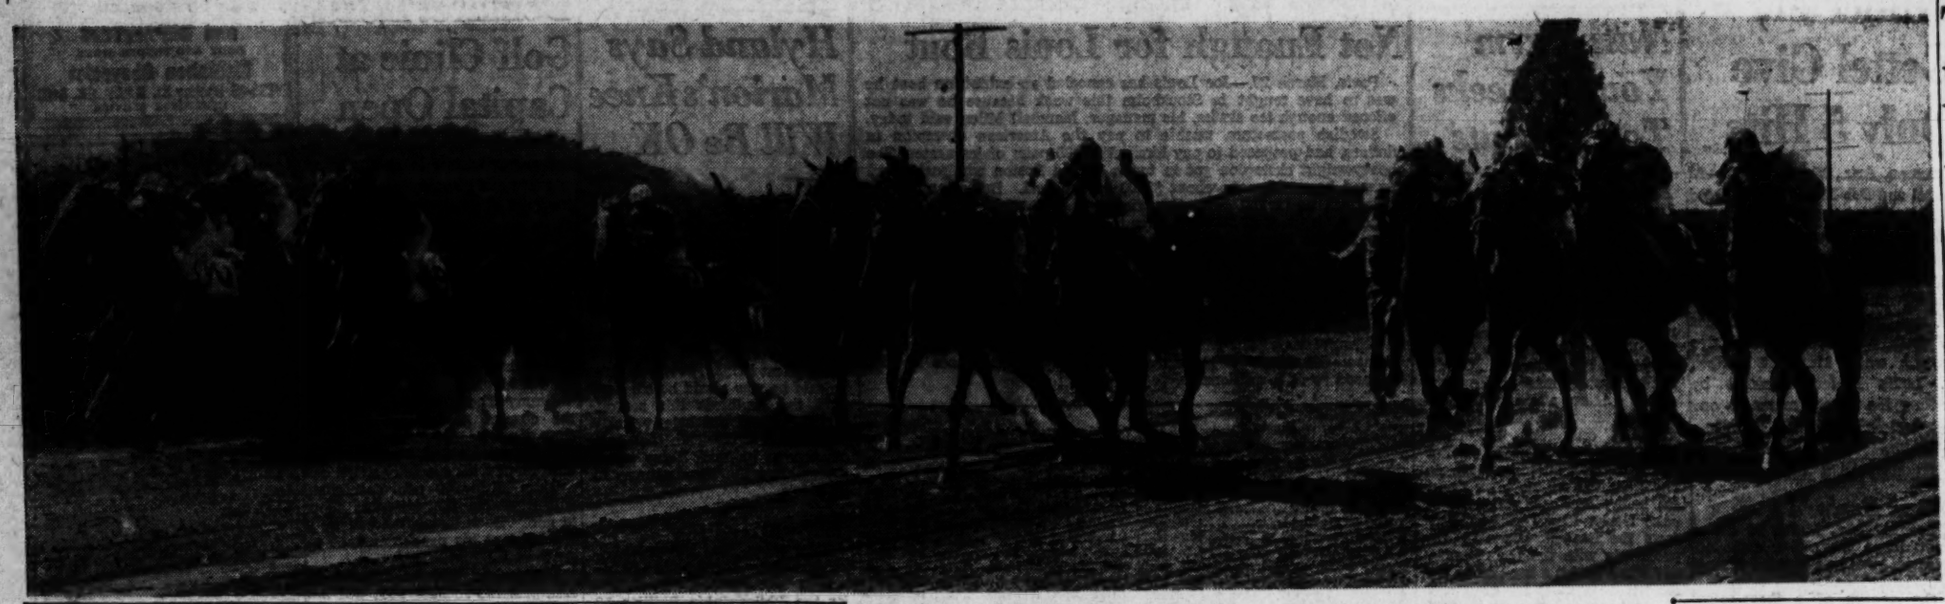
Repand, 25-1, Wins Bowie Opener Before 16,000



WITHOUT A GATE—The starting gate broke down after the second race at Bowie's opening of the Maryland racing season yesterday. Above, the field of 13 makes a gateless start in the third race, won by Peppers O, extreme right, before 16,000 fans

Thrillers Mark Card As Starting Gate Breaks

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., March 29—The starting gate broke down but the merry-go-round went round and round as a bigger-than-expected crowd of 16,000 greeted the start of the 1948 Maryland racing season here today.

Starter William Schamerhorn was forced to send the fields away using assistant starters and a flag after an axle snapped on the gate. There were some boos and beefs among the fans but, despite ragged starts with horses left at the post, the betting went on at a brisk pace, and most of the finishes were thrillers.

The last jump decided the seventeenth running of the $10,000 added Rowe Memorial. Repand, owned by S. W. Labrot, jr., of Annapolis, made the long stride that sent Incline, owned by Joe Tucci, of Washington, into defeat by a head. Third in the field of 13 was Charles Hartwick's Flag Drill.

Came From Behind

Repand's was a well earned victory. The colt was not off too well and had to lose ground on the outside to improve position, still he had the stretch punch under the handling of Jockey Claude Erickson, whose father, Henry, starred in the saddle here 15 years ago.

Scholarship was first to show in front after a 10-minute delay at the post. Jockey Red Howell opened a gap but along came Eagle Eye, owned by Gustave Ring of Washington, to get head and head with the leader.

Leaving the backstretch, Eagle Eye shook off Scholarship to assume a good advantage. Flag Drill was close up and took over second position at this point.

In the stretch, Eagle Eye began to wilt, Apprentice Jockey George Pappas sent Incline to the inside and the son of Bold Venture caught Eagle Eye and then drew out. However, Repand was flying on the outside.

In the final drive, Repand had the most punch—a head the most. Flag Drill held to the show money ahead of the tiring Eagle Eye.

The program began on a favorite downbeat but the public choices were conspicuous by their absence from the winner's circle thereafter. Pappas rode F. A. Piarulli's Frapia home in the first race at a $3.60 mutuel.

Then prices went up. Westwood Farms' Waxahachie won the second at $14.20 to bring a $26.20 payoff on the daily double.

The win mutuels were even more substantial thereafter. In addition to Repand's $52.20 in the sixth race, Mrs. Anthony Francis' Badge returned $50.80 in the seventh while Louis Sullivan's Khaygram supplied a $68.80 return in the eighth.

Fans left the track blaming the operators for not having a substitute starting gate on hand as is the case at most turf plants.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

ORLANDO, FLA., MARCH 29.—Joe McCarthy's genius with ball players is supposed to wipe out the little matter of the 14 games that separated the third-place Red Sox from the pennant-winning Yankees last season. At least in the view of Boston fans, it is, and it's significant that when Owner Tom Yawkey sought a man to handle his expensive collection of athletes he tapped McCarthy quickly.

POVICH

There never was much debate about McCarthy's talents. Despite the abundance of home run specialists and men for the job in every position he had when the Yankees were winning a lot of pennants, and despite Jimmy Dykes' charge that McCarthy was a push-button manager, he was generally acclaimed as the best. The Yankees swore by him. The news is that the Yankees now are wondering . . .

I was talking to one of McCarthy's former Yankees the other day at St. Petersburg, and he had some comment on McCarthy's big decision to shift Johnny Pesky from shortstop to third base, instead of Vernon Stephens. "We thought the Red Sox were going to be tough to beat," said the big Yankee, "but if McCarthy plays 'em that way, we'll lick 'em."

SO AT SARASOTA yesterday I asked McCarthy about that and he wasn't perturbed at all. "I didn't move Pesky because he couldn't play shortstop," he said. "Why don't my friends let me do the worrying? Pesky and Stephens are interchangeable, anyway. If my move is wrong, I'll be the first one to know it."

McCarthy rationalizes his move well enough. "Pesky can do everything a good third baseman should, and he can scramble a little bit faster than Stephens. He'll get those slow-hit balls better, I think. He's been making all the plays you'd ask of a good third baseman. Anybody who can play short like Pesky did, has the arm to play third. He likes the job and I'm not asking him to do anything he doesn't want to do."

The popular supposition was that McCarthy wouldn't disturb Pesky at shortstop and that Stephens would get the third base job, where the demands on ground coverage are not as great. Stephens lacks the steadiness at shortstop that Pesky always displayed, and third base appeared to be his proper spot.

ANYWAY, McCARTHY is vastly more excited about another development in the Red Sox camp. He's babbling, almost, about the showing of Stan Spence as a first baseman. The former Washington outfielder who hadn't played more than 50 games at first base in his big league career, is now the sensation of Sarasota and has the first base job all to himself.

McCarthy handed Spence a first baseman's mitt the first day he reported, and now he's ready to open the season with him. In fact, Murrell Jones, the Boston first baseman of last season, has seen so little action in the exhibition games that he's about to ask somebody to introduce him to McCarthy so his presence in camp can be noted.

"Spence hasn't done anything wrong yet," says McCarthy. "You'd think he's been a first baseman all his life. I always knew he had a great arm in the outfield, but he has an infield arm, too. No first baseman in the league will throw any better. And he's the best hitter on the club so far. We made a great trade with Washington."

AT THE OUTSET, McCarthy confesses he was curious about Spence. "I didn't know the fellow's habits. I'm an early riser, the first man up on every club I'm with, but every morning when I came into the lobby I'd find Spence around. I couldn't figure whether he was just getting in, or whether he was an early riser like myself.

"I found out later about his fishing. They told me about his two great loves—base hits and fishing in that order. I learned he was going down to the shore just to check on the tides in case we were rained out and he might get a day off."

McCarthy's pitching is supposed to be uncertain, with such as Tex Hughson, Mickey Harris and Dave Ferriss here with operated-on arms. But he displays no worry on that score. "I think our hitting will take care of a lot of our pitching worries," he said.

Yanks, Bosox Tie 2-2 After 17 Innings

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 29 (AP).—The New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox set an American League record for Citrus Circuit exhibitioning by playing 4 hours and 2 minutes to a 17-inning 2-2 tie here today.

Umpire Bill Summers called the game to allow the Red Sox to catch their bus back to Sarasota.

The Red Sox got the first run in the ninth on Bill Johnson's wide throw of Al Simononis' grounder and Vern Stephens' triple off Joe Page. The Yanks tied it on singles by Bobby Brown and Sherman Lollar, plus an infield out.

In the tenth, each side scored, the Red Sox getting their run on four straight walks by Lefty Tom Byrne. Jack Phillips drove in the Yanks' tally after Lefty John McCall had walked Lindell, who was sacrificed along by Ed Stewart.

Byrne pitched the last eight innings for the Yanks, allowing only one run and one hit, while fanning seven. The Yanks had men on second and third with two out in the seventeenth when Crosetti unsuccessfully tried to squeeze in a run.

Nats Farm Young Meeks To Lookouts

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 29—The new, long-range planning of the Nats, in contrast to previous policy of jumping talent out of the B leagues, was demonstrated today by Manager Joe Kuhel.

Kuhel recommended to Owner Clark Griffith that Shortstop Sam Meeks, a somewhat sensational performer in his brief trial with the club, be returned to Chattanooga for more seasoning. Griffith agreed.

The action was taken despite Kuhel's recognition of the magnificence of Meeks' fielding and promise of sharp hitting. The 24-yaer-old rookie was borrowed from Chatatnooga a week ago for a "look," and apparently was crowding Johnny Sullivan for the regular shortsop job.

Promotion Anyway

"He may be ready right now," said Kuhel, "but we don't want to take any chances on bringing him up too quickly. He'll be a better ball player after a year in Double A ball. After all, it's a promotion for him. He was at Charlotte last year.

Kuhel's is a new approach to the young talent in the Nats' farm system. Under former Washington managers and with Griffith's approval, the club had consistently jumped players from their class B farms to the Nats. It was a shoot-for-the-moon policy.

"We've got the boy to consider," Kuhel pointed out. "We could bring him up now, and perhaps he'd do all right, but what if he failed? That's heart-break for any kid. He'd go back to the minors minus some of his spark, perhaps. There's a lot of difference between big league pitching and the pitching in the Tri-State League where he hit .335. If he's got it, we'll know in six months."

Meanwhile, the disturbing factor in the Nats' camp is the sour performance of their pitchers. Sid Hudson, alone, has looked impressive in the exhibition games. Early Wynn, Ray Scarborough and Mickey Haefner, all of them supposed to be starting pitchers, have had their ears pinned back with painful regularity.

MANAGER JOE KUHEL gave up today on two of his rookie

Pirates Are Hopeful With New Pilot, Strength in Three Spots

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series reviewing prospects for the 1948 season.)

San Francisco, March 29 (AP).—Pittsburgh may not figure strongly as a pennant contender this season but new manager Bill Meyer's is positive the club will make a better showing than last year's. The Pirates finished in a last place tie in the 1947 National League race.

There is a long range baseball building program on at Pittsburgh with youthful talent to be blended with the ageing stock.

Meyer, making his debut as a big league pilot, is part of the program.

Although spring training games haven't stamped the Pirates as a fiery crew, Meyer sizes up his team as stronger down the middle this year. The catching, second base area and center field have been bolstered.

Second Sacker Romie Basgall and Shortstop Stan Rojek, acquired in the big player-cash deal with Brooklyn, may provide a type double play combination no seen in Pittsburgh in years. The Pirates had the worst double play record in the league last season.

The outfield has been strengthened by the acquisition of Johnny Hopp from the Boston Braves. Hopp, in center, will be flanked by 51-home run hitter Ralph Kiner in left. Three rightfielders are on deck. They are Fred (Dixie) Walker, 37-year oldster from the Dodgers; Max West, who led the Coast League in homers with San Diego last season, and holdover Wally Westlake.

Manager Meyer thinks Walker will be good for 75 games or so and that his experience and spirit will have a steadying influence.

Elmer Riddle, a right hander from Cincinnati's Reds, has been the surprise package and leading hurler of the spring training. The club also has some prime freshman talent in Steve Nagy, Indianapolis graduate, and Richshanders Jim Keckley (Spartanburg, S. C.), Cal McLish and Forrest Main, up from Kansas City. Main may grab off the relief job.

The infield offers the principal question in that Ed Stevens at first, Basgall at second and Rojek at short must fit together. At third Frank Gustine needs no introduction. He hit .297 and knocked in 67 runs last season to become most valuable in the league.

Women's Golf Group Starts Junior Program for Girls

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

A program of golf for girls has been initiated by the Women's District Golf Association, Mrs. William F. Patterson, president of the group, announced last night.

The decision to do something about increasing girls' interest in golf is the first step in this direction since 1935, when the last junior girls golf championship was held here.

Initial more in developing a girls' golf program was the election of a junior committee headed by Mrs. Theodore Peyser, jr., of Woodmont Country Club. Other members of the committee are Mrs. Hugh Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, Mrs. Gordon Fisher, of Indian Spring.

Questionnaires are being drawn up and will be sent to all area schools, junior colleges and colleges to determine the amount of interest in golf by the girls.

"If we find enough enthusiam among the girls to develop group play," said Mrs. Patterson, "I think that general interest will soon pick up. I feel sure that the golf professionals at area clubs will be happy to cooperate with us in getting this program underway."

Mrs. Patterson said that to her knowledge only three top flight women golfers have been developed locally—Helen Detweiler, Marion Brown and Virginia Pope Kreuzburg. She added that there has never been an organized program for junior girls golf in Washington.

After the 1935 junior championship, which was won by Miss Detweiler, competition came to a dead stop. The 1936 tournament had so few entries that it never was played. Up to this time junior golf was limited to girls whose parents were members of private clubs.

The present intended WDGA program will not limit itself to club members' children but will seek to provide instruction and companionship on the links for all girls from 13-21.

The new program, which will probably be modeled after the successful junior program for boys devised by Frank Emmet and supported by the District Golf Association, was discussed at yesterday's WDGA meeting at the Parrot Restaurant.

"Got His Number"

Horne Says He'll Jab Rocky Silly

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Sonny Horne feels the same way about Rocky Graziano that Joe Walcott feels about Joe Louis—"I've got his number."

He said so yesterday when someone asked him how it felt to be pitted against a fighter who can knock you twitching with just one punch.

"He's got to hit you before he can hurt you," Horne replied, "and I intend to see that he doesn't hit me, at least not hard."

The 24-year-old Niles, Ohio, fancy-dan said that doesn't mean he planned to stage a 10-round retreat against the middleweight champion in their nontitle bout At Uline's Monday.

"I'll just befuddle him, jab him to pieces, just like I did in our first fight. Graziano can't box a lick, you know."

In that first encounter, a 1946 Madison Square Garden production, Graziano was a 4-1 favorite and 8-5 to win by a knockout. He didn't even score a knockdown and, what's more, had to come from behind to win a split decision.

That was two years ago and look what's happened since. Graziano has gotten himself into a peck of trouble, but he's also acquired the world's middleweight championship.

All Horne got out of that scrap was a $20,000 purse and the run-around from Graziano. He's spent most of his time since then outfoxing just about everyone he's been matched with and trying to catch up with the Rock.

Reminded that it wouldn't be considered quite so nice by Jersey City promoters, who have sewed up a Graziano-Tony Zale title match for June, if he should upset Graziano here, Horne bellowed:

"The hell with that kind of thinking. I've got a little at stake, too. Suppose I win, which I certainly expect to do. Can Graziano say he won't give me a shot at the title then?

I'm 24, married and have two kids. I've been knocking around in this business for almost 10 years . . . even lied about my age to get my first fight. If I'm ever going anywhere as a boxer I've got to do it fast. Monday, against Grazanio, is the best place I can think of to start."

Horne hasn't fought since he made Smuggy Hursey look like an amateur here in February. He worked as a dockhand in New York for a month and then when he signed for the Graziano bout went into training in upstate New York.

Helooked sharp as a tack yesterday at the Liberty A. C. gym. Today he'll box six rounds with Aaron Perry, the local ex-hot-shot who's in the midst of another comeback. That's down for 2 p. m. Graziano gets in Wednesday night and will wind up his work at Liberty the next day.

RING ROUNDUP—The boxing commission yesterday said it was under the impression that the $1.00 Graziano receives for the bout will be his only payday here, that the Rock had agreed to pay his own training expenses. . . . Herbie Biff Jones, who fought Ray Lewis at Turner's last night, has been matched with Jimmy Simms of Philly in the eight-round supporting bout to the Billy Thompson-Jimmy Bivins show in the Quaker City April 12. . . . Sixty percent of the advance sale for the Graziano-Horne show has come from out-of-town patrons.

Nats Farm Young Meeks To Lookouts

hurlers, Earl Davis and Bill Dozier . . . They were optioned to Charlotte . . . It now appears that Joe Jones, the submarine baller up from Orlando, and Forrest Thompson, southpaw from Atlanta, will be he only two of the crop of a dozen rookies to be retained . . . Unless Romon Garcia, the Cuban, puts in an appearance . . . Garcia is the mystery man of the Nats' camp. After pitching five innings against the Athletics and allowing only one hit three weeks ago, he took a powder back to Cuba on the excuse he needed some dental work done. He hasn't ben seen since . . . Jake Early, happy to get away from the Browns, broke in impressively with the Nats yesterday when he hit a two-run triple for the B team and picked two men off base . . . The Nats didn't do a darn thing today. Kuhel told everybody to make it a day of complete rest.

High Track Meets Put Off

Five dual interhigh track and field meets, scheduled for this week have been postponed because of the Easter holidays.

The Western-Wilson meet, originally slated for last Wednesday, and postponed until today, will be held instead next Tuesday afternoon at Western, with Roosevelt also participating.

Four meets scheduled for this Thursday will also be moved back. Central at McKinley Tech will take place May 4, Calvin Coolidge at Western will be held April 20, and Anacostia at Eastern has been postponed indefinitely. The Roosevelt-Wilson meet will be held with Western next Tuesday at Western.

The interhigh track coaches will meet next week with Hardy Pearce, director of public high athletics with a possibility that the entire league track schedule will be revised. Several of the league meets conflict with previously arranged meets against non-league schools.

2600 Pairs of Swedish Skates Not Enough for Louis Bout

Paris, March 29.—Joe Louis has canceled an exhibition bout he was to have fought in Stockholm this week because he was not offered enough ice skates, his manager, Marshall Miles, said today.

Swedish promoters, unable to pay the American champion in dollars, had proposed to pay him with 2600 pairs of ice skates. The heavyweight champion got in touch with a Boston wholesaler and figured he could make about $9000 on the deal. But after further reflection he turned down the offer.

Louis also turned down an offer to fight in Paris. The champion, who arrived here last night from London, declined to explain his refusal during a press conference today. The French press explained with some bitterness that the profit system had something to do with it and that Louis was a capitalist.

"The champion is too greedy," wrote the Paris newspaper Francesoir. He wants 500,000 francs a minute for a three-round exhibition." This would add up to some three million francs, and in France, despite defiation, a man with one million francs is still referred to as a millionaire.

Woman Jailed As Spy Gets Writ Of Habeas Corpus

Charleston, W. Va., March 29 (AP).—A woman who pleaded guilty to wartime spying for the Germans won a habeas corpus writ here today.

Federal Judge Ben Moore issued the writ to Theresa Behrens, who contended she was fraudulently induced to make the plea in a Detroit Federal court in 1944.

A hearing on her contention was set by Judge Moore for April 19 here. Miss Behrens is now serving a 20-year term in the Federal Reformatory for Women at Alderson.

The woman was charged with being a member of a ring headed by "Countess" Grace Buchanan-Dineen. She and others were accused of conspiring to provide the German Reich with important information about this country's national defense.

She contended she was not represented by counsel when she entered her plea and was sentenced by Federal Judge E. J. Moinet in Detroit March 25, 1944.

Judge Moore refused last September to grant a writ, unless counsel for Miss Behrens produced additional evidence to support the contentions. No such evidence was offered.

The judge's action today was taken after the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals remanded the case for a hearing of the evidence.

London Woman Sues Wealthy Baltimore Mate

Baltimore, March 29 (AP).—A divorce suit with an international flavor was filed here today by Mrs. Margaret McAleese Shirley, London, England, against her wealthy Baltimore husband.

Asking an absolute divorce and alimony, her suit claims William Shirley abandoned her at Split, Yugoslavia, when Europe was on the brink of World War II.

The suit said Shirley ordered her from his yacht and put her belongings on the dock at Split.

Shirley talked with the British Consul at Split, she said, and then told her:

"War is inevitable. My country will never be at war. Your country will be at war. You are British. Get out—I cannot protect you."

She said he ignored her pleas to have her name put on his passport to protect her. She eventually got back to London by way of France and Gibralter with the aid of "kind friends."

Farm Buildings Burn Near Berryville, Va.

Berryville, Va., March 29 (AP).—A brush fire, fanned by strong winds, destroyed four outbuildings on the Norman Ashbury farm 4 miles east of here this afternoon.

The fire broke out about 2:30 p. m. and was brought under control several hours later by fire trucks from Charles Town, W. Va. At the time of the blaze, the local fire engine was at the scene of a minor field fire at the nearby farm of Mrs. F. G. Lady.

The buildings on the Ashbury farm were used for the storage of grain and tools.

Country Institute To Begin April 6

Baltimore, March 29 (AP).—The Episcopal Dioceses of Maryland Washington and Easton, in cooperation with the University of Maryland extension service, will sponsor a town and country institute here April 6.

Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the university extension service and dean of the college of agriculture, will preside.

JUST FOLLOW THESE SIMPLE STEPS

1. Identify the six objects at the top of the puzzle. (The name of each object is a five letter word.)
2. See the table of letter values below the puzzle. Each letter is worth a certain number of points. If you have identified the objects correctly you will find that the total value of the 30 letters that spell out the names of the six objects is 544 points.
3. Now your job is to place those words into the shaded letterpaths, each of which has space for 5 letters. You can place any of the six words in any of the paths. Of course, the words must read from top to bottom or left to right.
4. You will now note there are 12 empty white squares remaining in the diagram. By inserting letters of your own choosing into those white spaces and by combining these letters with the interlocking letters you have already filled into the grey squares, you can spell out 5 extra words. These extra words, too, must read from top to bottom or from left to right.
5. Of course, it is easy to fill in 12 extra letters to get 5 extra words but remember your job is to use 12 letters that will give you a high score when the value of those letters (as shown in the table of letter values) is added to the 544 points you will have already earned if you identified the pictured objects correctly.

To repeat. Your job is to complete the diagram after filling in the shaded paths by inserting 12 extra letters which spell out 5 extra words, using letters the point value of which, when added to the point value of the 30 letters which spell out the pictured objects, give you the highest score you can achieve. Study the sample puzzle below.

READ HOW WE SOLVED THIS SAMPLE PUZZLE

DIAGRAM No. 1

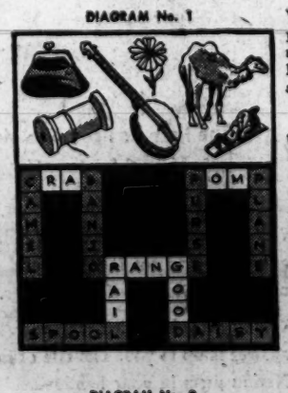

DIAGRAM No. 2

We have worked out here a sample puzzle to show you how to go about solving the Official Puzzle, and we have also worked out alternate answers to get a higher score.

First we identified the objects pictured: PURSE ... SPOOL ... BANJO ... DAISY ... CAMEL ... PLANE and then added up the value of all the letters in the names of these six objects (using the table of letter values given for the Official Puzzle) and found the total was 613 points. Next, as you can see in the first diagram, we filled in these six names in the six shaded paths and then added 12 extra letters which gave us 5 extra words: CRAB ... POMP ... ORANGE ... RAIL and GOOD. These 12 extra letters which we had filled into the white spaces had a total value of 189 points thus giving us a total score of 802 points when added to the letters we had filled into the shaded squares.

We felt we could do better by a little further work so with some thought we changed our 12 extra letters and got five different extra words, as you can see in Diagram 2 left. We changed CRAB to COMB, POMP to PULP, ORANGE to ORIOLE, RAIL to ROLL and GOOD to LEAD. We thus attained a total of 245 points for the 12 letters we filled into the white spaces giving ourselves a total score of 858. However, as you can see in Diagram 3 by a little more thought and a few changes we finally reached 895 points as our score for the sample puzzle. Now, if you get the idea, why not try your hand at the Official Puzzle. We think you will find it fun—and perhaps a little simple skill can bring you riches.

THE OFFICIAL RULES Please read carefully

1. $51,265.00 will be awarded in accordance with these rules to the 270 contestants who achieve the highest scores in solving the Official Contest Puzzle. This sum will be awarded in three prize groups: Group No. 1 with a first prize of $3,000.00; Group No. 2 with a first prize of $10,000,00; Group No. 3 with a first prize of $20,000.00. Each group has an additional list of 89 prizes each, making a total of 270 prizes in all. (See official list of prizes.)

2. To enter Group 1 a contestant must send in with his answer to the puzzle a donation of $2.00 to the Disabled American Veterans Service Foundation; to enter Group 2 a donation of $5.00 is required and to enter Group 3 a donation of $10.00 must be sent in. A contestant may compete in any one, two or all three prize groups and once having entered may transfer his entry from any group or groups to any other group or groups by submitting the necessary donation.

3. Each prize group will be judged separately. The contestant who submits the highest score in Group 1 will be entitled to first prize in Group 1. Second prize in Group 1 will be awarded to the contestant with the second highest score submitted in that list and so on until the 90 prizes in Group 1 have been awarded. Prizes in Groups 2 and 3 will be awarded similarly.

4. In the event of ties, as many prizes will be reserved in each list as there are tied contestants, before any prizes are awarded for lower scores. These tied contestants will be required to send in answers to a series of five tie-breaking puzzles. We will first judge the answers to puzzle No. 1 in this tie-breaking series and then award the tied-for prizes in the order of the scores submitted. If this is not sufficient to break all ties, and permit awarding of all the tied-for prizes, then the answers to puzzle No. 2 submitted by the remaining tied contestants will be judged. If ties still remain we will then judge the answers of the still tied contestants to puzzle No. 3 and so on, if necessary, to puzzle No. 5. This may mean that puzzles Nos. 2 to 5 may not have to be judged. However, if further needed to break ties a second and even a third series of such tie-breaking puzzles (to be judged similarly) may be used. All tie-breaking puzzles will be similar to the original puzzle with clearly identifiable objects, though they may be more difficult and more numerous and will have words to be built on them. A limited time, the same for each contestant, will be given for solving tie-breaking puzzles and they will be judged on the same basis as the original puzzle. Tied contestants will not be required to make any further contributions. Should final ties remain after the third series of tie-breaking puzzles, each tied contestant will receive the full amount of the prize for which he or she is tied.

5. The contest is open to any resident of the United States of America except employees of the DAV and its Departments, the DAV Service Foundation, its advertising agency, or service organization, or members of their families. Also excluded is anyone who has won $500.00 or more in cash or in kind in a previous contest or any member of his or her family. Only one member of an immediate family living at the same address may compete. A contestant may win a prize in each prize group.

6. Each contestant may send in only one answer to the official puzzle, however, at no extra cost, one substitute score can be submitted on the Official Substitute Entry Form which will be sent to each contestant already numbered and registered in the contestant's name. Where two scores are submitted, only the higher score will be considered as that person's entry. That score will serve to compete in any one, two or all three prize groups depending on the amount donated.

7. Neatness or decoration of answer will not count. Unsigned or illegible entries, however, will not be considered. The first solution must be submitted on an official entry form and must be accompanied by a minimum contribution of $2.00.

8. In solving the puzzle practically any word in the English language that fits may be used. Errors on the part of contestants in totalling their score or in filling in words will disqualify said contestants. Words that may not be used in the solution of the puzzle are proper names or hyphenated words, prefixes, or suffixes, abbreviations or contractions. With those exceptions, any word may be used provided it appears in bold face type in the A-Z main alphabetical section (footnotes excluded) of the final word authorities for this contest which will be the Merriam-Webster New International Unabridged Dictionary (1947 Edition), and Funk & Wagnalls New Standard Dictionary, Unabridged (1946) Edition. Further excluded are plurals unless they appear in bold-face type and words that appear only as part of a two or more word phrase such as "suey" in chop suey. No correspondence will be entered into with contestants regarding the use of words.

9. All entries must be sent by mail to
DAV Service Foundation
Puzzle Contest
Washington 9, D. C.
and must be postmarked before midnight May 31, 1948 and received before midnight June 14, 1948 to be eligible for consideration. The deadline date for mailing and receipt of substitute scores and/or additional donations in order to transfer from one group or groups to another group or groups is 30 days later than these dates. The DAV Service Foundation will not be responsible for lost or delayed communications or for clerical errors and each contestant by the act of sending in an entry agrees to be bound by these rules and conditions and, in any event, with the decision of the DAV Service Foundation on any and all matters affecting the contest.

10. Any contestant who accepts help of any kind from anyone (same family or household excepted) will be disqualified. Sworn statements to this effect will be required from all winners.

Agriculture and Interior Departments May Be Reorganized

A sweeping reorganization of the Agriculture and Interior Departments will be proposed in a bill that's being written by a group of powerful GOP congressional leaders.

Chairman Hope of the House Agriculture Committee, is slated to introduce the measure which its sponsors hope to see enacted into law before the end of the congressional session. Briefly, the bill will provide:

That the Bureau of Land Management, the Fish and Wildlife Service, and the agricultural land functions of the Reclamation Bureau all be transferred from Interior to Agriculture.

That a Resources Administration be set up in Agriculture and that its chief be made responsible for the Nation's land resources. In the agency would be the Forest Service, Soil Conservation, Bureau of Land Management, and part of the Production and Marketing Administration among other activities.

That a county agricultural program board be set up in each county—similar to the old Triple A—to encourage farmers to cooperate with the Government to conserve land resources.

The bill, it's reported, will carry many other features that would affect present operations of both Interior and Agriculture. It will have many congressional supporters. The House and Senate Appropriations committees have been demanding a centralization of the Government's conservation functions. The bill is sure to be opposed by Interior officials.

CCA: A political fight apparently has stopped the expected nomination of F. B. Lee to be administrator of Civil Aeronautics. A career man, Lee failed to get the support of the Democratic National Committee. He was enthusiastically supported, however, by Commerce Secretary Harriman.

The committee has indorsed Delos Rentzel, a Texas Democrat, who is president of Aeronautical Radio, Inc., for the important post. Rentzel's firm handles communications for all airlines. He has the inside track unless Lee's friends can get him last-minute political indorsements. Lee knows the job. He's now acting administrator, but this is an election year.

MARITIME:—Two Maritime officials are among those who are being mentioned to succeed Commissioner Richard Parkhurst when his term expires in two weeks. They are Dan Brierley of Maine, who is chief of the maintenance and repair division, and Admiral Richard McNulty, who is n the training division.

Parkhurst isn't a candidate for renomination. The unrealistic $10,000 ceiling on his salary had something to do with his planned return to private life. Incidentally, the basic law says the salary of a Maritime commissioner shall be $12,000 a year, but the House Appropriations Committee won't approve more than $10,000. That committee has been responsible for running several good people out of Government.

INTERIOR: A new unit for its Bureau of Mines is in the cards. Awaiting action on the House floor is a bill to pay subsidies up to 80 million dollars a year to operators of lead, zinc and other metals in short supply. The bill is aimed toward the building up of a stockpile of strategic metals. Administration of the bill would be in a new agency to be set up in the Mines Bureau.

RFC: And talking about stockpiling, it's entirely possible that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will be given many more duties growing out of the defense and European relief programs. The stockpiling of scarce goods would be one of them. Also, the operation of defense plants now on hand and the financing of new ones. RFC is scheduled to lay off several hundred additional employes before June 30. The layoffs will be canceled if it's given additional chores.

CIVIL SERVICE: An exam for engineer jobs here and in 17 western States will be announced soon. The jobs will pay from $3397 to $5905 to start. . . . An exam for information specialists to work in State's Voice of America program is being planned. The jobs are top ranking, from CAF-13 through CAF-15. It will be several months, if by that time, before a general information test is given. . . . A written test for the 1665 veterans who have applied for messenger jobs will be given here April 5, 7 and 8.

NOTES: Caroline H. Wentworth has retired from Veterans' Administration after 30 years of Federal service . . . The full Senate Civil Service Committee will meet today on the pay raise bill. It will consider a bill that was revealed in detail here yesterday . . . A major pay development in the House committee may come any day now. A new bill has been drafted that would raise most all Federal salaries by a flat $320.

LESSON: In Sunday's column I had what I thought was a sane and sensible story on studies being made by the military on possible further decentralization of Federal activities here. Now, I know for sure that many people have the war jitters.

6000 Auto Owners Due To Be Tardy For '48 Tags

Keneipp Expects They'll Run True To Form; Final Day Is Tomorrow

If District motorists run true to form, about 6000 of them are going to miss Wednesday's deadline for getting 1948 automobile tags.

This was the prediction yesterday of George E. Keneipp, director of vehicles and traffic, based on last year's experience.

Not that these people will be left on lines when the license windows close at 4 p. m., either.

"These are the people," Keneipp thought, "who just never got around to it, who were just too busy, or were out of town. Some of them, no doubt, may not have the money for the fee."

Applicants for tags at the Municipal Center were being served in as quickly as 1½ minutes yesterday—a rush day in which a total of more than 4000 sets were sold.

"Last year," Keneipp observed, "there wasn't an applicant in sight when the windows were closed at 4 p. m. on March 31."

Today and Wednesday, Keneipp expects to sell another 10,000 sets of tags—and handle the business without a jam.

The expected total of more than 133,000 sales by the deadline, plus the more than 50,000 Keneipp expects by next March 31, would bring this year's total above the 1941 record of 182,781 registrations.

Keneipp's only complaint on behalf of his customers is the long wait for automobile titles. But he's doing something about that, too. A new system of processing title applications, worked out by Herman S. Cole, Keneipp's administrative officer, will be in use about May 1, Keneipp hopes. With it, he figures he can cut the time it takes to get title during the rush season from about 3 hours to 1.

Prince Georges Taxes to Rise Only 2 Cents

Despite earlier forecasts of a 40 to 50 cent increase in the Prince Georges County tax rate, the levy this year will be boosted by only two cents.

This was revealed last night by William A. Carson, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners, at a dinner meeting of the conty's Chamber of Commerce in the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club.

Carson disclosed that a record budget, to be approved today by the Commissioners, will call for a tax rate of $1.97 on each $100 valuation for the fiscal year starting July 1. Current rate is $1.95.

Unanticipated Revenue

Carson predicted a week ago that the levy for the coming year might be as high as $2.45.

Primarily responsible for the unexpectedly light tax increase is the fac tthat the county will receive from unanticipated sources, Carson said. Also, he pointed out, a reassessment of real estate and utility properties was considerably higher than expected.

Total valuation of property in the county was set at 160 million dollars by the reassessment, in comparison to a figure of 145 million dollars for the current year, Carson explained.

The County budget for the 1948-49 session will amount to $3,844,056. This year's budget is $2,983,950.

School Picture Bad

A gloomy picture of school prospects in teh county for the next 10 years was painted by T. Gardner Shugart, superintendent of schools, who said that "double shifts" in all county schools would b einevitable by 1949.

Shugart said the County lacks funds to provide building facilities adequate to keep pace with an increase in school population, and added it possibly would be 1959 befor epresent problems can be solved.

Shugart said all high schools in the county would be using double shifts by September of 1949, but that elementary schools would have to go on a two-shift basis just as soon as they were filled to capacity. He said that most elementary schools in Prince Georges are operating at capacity.

According to Shugary, at least 10 million dollars is needed to alleviate present school conditions, but "even if we had means of raising the money, it would be several years before the new schools could be built according to present day standards," he added.

Equally discouraging was the financial status of State roads outlined by T. Howard Duckett, an attorney, who is a member of the Governor's Advisory Council on State Roads. Duckett said building costs are so high that little can be accomplished with funds now available to the State Roads Commission, and Maryland authorities have had little success in their efforts to obtain Federal aid in the road building program.

Duckett said it would be about three months before Prince Georges will know just how much it will receive of a 100 million dollar appropriation for highway construction approved by the State Legislature earlier this year.

Easter Egg Festivals Attract Thousands

AT FORT SLOCUM PARK—Rolling their eggs here are, from left: Robert Howell, 4, 1309 Bryant st. ne.; Peggy Werner, 3, 17 Darwin ave., Takoma Park; Mary Stephens, 3, 5110 7th st. st. nw.; Dolores Bourne, 3, and John Barbers, 7, 1313 Bryant st. ne. They were among a group of 50 who played games and rolled eggs under auspices of the ladies auxiliary to Capital Forest 104, Tall Cedars of Lebanon. Races and contests for prettiest baskets also were held

AT HYATTSVILLE—A crowd estimated at 10,000 persons turned out yesterday for the thirteenth annual Easter egg hunt sponsored jointly by the Kiwanis Club of Prince Georges County and the Sidney Lust theaters. This picture shows some of them crowded around the stage for the crowning of the queen and the vaudeville show. Three thousand dyed, boiled eggs were hidden in the woods, 500 of them netting their finders cash prizes ranging from 5 cents up to the $5 awarded for golden egg

Children Defy Chilly Day For Egg-Rolls

The kids took over yesterday in Easter egg-rolling contests at the Zoo, Soldiers Home, and parks throughout the city as their parents stood by shivering in the cool day.

At the Zoo, they gulped hot dogs, peanuts and popcorn when they weren't romping on the hill in front of the lion house. The Zoo's restaurant had nearly 100 extra men working.

The weather, according to Capt. J. A. Collins, head of the Zoo police force, kept the crowd down to 35,000, some 10,000 less than last year.

Collins also reported that 20 youngsters were "lost" yesterday. Police took them to the lion house, where an improved nursery keeps them happy until their parents arrive. On other Easter Mondays, he said, "we usually have 40 or 50 children who get separated from their parents."

In Fort Slocum Park, 3d and Oglethorpe sts. nw., more than 75 youngsters flipped eggs at the first annual Easter egg-roll of the Tall Cedars of Lebanon.

Elmer F. Stein, acting fire department chief and head of the Tall Cedars, said the children and their parents arrived at 10 a. m. and didn't call it quits until 3 p. m. The ladies auxiliary arranged the event.

At Soldiers Home, from 1200 to 1500 Washingtonians and their offspring rolled eggs and shivered in what Luther Grubb, chief of police there, termed a "small year."

"We only had about a third as many people as we had last year," he said. Like the Zoo police chief, he blamed the weather. "All in all, though," he said "everything went fine."

Sorrell Is Freed In Film Strike

Los Angeles, March 29 (AP).—Nine Conference of Studio Unions' officials, including Herbert K. Sorrell, its president, were acquitted by a Superior Court judge today of conspiracy in connection with picket line disturbances in the film strike.

Judge William R. McKay, in a 19-page decision, ruled that the district attorney had failed to establish a conspiracy to violate court orders regulating picketing.

The eight film unionists were indicted in November, 1946.

6 P-TAs Back School Funds In New Budget

Spokesmen of some half dozen Arlington parent-teacher associations last night endorsed school allotments in the 1948-49 budget of the Arlington County board.

The budget provides for a record high of $2,444,053 to meet county school needs, as compared to last year's $1,728,023.

Mrs. Florence Cannon, county board member, however, stated at the outset of the open hearing at the county courthouse on the proposed county budget that she opposed a teacher's cost of living bonus and dependency benefits, included in the school budget.

She urged increases be given the health department, libraries, public utilities commission and fire department.

Public opposition to the entire $8,380,108 county budget was scattered. Some citizens opposed tax rate increases the new budget will necessitate. It was estimated the budget will raise the rate from $3.25 to $3.75 per $100 assessed valuation.

The entire 50-cent increase, one pointed out, is for schools.

Assault Charge Against Teacher Dismissed

Waxing nostalgic about the good old days of education by thrashing, a Hyattsville trial magistrate yesterday dismissed a mother's assault charge against her son's teacher.

The complainant, Mrs. Alfred Hiortdahl of Riggs rd., Hyattsville, had sworn to a warrant charging the teacher "shook" her son, William, 9, so violently his head struck the classroom wall.

Mrs. Willis Snyder, third-grade teacher at Ager Road Elementary School, Green Meadows, Md., admitted the shaking, denied the child's head struck the wall, and testified it was her form of punishment when he "thumbed his nose" at her.

"I then sat him in the corner, where we usually put him," she testified in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday.

Mrs. Hiortdahl testified she swore out the warrant before Justice of the Peace Mary Fainter, Hyattsville, after William complained that his head hurt him from the disciplining, on March 11. Three pupils testified for their teacher that his head did not hit the wall.

"It seems to me the law permits some disciplining," declared Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie, in dismissing the charge. "If we don't have teachers to discipline our children, and parents don't discipline them at home, what are we raising?

"Wild oats," he added in answer.

"When I went to school we weren't just shaken. Teachers used to thrash us, and some women teachers could do it better than the men. And when we told our parents about it, our parents thrashed us again.

"We spent hundreds of dollars (on education) then, but the children were educated.

"Now we spend millions. We get brick buildings, and beautiful lawns and basketball teams. It takes more than that to educate a child. It's teachers that count.

"And teachers must be given a certain amount of leeway in disciplining their pupils. I'm going to dismiss this case."

The magistrate said that in three previous cases heard by him concerning assault charges against teachers who punished students he had found the teachers guilty.

"But those were all clear cut cases," he declared.

Threat of Frost Lessened; Fruit Little Damaged

Prospect Called Fair for Normal Crops as Warmer Weather Arrives

The threat of serious over-all frost damage to fruit crops in Maryland and Virgina faded yesterday with a forecast of rising temperatures.

Reports of actual harm to the blossoming peach and apple trees varied in different areas, but, on the whole, the prospects were fair for normal crops.

The blossoming apple crop in Frederick and Clarke counties, in the heart of the Shenandoah Valley apple belt, suffered a 15-20 per cent damage. But this was offset by the unusually heavy crop prospects, it was reported by Dr. A. G. Groves of the Winchester Research Laboratory of the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service.

Little Damage Reported

Most orchardists and county farm agents said it was too early to arrive at a definite conclusion as to injury. All were agreed, however, that an additional heavy frost would do vital harm.

W. W. Moore, operator of a 100 acre apple and peach orchard in Montgomery County, said damage "did not amount to anything. Most of the buds were not opened yet."

Fairfax County's peach crop totaling only 400 acres suffered an estimated 30 per cent damage among blossoming trees, County Agent Joseph E. Beard reported. This would mean a $15,000 to $20,000 loss to growers, he said, adding that a number of trees had not blossomed and were not affected. Apple trees suffered no damage, he stated.

The Maryland University agriculture extension service said that results of the frost would not be apparent for two or three days.

Halifax Peaches Hit

Peach orchards were reported especially hard hit in the east central section of Halifax County, Va. Growers said the damage could not be determined immediately but some feared it would run as high as 90 per cent.

Temperatures ranging from 20-36 were forecast tonight in Washington, Maryland and Virginia. Tomorrow's high temperatures will be in the lower 60s, the weather bureau said.

On Sunday night the mercury in fruit growing sections had slipped to 20.

Among survivors of the frost were Washington's cherry blossoms. Strollers yesterday noted no signs of diminishing beauty.

Doctors Affected

House Bills Indorsed by Senate Unit

A Senate District Subcommittee yesterday indorsed House-approved bills which would:

1. Let the District admit out-of-town doctors to practice here without a local examination if they have a certificate showing they have passed a suitable national board examination.

2. Fix the salaries of District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board members under the Federal Pay Classification Act.

3. Revise the law on District driving permits to permit an expanded driver training program in the public junior and senior high schools here.

Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) said the bills would be presented for action of the Senate District Committee Wednesday. He is chairman of the District Committee and of the subcommittee that reviewed the bills.

Feud Renewed Over Control Of Armory

Feuding over control of the District National Guard Armory broke out anew yesterday in a Senate District subcommittee hearing.

Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, adjutant general of the District Guard, presented the appeal of Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the guard, for charges in a House-approved bill for control of the non-military activities of the armory.

Among major changes, General Cox asked that he, not the proposed control board, be given authority to say when income from concessions would go to the guard, and that he also be given the decision on what parts of the armory are necessary for the guard.

Commissioner Guy Mason promptly objected that the guard would get most of the money and that General Cox's proposals would let him "take away the heating plant" from serving non-military activities at the armory.

Mason protested too that General Cox had obligated funds illegally and then had asked for a deficiency appropriation. The $29,000 deficiency request is before the House Appropriations Committee. On this point, Colonel Nevitt said General Cox had acted in what he considered a perfectly legal way wit hthe idea that recruiting expenses would be partly met with funds from renting the armory for outside use. These funds, totalling about $25,000, have been frozen until Congress decides finally how they should be controlled. Nevitt said Mason expressed a difference of legal opinion.

At one point, Subcommittee Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) said it looked as if efforts to reach a compromise between General Cox and the District Commissioners "haven't done any good at all."

The subcommittee also received a letter from Capitol Architect David Lynn asking that he not be made a member of the proposed three-member armory control board.

Senator Buck said action on the bill would be deferred to give time for more study.

Crash Injuries Fatal To Frederick Woman

Frederick, Md., March 29—Injuries suffered Saturday night when struck by an automobile while crossing Route 15 near here, resulted in death for Mrs. Annie E. Steinhaus, 71, wife of William H. Steinhaus. Mrs. Steinhaus died at Frederick Memorial Hospital last night.

Driver of the car was identified by State Trooper Charles McLahe as Richard Thomas Geisler, 17, Adamstown, Md. No charges have been preferred pending completion of the investigation.

Mrs. Steinhaus, a native of Sweden, observed her fiftieth wedding anniversary last September. Surviving are her husband; three children and one brother. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Rent Increases Asked

A hearing on an increase in rents on 84 apartments at 1600 16th st. nw. was held yesterday before Rent Examiner James G. Tyson. Present rents range from $54.50 to $90, and increases from $5 to $8 were requested. The building is owned by Alvin L. Aubinoe, Inc. The case was taken under advisement.

Held for Grand Jury

Judge Ellen K. Raedy of Municipal Court yesterday held Anthony H. Jones, 22, of 1121 I st. ne., under $2500 bond for grand jury action on a charge of attempted robbery. Jones was shot in the leg Saturday morning, according to police, while attempting, police said, to hold up a filling station.

Red Cross Still in Need Of $150,000

Subscriptions of nearly $150,000 in the Washington area Red Cross fund campaign will have to be reported at today's campaign luncheon to assure achievement of this year's $1,080,000 goal, according to Randolph G. Bishop, campaign director.

The 220,000 contributions so far reported represent a total of $931,218 subscribed, or 84.16 per cent of the quota for the 10 volunteer divisions. These include four in Washington and others in Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax counties in Virginia, and Montgomery and Prince Georges counties in Maryland, as well as a unit collecting in booths located in various public buildings.

Among the 1500 larger business firms, only banks, health and welfare institutions, and building and loan concerns have so far reported 100 per cent Red Cross response. The General Business Unit is still more than $54,000 short of its $315,000 quota.

In the Government Unit, nearly $83,00 is needed to reach 100 per cent of the $494,000 goal.

There have been two report meetings when the total response exceeded the $150,000 needed today for total quota achievement, Bishop said. The report luncheon is scheduled for 12:30 p. m. at the United States Chamber of Commerce Building, 1615 H st. nw.

Area News in Brief

$1 Dispute Stalls Court Ten Minutes

A defendant's plea that he could not afford to pay a dollar in court costs held up procedings in Landlord and Tenant Court yesterday for almost 10 minutes.

The National Capital Housing Authority filed suit for two months' back rent from Walter A. Fox, tenant in a project at 3917 Burns pl. se. The suit asked $103, but a check of rent receipts showed only $78 due, and this was paid out of court.

The NCHA insisted however, that the court costs of $1 to the agency be paid.

Doris G. Wilkins, welfare adviser to the court, pointed out that Fox had 10 dependents, and could not afford even a dollar.

"Well I don't think it would hurt the Government not to get this dollar," commented Judge Armond W. Scott.

The argument went on, with the NCHA saying it was entitled to the dollar and wanted it.

Finally, Attorney Wesley Williams, who was not connected with the case, said: "If the court pleases, I will contribute a dollar and we can get on with other cases." Williams placed a greenback before the judge.

At this point, the NCHA suggested that the court might waive court costs. Judge Scott quickly did so.

Meyers Wins Rare Acclaim In Recital

Emerson Meyers played a superb recital yesterday afternoon for the Washington Music Teachers Association.

One of Washington's leading teachers, pianists, and a composer of outstanding gifts, Meyers displayed solid authority in music by Bach, Beethoven, Chopin, Ravel, Bartok and Alkan. Musical structure is clearly understood in listening to Meyers' discourse of a prelude and fugue of Bach, no less than in his unfolding of a familiar sonata as Beethoven's "Appassionata."

There is no distortion for popular effect, nor bombast such as some of the leading concert pianists have handed us this season. There is on the other hand, a sincere affection for all kinds of music, and a thorough technical equipment able to handle some of the most taxing assignments.

That Meyers can turn from the tremendous final pages of Chopin's fourth ballade to the closing section of Debussy's "L'Isle joyeuse" and deliver each of them with exciting certainty and rhythmic exactitude is high tribute to his sound musicianship and pianism.

His audience, all professional musicians, rose in noisy demonstration at the close of the program. That is rare applause indeed from foyyow workers, and well deserved.

Oyster Bar Lease Hearings Held Political Move

Princess Anne, Md., March 29 (AP).—Delegate Carl Hoffman (R., Somerset) said yesterday that a watermen's gathering in Annapolis was the result oof a "deliberate conspiracy to continue antagonism" against John E. Clark, chairman of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

Some 600 watermen and seafood packers appeared at the Statehouse last Friday to reiterate their objections to the leasing of Chesapeake Bay oyster bars to private interests.

Hoffman said "a member of the Tidewater Commission, George Harrison, aided by Nelson Coulbourn, stirred up the whole mess themselves." He said watermen had been "told that if they did not attend the meeting, certain oyster rocks would be placed under lease," although the session had actually been "rigged for Clark's discomfiture.

Colubourn, an oyster packer and Mayor of Crisfield, said the "meeting was not stirred up by Harrison and Coulbourn. The fact that 600 persons were there shows the great interest among watermen and packers on the question . . ."

Kids to Teach Parents About Model Planes

The kids know, but parents have nots to learn about model airplane flying.

So on Thursday night, the Balsa Beetles of Falls Church, Va., are throwing an educational party for their townsfolk.

First, they got hold of a nationally-known scientist, Dr. L. B. Tuckerman, of the National Bureau of Standards, who agreed to come out and give a talk. Dr. Tuckerman, an authority in analysis of faults responsible for aviation accidents, said he would try not to talk above the heads of the older folks.

That's a migrty hard assignment when talking to youngsters who speak the language of model flying.

Then there will be a movie, "Youth Takes to Wings," the visual education portion of Balsa Beetles' propaganda.

What the 8-month-old club wants to do, says its director, W. S. Hinman, jr., is to get parents behind their children's enthusiasms. The program, open to the public and for free, will start at 8 p. m., at the Madison School, Falls Church.

The Balsa Beetles is open to model aviation enthusiasts ranging generally from 10 to 17 years. Its members assemble their own planes, mostly gasoline and diesel power models, and fly them in the neighborhood. About 25 boys belong now, but they're ready to welcome others.

W. L. Kaiser, Ex-Policeman, Who Fired at Senator, Dies

William L. Kaiser, 50, one-time Capitol policeman who fired two shots at Senator John W. Bricker (R., Ohio) in the Capitol subway last July 12, died yesterday at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Death was apparently due to coronary thrombosis, according to Dr. Winfred Overholser, hospital superintendent. Kaiser had been in St. Elizabeths since August 18 when a District Court jury found him of unsound mind.

Indictments charging assault with intent to kill and assault with a dangerous weapon were still pending against him at the time of his death.

A native of Columbus, Ohio, he had suffered financial losses about 15 years ago when a Columbus building and loan association was liquidated by Bricker, then attorney general of the State. He was later appointed a Capitol policeman by Senator James W. Huffman but was discharged last April.

At the time of the shooting, the defendant said he did not intend to kill Bricker but only wanted to "refresh his memory" about the Columbus affair. He was captured by police about two hours afterward.

A Lew Douglas Importation

You Meet the Loveliest People, Just Chinning Yourself On an Orange

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

AMBASSADOR LEWIS DOUGLAS, back briefly from London, is the most sought after diner-outer in town. Dr. D. is in demand more for his personality than his official position. Gay, an amusing raconteur, the Ambassador has been wowing dinner parties with a game he claims is sweeping London like wildfire.

Only equipment needed is a brace of healthy sized oranges. The guests stand in two lines. Heads of each file tuck orange between chin and chest. The trick is to pass it from person to person, each using chin and chest only. The quickest fruit-passing line is winner, of course.

It's side-splitting to watch gents in stiff shirts, ladies in decollete gowns concentrating with life-or-death seriousness on chin-and-chesting an orange! It is their postures, rather than actions, which are so startling. Thanks to Mr. Douglas, a number of warm acquaintanceships are due to burgeon this spring in Washington.

Vocabulary Offering

A TRIFLE OF incidental intelligence, quite apart from oranges or our envoy to the Court of St. James's: Like some other writers, this department uses cliches with carefree abandon. For ages we've tossed the phrase "wildfire" about, and only after the above paragraph discovered what it really means. According to our dictionary it's "a combustible liquid (Greek fire) anciently used in warfare." There, a thought for the day!

Conditioned Reflex

AN INCIDENT, interesting to child psychologists, occurred during the commotion of Connecticut ave.'s Easter parade. The parade judges singled out a cute little boy for "best dressed" honors. He was rushed into the Mayflower's Town and Country Room to be photographed, do a touch of broadcasting and receive his prize.

In the shuffle he was separated frfom his mother who, it was found later, was waiting patiently in another room. As time went by the kid's composure began to crumble, finally dissolved into tears. In complete distress, he couldn't remember his name or address. He grew more and more confused as everyone tried to help.

Then a knowing woman shooed people away, sat him down with paper and pencil, remarked casually," "You're so big, of course you can write your name!" With only split-second hesitation, the boy scrawled his name, then his address. He was wreathed in triumphant smiles when his mamma was retrieved from the adjoining room.

Champion Boulevardier

IT'S NICE TO SEE a man get a break! Easter, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney who is noted for her snappy ensembles, was definitely outshone by her husband, our Assistant Secretary for Air. "Sonny's" impeccable Sunday getup was rewarded with a $50 prize in the Connecticut ave. parade.

For ladies interested in brightening up their menfolk, sartorially speaking, we will describe the Whitney glory: Black Homburg hat, gray-striped morning trousers, short dark coat, gray tie with an almost invisible stripe, and held down by a black pearl stickpin.

Judges Savor Southern Cooking

Virginia Chefs Compete For Dominion's Honors

By Lucia Brown
Post Reporter

FREDERICKSBURG, VA., March 29.—With roe herring and batterbread for breakfast, Brunswick stew for lunch, and ham with wine sauce for dinner, the second annual Virginia Chefs Tournament got off to a good start here today.

Twenty-five chefs from hotels and restaurants throughout the Old Dominion are entered in the competition, sponsored by the State Chamber of Commerce. The idea of the contest, held this year at Mary Washington College, is to encourage fine, honest to goodness Virginia cookery in public eating establishments in the historic State.

Judges are a panel of food editors, gourmets, and culinary experts from six different States and the District of Columbia. Among them are George Fredericks, president of the Gourmet Society of New York; Ted Shane, author of a recent article in Liberty magazine entitled, "I Hate Southern Cooking."

Duncan Hines, author of "Adventures in Good Eating," and Marjorie Child Husted, General Mills executive who was instrumental in founding the "Betty Crocker Kitchen," are two of the other judges.

Roe for Breakfast

At 7 a. m. today, the spacious kitchen of Mary Washington College presented a scene that would have gladdened the heart of any housewife. A bevy of wide-awake male contestants, spic and span in white aprons, were deftly whipping up one of those breakfasts that has made Virginia food famous since colonial days.

By the time guests and judges gathered in the adjoining dining room, the batter bread (spoon bread, if you will) was golden brown and Rappahannock roe herring was coming hot from the pan. For guests who preferred them, there were scrambled eggs and buckwheat cakes, too. All the mouth-watering platters of food bore the number of the chef who had prepared them so that judges could make notes in their little black books as they munched their way through the meal.

Piece-de-resistance at luncheon time was the savory Brunswick stew, preceded by Chincoteague Island clams on the half shell. Buttermilk biscuit, corn sticks and green salad accompanied the stew, and for dessert there was ice cream with crushed raspberries and gingerbread made by Mary Washington's own recipe.

Dinnertime brought a meal that started with Chesapeake Bay crabflake cocktail and included candied yams and black-eyed peas.

At lunch, Virginia's claim as the home of Brunswick stew was contested in lively fashion by some natives of Georgia. Merits of hams from various parts of the country were discussed pro and con, but the succulent Virginia variety served at dinner seemed to settle that argument once and for all.

"It's peanuts, razorback hogs and long summer days that make Virginia hams what they are," said Walter Kirsh, of the Jordan Packing Co. of Richmond, who is one of the judges. "You get soft, oily meat with peanut feeding," said Mr. Kirsh. "Then, after the meat is cured and smoked in the winter and spring, it hangs from the rafters through the hot summer days. That has a lot to do with its flavor."

A ham should be about a year old to be its best, said Mr. Kirsh. But he admits that some Northern and Western ham eaters prefer them a bit younger. Six and seven months old hams he terms "Yankee" hams.

Judging of the efforts of Virginia's champion chefs will continue through tomorrow.

Where Can One Buy Feathers?

I would like to know if you can tell me where one can order goose feathers and down by the pound? I am starting housekeeping and want to make pillows and cushions for various uses M. K.

Have any readers suggestions for M. K. on where to buy feathers?

Can you tell me where in Washington I can rent a punch bowl and glasses for a party? L. T. G.

Several local caterers rent these articles for parties, even when they do not do the catering for the entertainment. Look under "Caterers" in the yellow section of the telephone book for one which advertises such a service.

Could you suggest some appropriate games to play at a baby shower? B. M. P.

A contest you might have is one featuring scrambled words. Type up a list of such words followed by blanks and give a copy to each guest. Keep the key yourself for checking after everybody's through. Your list, for instance, might include the following: Tasbisen (bassinet), Naklebt (blanket), Meteherromet (thermometer), Nitfan (infant). You can think of—and scramble—other words generally associated with babies. The person who first identifies all the scrambled words receives a prize, which might be a youngster's toy of some kind.

Another stunt would be to cut pictures of familiar characters from a 10-cent nursery rhyme book. Mount them on cardboard, then cut each picture into smaller pieces. Place the pieces for a single picture in an envelope. Give one such envelope to each guest. The person who reassembles her picture first, and properly identifies the character, should be awarded a prize. If a 10 or 15 cent nursery rhyme book is not available, substitute magazine advertisements. Certain characters are closely identified with various products and will provide interesting subjects which will fit in with the theme of your party.

How can I remove glass wool—very fine particles—from boots and also from wool socks? The articles were packed for shipment in this glass wool. It's practically impossible to remove it from inside the boots and washing the socks doesn't help. M. W.

Have any of our readers had a similar experience and can they give suggestions for M. W.?

I am a young woman of 23, just arrived in Washington, and wish to meet people my own age. I am most anxious to improve my bridge game and wonder if you could tell me where I can take lessons? S. A.

The Young Women's Christian Association, 17th and K sts. nw., offers bridge lessons, as well as other social activities in which you may be interested. Telephone the Y at Metropolitan 2100 to find out when a new bridge class will be starting and to get information about various clubs and entertainments there.

Please publish some method or methods of removing red wine spots from white lace table mats. The wine has been on the mats for about a month. E. B. H.

Put stained mat over piece of thin white material and stretch both over a bowl, securing with elastic band. Cover stains with salt. Let remain for a few minutes, then pour boiling water through stain, holding teakettle spout 2 or 3 feet above stain. If this isn't entirely effective, try acetic acid. Apply with medicine dropper, let stand a few seconds, then rinse and repeat if necessary. Stop the action of the acid with baking soda or ammonia, rinse, and spread in the sun to dry. Wine may cause tannin stains and they are difficult to get out after they have been in for awhile. Hydrogen peroxide or a chlorine bleach might also be used if the spots prove stubborn.

Sponge decals with cloth wrung out of hot vinegar. Allow to stand 20 minutes, redampening occasionally with vinegar, then pull decals from wall.

How can I remove a spot caused by a drop of tincture of benzoin on a cotton print dress? The spot is on the white background, but touches one of the floral patterns, which fades slightly. E. S. H.

Try rubbing lard or petroleum jelly into the spot, letting it stand awhile, then sponging with dry cleaning fluid. If this isn't entirely effective, acetone (the same thing that's used in most nail polish remover) may take out the spot. Proceed cautiously in using this as it may affect the color.

Can you tell me how to restore and care for a fireplace with red brick exposed to the ceiling? The red brick is now smoke-stained. J. H.

You may be able to remove the smoke stains on the brick by scrubbing with a strong tri-sodium phosphate solution and a scrubbing brush and rinsing thoroughly. For more stubborn stains, use steel wool and scouring powder or mechanic's hand soap containing sand. After being cleaned and dried, the colors of the brickwork can be greatly enriched, although somewhat darkened, by applying a soaking coat of linseed oil or liquid wax. Make the application when there is no fire in the fireplace and let it soak in well before lighting one.

DAR President Asks Congress For UMT Law

Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Bryne, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, yesterday called upon Congress for direct and speedy action on the universal training issue. At the same time she urged the people of the country to pressure both the House and Senate for immediate action.

In her message to the people, she said "Congress must be shown that the ctitzens and particularly the women of America are aware of the weaknesses in our national defense. It is our duty to speak out at this time and take positive action which will build up the defenses of this country. In this way war may be averted rather than invited."

Declaring that the "Communist crisis" makes universal military training mandatory, Mrs. O'Bryne expressed the belief that sentiment throughout the country now is fast changing in favor of the program.

Just back from a tour of DAR State conferences, the national society head pointed out that the DAR strongly advocated UMT as a necessary part of our national defense. "We have led the way among women's organizations in behalf of this training system, because we believe the United States must be prepared to defend itself," she explained, "and military training already has been put off until the situation is critical.

PIN-WORMS CAUSE FIDGETING AND THAT AWFUL ITCH

One of the warning signs of Pin-Worms is a nagging rectal itch which often causes fidgeting and broken sleep, and may lead to even more serious distress.

It is no longer necessary to put up with the trouble caused by Pin-Worms, because science has at last found a way to lick these stubborn pests easily and safely.

Girl in Late Teens Is Madly in Love With Her Mother's Second Husband, Who Returns Her Feelings, Posing a Terrible Predicament

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: It seems to me that I am in a terrible predicament; and therefore, like many others, I am turning to you for advice. I am a girl in my late teens; and I am usually described as being "cute."

My father is dead and a year ago my mother married again. Her second husband, whom I shall call Edward, is several years younger than she. In fact, he is only 28 years old at present.

I was away in school at the time of their marriage and did not come home until months later. Since then Edward and I have been together much of the time and we have fallen madly in love with each other and he is contemplating a divorce from mother in order to marry me.

Man and Girl
Plan Marriage

SO FAR, I haven't objected to this plan, and I know that life for me without Edward wouldn't seem worth living; and he and mother simply cannot agree on even the most trivial matters.

Recently mother has been having an affair with another man of questionable character and I am sure Edward would have sufficient reason for getting a divorce; and furthermore, I don't think mother would raise much of a fuss if she were given her freedom.

Edward has a splendid position, so there would be no financial difficulties; and I would appreciate your immediate advice as to whether I should marry him in the event his plans work out.

S. C.

Girl's Problem
Is Lack of Love

DEAR S. C.: It is true indeed that you have a serious predicament to report. However, there is much more to it than losing your heart to Edward, your mother's morally dilapidated second husband, now corruptly courting his own teen-age stepdaughter.

In large outline, your predicament of this time consists in living, moving and having your being in a home situation where there is no real love at your disposal; no good shoulder on which to lay your head; no firm hand to take your own (figuratively speaking) with strong devotion and sensible interest, when guidance is needed; no inspiriting example of "the good, the beautiful and the true" in human behavior on the adult plane.

It is your misfortune to be dependently related to these two chaotic personalities—Edward and your mother,—whose current existence amounts to drifting aimlessly through a fog of benighted ignorance, in quest of heart's content. And which they expect to find—but alas, never will—by some happenstance miracle of "ideal mating."

Happiness is a by-product of right action. And by right action I mean (1) that which satisfies one's own conscience, by expressing one's best self, which in the final analysis is one's true self; and (2) that which radiates benefit to others, as much by the value of good example as by the usefulness of one's activities.

Moral Health
Is Endangered

YOUR moral faculties are healthy as yet, your instincts sound, else intuition—that quick sense of self preservation—wouldn't warn so clearly that your infatuation and Edward's tempting pose a terrible predicament, where a wrong turn on your part can spoil your life.

This inner prompting, this voice of conscience, man's special endowment of innate guidance to lead him aright, is actively operative in those whose integrity hasn't yet been damaged by going against it,—the penalty for which is loss of direction, moral conflict and a babel of mental confusion which eclipses the celestial spark.

In the words of the "Whiffenpoof Song," Edward and your mother have gone astray, have lost their way; and now as you stand at a major crossroad, with a choice to make, my advice is: Guard your integrity. Reject their example. Beware their influence. Don't drift in their wake. And if there are other more wholesome relatives who would take you in until you can be self supporting, pack your bags and flee to them.

Follow Ida Jean Kain's 18-Day Diet

Take a Mirror Survey—Then Exercise

By Ida Jean Kain

3-30

TO STAIGHTEN UP and fly right with this Spring Tonic Course, get your bearings. While nobody's looking, take a three-dimensional survey of your silhouette in a full length mirror, side view, sans girdle.

At first blush that bustle and bulge may appear to be a natural outcome of overweight. It may really be one curve compensating for another. If the upper back tends to round out, the lower back sinks in—hips jut out. This throws the weight of the internal organs against the abdominal wall with a compensating outcurve in front. You're off the beam!

Watch closely . . . centering the action on the middle muscles, draw yourself up to your full height. Here's the technique—pull firmly up and in with the abdominal muscles, and snugly down and under with the hip muscles. If hips slim down and stomach slims off as if by magic, then three fourths of your figure faults stem from out-of-kilter posture.

You see, hip muscles are not just to sit on. These big muscles start at the top of the pelvis near the small of the back, and curve down. A firm down-pull with the buttock muscles keeps the pelvis pushed forward directly under the figure. Then the up-pull with the abdominal muscles puts your figure in perfect alignment.

In good posture you have a pretty nice figure! Fine—let's make it for keeps. The first step is merely to want to stand beautifully, the second is to get the "feel" of good posture, and the third is to put a bit of stiffening in the middle muscles. All set . . .

Position: Standing, feet together, arms raised overhead, fingers interlocked.

Movement: Turn palms upward and pull your figure out of the dumps—up! Start the pull with the lower abdominal muscles—pull up, tuck hips under snugly, raise the chest, lift the head. That's good posture. How does it feel? Do this simple stretch three times each morning—to start off on the right foot.

If you're uncertain about your posture line-up, try this test . . .

Position: Lie on back on floor, legs straight down, arms down at sides. See if you can pull the small of the back in to make contract with the floor. Then raise arms up and back overhead touching the entire arm to the floor. Inability to touch arms to floor indicates rounded shoulders. Practice backward arm circling patterned after the back-stroke of swimming—it will straighten you out beautifully.

Goodwin

Associated with Graham-Newman in the purchase are David L. Kreeger, Washington attorney, and E. R. Jones & Co., Baltimore investment house. Graham-Newman is a New York investment trust.

As a result of the change in control, Goodwin was elevated to GEIC president, succeeding Cleaves Rhea of Fort Worth, Texas. Other newly elected executives include:

Francis M. Shea, local attorney, chairman of the board; Benjamin Graham, president of Graham-Newman, chairman of executive committee; Kreeger, vice president and general counsel; Jerome A. Newman, treasurer, director and a member of the executive committee; Gordon M. Dopp, vice president.

Businessmen Take to Debt When They Can't Sell Stocks

By J. A. Livingston

HOMER JONES is tall, thin, and light-haired. Irwin Friend is short, plump and dark. Jones is with the Committee for Economic Development. Friend is with the Department of Commerce. Both are economists, they work in the same building, and they see one another off and on. So it's not strange that both should come forth simultaneously—yet independently—with an upsetting notion.

Livingston

Neither goes along with the traditional idea that debt, as such, is bad. Their ideas are apt to disturb Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock Exchange, who has been preaching the gospel of lower taxes. Argues Schram: We must encourage investors and speculators to take a chance. We must get more risk capital—common stock money—flowing to business. We must prevent an overburdensome debt. Therefore, taxes must be cut.

Both Jones and Friend observe that business corporations are not pinched for money. "We have no record of debt ever having rested so lightly on corporations," says Jones. "There is no evidence during the past year of any serious difficulty in financing the largest expansion of business facilities on record," says Friend.

INVESTMENT bankers and stock brokers cannot subscribe. We're in the middle of an industrial boom. Profits flow freely, but not to members of the New York Stock Exchange, not to investment dealers. Nowadays when corporations need money, they go increasingly to banks and to insurance companies. And so Wall Street, which was set up to do that kind of business, isn't getting its customary cut.

Result: The exchange lost money last year for the first time since 1942. Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, largest stock exchange firm, reported earnings of only $1,827,000, as against $6,216,000 in 1946. First Boston Corp., one of the Nation's outstanding underwriting firms, earned $1,636,000 in '47, versus $3,254,000 in '46. Yet because Wall Street isn't well off, it doesn't follow that the country is going to pot.

Jones observes that the debt of corporations is only 55 per cent of total disposable income of people in the United States—that as against 100 per cent in 1940 and 108 per cent in 1929. Friend made the same observation in a different way. He notes that interest payments today amount to only 8 per cent of profits before taxes as compared with 12 per cent in 1941 and 25 per cent in 1929. The decline in interest rates has eased the corporate debt burden.

BUSINESSMEN don't like debt because they don't like to be beholden to bankers, insurance company executives or bondholders. They prefer to raise money by selling common stock. Then they don't have to worry about interest charges or meeting notes when they come due. But when they need and can't get money from the stock market, they forget their preferences and inhibitions—especially since insurance companies and banks seem to have no hesitation about making loans. As a result, corporations haven't had to postpone important projects for want of money. And American business rolls merrily on.

Ultimately, Jones points out, if business falls off or debt piles up "lenders will become loathe to lend and borrowers loathe to borrow." In addition, the reluctance of investors to buy common stock—to take risks—makes it difficult for new corporations to start or for smaller enterprises to get money.

Nevertheless representatives of the New York Stock Exchange, Investment Bankers Association, and the National Association of Securities Dealers, cannot afford to go around the country predicting doom because today money isn't flowing into common stocks. That leads the public to expect an immediate decline in production and an increase in unemployment. If a recession doesn't develop—and so far it hasn't—then the prophets, who may be thoroughly right in the long run, will be discredited. Therefore, urges Jones, they ought to talk about the long-term consequences of inadequate risk capital and not the "immediate adverse effects." Otherwise they hurt their own case.

One on the Aisle—

No Inhibitions About 'Volpone'

By Richard L. Coe

"VOLPONE," at the Hippodrome, is a deliciously amusing farce that could never have come from the careful caterers of Hollywood.

As a matter of fact, it comes to the New York ave. cinema by a most circuitous route. It stems from a comedy written in 1606 by Shakespeare's pal, Ben Jonson; back in the late '20s it was adapted into frisky French style by Stefan Zweig and done in New York by the Theater Guild, a version still acted by the Comedie Francaise. Several years ago Zweig and Jules Romains polished it up for the French films with juicy parts for the late Harry Baur and Louis Jouvet. This is the sardonic triumph which finally has reached our dilatory Capital.

The story tells of a sly, rich Venetian trader, Volpone, who pretends he's dying to watch the effects on his friends. His closest friend, Mosca, is in on the joke, and with the promise of Volpone's wealth as bait inveigles one man to give gold to Volpone, another to disinherit his son and a third to offer him his wife. The idea of becoming Volpone's wealthy widow also lures the outstanding fille de joie of Venice.

This leads to some bitterly amusing scenes in the "dying" man's bedrom and a titivating trial scene, which follows an upset when the disinherited son walks in on Volpone and the baffled, borrowed wife. The three hopeful inheritors sacrific their public face to insure their greedy ends, but Mosca, the Fly, outwits them all, including Volpone, the Fox.

"VOLPONE." Siritzky International Pictures release. Screen play by A. Barsacq from the Ben Jonson comedy as adapted for the stage by Jules Romains and Stefan Zweig. Directed by Maurice Tourneur. Produced by Isle de France Films. At the Hippodrome.

THE CAST

Volpone	Harry Baur
Mosca	Louis Jouvet
Corvino	Fernand Ledoux
Canina	Marion Dorian
Voltore	Jean Temerson
Leone	Alexandre Rignault
Corbaccio	Charles Dullin
Columba	Jacqueline DeLubac

Broad, Brilliant Acting

There is a rushing, grandiose style in the telling of Jonson's old tale, immensely brightened by the performers. Baur rolls his eyes, squeaks and groans with brilliant aplomb, and Jouvet is coldly aloof to the deviltry he achieves. And Charles Dullin, as the moneylender, has a magnificent scene licking his chops over the thought that, old as he is, he's seen the deaths of most of his friends. His cackling is sheer magnificence.

All this lustry, uninhibited behavior is refreshing stuff to watch, particularly to anyone who gets regular doses of the nonoffensive niceties of our homegrown product. The English substitutes achieve some of the rowdy force of the soundtrack, but their idiomatic phrasing still suggests that importers of foreign films ought to give far more attention to this linqual key than they do.

Its broad, darting characterizations and its lusty, cynical humor make "Volpone" an adventure to relish.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, March 29 (AP).—Price changes were small in grains on the Board of Trade today.

Wheat ended mainly with small declines while corn and oats were mostly fractionally higher. Trading was slow during most of the session. Around midway in the day wheat led a price drop, the May contract falling more than 4 cents from an earlier high. Turnover was larger on the decline. Selling followed word that the Commodity Credit Corporation was not interested in wheat at current prices.

Wheat closed unchanged to 1⅛ lower, May 2.43½@2.45. Corn was unchanged to 2¢ higher, May 2.50@2.50½. Oats were ⅛ lower to ⅝ higher, May 1.11⅛@1.11¼, and soybeans were 3 to 4 cents higher, May 3.40.

Wheat purchases by the CCC fell off sharply toward the close of last week and many traders doubted that the agency would continue to pay advancing prices. However, there was some talk the Cabinet Food Committee would up the wheat export goal this year from 450 million bushels to 500 million bushels.

Security Issues Off 5 Pct. in Year

New security issues registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission dropped about 5 per cent to $6,700,000,000 in the fiscal year 1947, the commission's annual report showed yesterday.

This total for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1947, compared with about seven billion dollars in the preceding 12 months, which was a new high.

The report showed moderate declines in totals of all securities registered for cash sales by manufacturing and utility companies. But registrations by transportation and communications companies gained almost 50 per cent over the 1946 fiscal year.

During the 1947 fiscal year 10 holding companies got rid of 31 subsidiaries with asets of $1,900,000,000. This brought the total of such sales since December 1, 1935, to about eight billion dollars.

C. & O. Reports Sharp Upturn In Year's Net

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. showed a seven-million-dollar increase in net income last year, President Robert J. Bowman reported last night.

Bowman

Net for 1947 totaled $35,387,327, equal to $4.44 a common share, compared with $28,372,066 or $3.55 a share in 1946.

In the railroad's first annual report since C. & O. merged with the Pere Marquette, Bowman said a record volume of freight was hauled last year. Coal traffic, C. & O.'s mainstay, amounted to 93 million tons.

Of the Interstate Commerce Commission's permission to raise freight rates twice last year, Bowman said:

"While these temporary increases expire not later than June 30, 1948, we are hopeful that before that date the commission will have granted a permanent rate increase that will adequately recognice present-day operating costs."

EAL Earns $1,259,196

Eastern Air Lines, Inc reported net profit of $1,259,196, or 53 cents a share, in 1947. Earnings in 1946 were $3,504,643, or $1.46 a share.

Gross sales were $52,411,248, a record high. This was an increase over 1946 of $10,287,531, or 24.4 per cent.

Revenue passengers numbered 1,750,194, an increase of 12.6 per cent over 1946. Air express shipments totalled 14,820,223 pounds, up 16.7 per cent over the previous year. Air freight shipments totalled 6,678,661 pounds, compared with 606,936 in 1946, an increase of 1000.6 per cent. Air mail totalled 12,435,383 pounds, up 6.3 per cent.

Virginia House May Rescind Probe of Press

Virginia's current House of Delegates today may rescind some of its legislative work in the very twilight of the 1948 session of the General Assembly.

Three delegates have announced they will ask the House to reverse itself on two resolutions; namely, the Swanson resolution calling for investigation of the Richmond Newspapers, Inc., and the Beazley resolution authorizing a $300 bonus to each delegate.

In Richmond, Haynes also said he would support the proposed Dejarnette resolution. And from Stanley, Delegate C. C. Louderback said he, too, would approve such a resolution, revoking the investigation asked of the Richmond papers.

Louderback said in a letter to Raymond S. Davis, president of the Virginia Press Association, that he had regarded the Swanson resolution ordering a newspaper investigation "just as an enjoyable joke," and he would be glad to see it nullified.

24 Virginia Delegates Oppose Press Probe

Richmond, Va., March 29 (AP).—The Virginia Press Associatoin has received replies from 30 members of the House of Delegates for a statement of heir present position on a House-approved resolution calling for a statement of calling for an investigation of Richmond Newspapers, Inc.

Tabulation of the replies showed:

Twenty-four delegates were opposed to the probe of the two Richmond newspapers. Ten of these thought the resolution had been offered in jest.

Six delegates said they favored the investigatoin.

The delegates stated their views in answer to a letter from Raymond B. Davis, president of the press association and publisher of the Crewe (Va.) Chronicle.

Young Sailor Gets 18-Year Sentence

Baltimore, March 29 (AP).—Herbert de Boissiere was convicted of second degree murder today in the shooting of Vivien Crowe, 21, who lived with a bullet in her skull for 114 days.

The 18-year-old seaman from New York City was sentenced to not more than 18 years in the State reformatory by Judge Edwin Dickerson.

Miss Crowe was shot last September 14 while sitting in a downtown restaurant with some friends. For more than three months she lay in University Hospital, too close to death for doctors to attempt an operation to remove the bullet. She died December 27.

The prosecutor, Assistant State's Attorney Alan H. Murrell, told the court de Boissiere had signed a statement that "I loved her and didn't want to lose her."

It was testified that the couple had been engaged and Miss Crowe broke the engagement a few hours before the shooting.

Under the indeterminate sentence issued y Judge Dickerson, the youth may be released at an early date if prison authorities feel clemency is advisable.

Postlude

Subtle Color In Symphony Tonal Fabric

By Donald Engle

Nobility of purpose, sound musicianship, personal devotion, and technical proficiency formed the four-square framework for a beautiful musical tapestry at the National Symphony concert yesterday.

In his particularly well chosen program, associate conductor Howard Mitchell reminded us again of his increasing stature on the podium, and his ability to draw forth from his players a tonal fabric of subtle coloring and compelling vitality. He was equally at home in the former structures of J. S. Bach, the lush scoring of Elgar, and the complex rhythms of Copland and, in addition, his handling of a concerto score was as sensitively balanced as any we have heard this season.

Sharing honors with Mitchell was the young violinist, Paul Makovsky. If his reading of the Beethoven Concerto seemed unduly refined and restrained to some of his hearers, his clean, intelligent playing was a delight to the ear, and the sheer poetic beauty he achieved in the slow movement raised it to the level of great art. It was as though the emphasis were placed more on the classic rather than the romantic aspect of Beethoven, but with a skillful sense of balance and proportion throughout.

Among the composers represented on the programs of the National Symphony this season, approximately one fifth are Americans, but their works number less than 10 per cent of the total. It was particularly gratifying to those of us who believe that our own composers deserve more frequent hearings in our symphony halls to enjoy Mr. Mitchell's refreshing interpretation of Aaron Copland's "Appalachian Spring."

Recalling to mind Martha Graham's brilliant choreography for it on the Constitution Hall stage a year ago, the orchestral suite took on added significance as an independent piece. It's as American as a shiny silver dollar, breathing a spirit of confidence, reverence, and a healthy earthiness suggestive of people who have their feet squarely on the ground. It is one of Copland's most listenable scores, even though it was created for use with the modern dance, and at the same time it emphasizes the artistic use that can be made of a theme from our historical and geographic heritage.

The concert closed with Elgar's Enigma Variations, which might well be heard more frequently in place of some of the romantic standard symphonic fare.

Yugoslav Note Says U. S. Planes Crossed Border

By The Associated Press

Yugoslavia has complained to the United States that American planes crossed the Yugoslav border without authorization three times this year.

A State Department official said yesterday that such a note came last week, written in mild terms.

The note said a four-engined American plane crossed the Italian-Yugoslav border January 30 and flew inland as far as Canale 1½ miles from the frontier.

On March 2, Yugoslavia said, a two-engined plane twice crossed the border without permission, flying one kilometer (six-tenths of a mile) within Yugoslavia, and over Miren, which is directly on the Italian border.

Press Officer Roger Tubby said an investigation was ordered but no reply had been made yet. He noted that the area involved has a winding boundary not plain enough to be seen from the air.

Maryland U. to Test 17 Kinds of Potatoes

Pocomoke City, Md., March 29 (AP).—Seventeen varieties of potatoes and 12 new seedlings being developed by plant breeders will be tested here this year under direction of the University of Maryland.

Included are a high-yielding potato strain, one believed resistant to blight, and a third which withstands rot.

The new varieties and seedlings have been developed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Virginia Chefs Vie for Favor Of Gourmets

Fredericksburg, Va., March 29 (AP).—The second annual Virginia Chefs' Tournament began on a fluid and somewhat faulty note today.

Somebody locked up the native grown apples so the breakfast session teed off on Florida orange juice here at Mary Washington College.

Other than the apple affair, the tournament got off to a good start with 11 picked hotel and restaurant chefs competing for the finicky favor of the 15 gourmet and food experts.

One suspected agent provocateur among the judges turned out to be a pushover for the fluffy spoonbread brought in in a bath of butter.

This was critic Ted Shane who wrote a magazine piece recently called "I Hate Southern Cooking." Shane cleaned his dish and went on into buckwheat cakes and scrambled eggs with a happy smile and an approving nod.

There was one other minor matter on the debit side.

Food critic Duncan Hines, the Kentuckian who eats his way around the Nation and then tatles about it in a guide to dining, found the roe herring a little on the super salty side.

"Kills your taste for anything else," said he.

Luncheon and dinner tonight and three meals tomorrow are the remaining formal business on the docket. Then the judges will make their pronouncement.

District Budget Hearings Start Today in Congress

Washington's Commissioners will be the first witnesses today in the opening of annual congressional hearings on the city budget.

They will testify to the House District Appropriations Subcommittee, headed by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), about their proposed 101-million-dollar budget for the 12 months starting July 1.

Horan said yesterday he hopes to complete the hearings as soon as possible "so we can indicate to Congress the exact fiscal situation of the District."

U. S. to Poll Growers On Tobacco Grading

The Agriculture Department will hold a referendum April 5-7 to find out whether tobacco growers want free Federal grading and inspection at five Maryland markets.

The markets are at Baltimore, Hughesville, La Plata, Upper Marlboro and Waldorf.

Two thirds of the growers voting must approve before the service is established.

All growers who sold tobacco on one or more of these markets last season will be eligible to vote. Ballots will be mailed to all known growers. Those not receiving ballots by mail may obtain them from their county agents.

Ballots must be postmarked not later than midnight, April 7.

Shotgun Slaying Ends Argument About a Cow

Charlottesville, Va., March 29 (AP).—Commonwealth's Attorney W. O. Fife said today that Raymond Lee Davis, 32, tenant farmer on a Keskick dairy farm, has been charged with murder in the shotgun slaying of Bernard Cason, 50, in an argument over how much to feed a cow.

Davis was being held today in the Albemarle County Jail.

Cason died yesterday en route to the University of Virginia Hospital in an ambulance. Davis told Deputy Sheriff T. M. Whitten he called the ambulance immediately after the shooting.

'Blue Baby' Operation Originators Win Award

Baltimore, March 29 (AP).—Drs. Helen B. Taussig and Alfred Blalock, originators of the famed "blue baby" operation at Johns Hopkins Hospital, today were named winners of the $5000 Passano Foundation award.

They were designated by a poll of the medical profession. The $5000 is provided by Williams and Wilkins, Baltimore medical publishers, and named for a former officer of the company. It will be presented at the American Medical Association meeting in Chicago on June 23.

Utility Workers Union Claims Majority

Richmond, Va., March 29 (AP).—The Utility Workers Union of America (CIO) offered today to submit "documentary evidence" to Governor Tuck that it still represents a majority of the employes of the Lynchburg Gas Co.

Michael E. Shea, company president, raised the question of the union's authority in collective bargaining, when he advised the Governor last week that his company will refuse to recognize the union as representative of the workers when the present contract expires April 2.

Shea called for "satisfactory proof" of the union's majority, and said he was informed that the union no longer hold a majority.

Women's Clubs to Hold Annual Institute

Berryville, Va., March 29 (Spl.). The thirteenth annual Institute of the Fourth District of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs will be held here Wednesday in the Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. L. M. Gilbert, district president, will preside over the morning sessions beginning at 10 a. m.

U. N. Names Bradford European Manager

London, March 29 (AP).—Hugh Baillie, president of the United Press, today announced the appointment of A. L. Bradford as vice president and general European manager to succeed Virgil Pinkley, who has resigned to go with the Los Angeles Times. The change will be effective May 1.

Bradford joined the United Press Washington staff in 1920, and covered the White House and the State, War and Navy Departments.

Cleric May Face Unfrocking for Political Activity

Cumberland, Md., March 29 (AP). Centenanary Methodist Church went ahead today on its campaign to unfrock the Rev. Richard H. Bready for his political activities.

The congregation voted 36-3 in favor of sending a letter to higher church authorities demanding the Rev. M. Bready's removal as pastor of the Union Grove circuit and lifting of his preaching license. The church has about 160 members.

The official board voted 12-3 for the action.

The letter now goes to the Rev. William F. Wright, the Methodist district superintendent in Hagerstown.

The charges against the pastor are that he neglected his churches to do work for the Progessive Citizens of America, backing Henry Wallace.

Two officials of the Progressive Party declared in Baltimore today that it was a "witch hunt."

Dr. John E. T. Camper and James Stewart Martin, cochairmen of the Progressive Party, issued a statement saying:

"A group of bigots in Cumberland have taken punitive action against a minister who dares to entertain independent political convictions . . ."

Auto Injuries Fatal

Frederick, Md., March 29 (AP).—Mrs. Annie E. Steinhaus, 71, of Frederick died here last night of injuries suffered Saturday when she was struck by an automobile while crossing State Route 15 on the outskirts of the city.

Ordnance Is What You'd Call A "Boom" Town

Mrs. N. Parmele of 1825 New Hampshire ave. nw. gets quite a bang out of the communications she's been getting from her daughter, Mrs. Mary Gasper.

Mary is working for Uncle Sam in Ordnance, Oreg., which is a Government town built by the Army during the late war.

I haven't the foggiest notion of what kind of work is done in Ordnance these days, but I'm toying with the idea that the names of the streets there may furnish a clue.

Most of the thoroughfares bear names like Bomb st., Explosive st., Cartridge st., and Detonator st. Hmmmmm!

The local general store handles such items as butcher knives, bobby sox, glue, castor oil, water colors, teething rings, turpentine, underwear, clothes lines, Bromo Seltzer, lipsticks, stove lids and waterproof baby pants.

And it advertises: "If you want it, we've got it. If we don't have it, we'll get it. If we can't get it, it ain't to be got."

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Mrs. Frank Birkhead of 5408 Kansas ave. nw. sends along a classified ad clipped from our morning contemporary:

BRICKLAYERS — $325 per hr. to qualified men. One year's work.

Mrs. Birkhead wonders who would bother to stay on the job for a year with all that dough to spend.

Personally, I wonder what I did with the name and address of the man who spotted that ad first.

He called to tell me about it one day recently, just before I went on the air. I jotted down the facts, thanked him, and rushed for the studio with an armful of notes for the broadcast.

The $325-per-hour bricklayers must have gotten tangled up with the kilocycles or something, because that's the last I saw of my memorandum.

So, permit me to apologize to the gentleman, and to make this suggestion:

Items for the column should be mailed in whenever possible, because I'm not always here to answer my phone. If you do call, please call in the afternoon. Prior to noon, the radio broadcast keeps me busier than a puppy who has just found his master's new slippers.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Is a friend indeed
Is as true as true can be.

But all friends of mine
Have been friends in need
Of a helping hand from me.

ART LESSON

D. C. Cameron of 3425 O st. nw. has some advice for his neighbors in the 3100 block of that street.

Many of these folks have provided their fashionable Georgetown residences with fancy bronze "brush-stroke style" house numbers.

District Liner Cameron says that the "1" in this series is supposed to appear with the wide end at the bottom, because that's the way a 1 looks when it is made by an artist's brush.

But many of the 1s in the 3100 block have been put up with the wide ends at the top, and our correspondent thinks they should be turned around.

To the uninitiated (guys like me) it seems strange that an artist can't put the wide end of the 1 wherever he pleases. Inquiry in our art department brought this explanation:

MISCELLANY

Morton Berman of 2801 Naylor rd. se. reports that the brass hats may refer to it as the "National Defense Building," but the automatic mailing machine there still prints "Mailed In The Pentagon" on the letters fed into it. . . . The first annual dinner of the Washington chapter of the College of the City of New York will be held this Friday (6:45 p. m., Hamilton Hotel). Mr. Justice Frankfurter will be the principal speaker. . . . The Alexandria Teen Age Club (1605 Cameron st.) is looking for talent for its Variety Show, to be held on April 9. Call Alexandria 8776 for information. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Wolk of 1470 Chapin st. nw. are pondering the ad which advises, "Light an Old Gold instead of a throat treatment." They wonder if anybody can tell them how one goes about lighting a throat treatment. . . . Discussing a photo of himself taken during the war, Alfred Friendly remarked: "That was taken about five years ago, when I was 15 years younger."

MATTER OF TECHNIQUE

Mrs. Bernard Levine of 501 Quintana pl. nw, was a passenger on a crowded streetcar the other day, and she passes along an amusing incident which took place during the trip.

More and more people crowded their way through the front door at every stop, but the usual bottleneck half-way back in the car left the back end sparsely populated.

The motorman's repeated pleas that his charges "step to the rear of the car, please" weren't getting anywhere. So, when the situation became completely intolerable, he turned to face his passengers and raised his right hand to heaven.

"I take an oath folks," he said, "that the back end of this car is going to exactly the same places as the front end. Won't you please move to the rear and give these newcomers a chance?"

It worked.

NEW Scientific Discoveries Used in Hair Experts' Exclusive Treatments

Help You To GROW THICKER HAIR

Hopeless Cases Not Accepted

Hair Experts' Scientific Plan Allied with Nature's Functions!

Upon Nature's innate system of growth is based Hair Experts' specialized system . . . a plan that results in thicker hair NATURALLY grown and nurtured to full strength and virility with the aid of modern scientific formulae. First, the scalp is thoroughly and professionally cleansed of its dandruff or other disorders through special, gentle but effective germicides which penetrate below the skin surface to kill the source of the infection and then reopen clogged passages.

Then when the basic cause of the scalp trouble is routed, Hair Experts begin the rejuvenating treatments that start to show actual results within weeks.

Special Exclusive Laboratory Created Formulae Used ONLY by Hair Experts!

After energizing the papilla to action, and then creating a fertile "field" for that growth, Hair Experts' special formulae (scientifically created by and for them) stimulate the sub-scalp hair growth to normal, natural length, strength and thickness. Then sluggish blood circulation is normalized to flood the hair follicles with life-giving "food" for hair growth.

Delay Is Deadly! Fatal Follicle Shrinkage May Negate Any Treatments!

Once your hair begins to show these symptoms: excessive hair in the combings; weak, short hair; excessive dandruff; itchiness, etc., you can be sure that a scalp disorder is already well under way. Follicle shrinkage is fatal!

Once it has set in your chance for thicker hair is practically negligible! Come in IMMEDIATELY for a free, private scalp examination. Relax under our pleasant, professional treatments and care, and enjoy THICKER HAIR within a few months.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Mead's Idleness Is Surprising

By Drew Pearson

One of Washington's mysteries has been the political idleness of New York's former Senator Jim Mead. Having served in Congress for 28 long years, and having taken on the thankless job of running for Governor of New York against Tom Dewey when his chances were almost nil, it was expected that Mead would be appointed to a high Government post.

Senator Mead

Experienced Government servants are hard to get these days, on top of which President Truman has been complaining about the difficulty of finding good men.

However, whenever Jim Mead's name was suggested to Truman, he coolly turned it down. Mead was proposed as a member of the Federal Communications Commission, as chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board and as Assistant Postmaster General. Each time the President said no.

Mead was not particularly anxious for a job, but he did become curious regarding the reason for Truman's constant cold shoulder. From friends he finally learned the answer.

The President, he was told, hadn't like the way he handled the Truman Committee after Mead succeeded him as chairman. Especially he hadn't liked the way Mead went after Representative A. J. May of Kentucky in connection with the Garsson war-contract scandal. As a result, May was sentenced to jail.

"I thought I was doing the Democratic Party a favor by cleaning up this mess," Mead confided to a friend when he heard the news, "but apparently Mr. Truman did not think so."

That was one reason why the President, when hearing of Mead's resentment, finally got around to offering him a vacancy on the Federal Power Commission. Jim emphatically said no. There wasn't any job, he told friends, good enough for him to take under Truman.

Fighting Communism By Mail

Broadcasting from Milan, Italy, last December, this writer urged that Americans with friends or relatives in Europe write them personal letters correcting distorted Communist propaganda about the United States.

At that time it was being said that American labor was virtually in concentration camps and that the United States was determined to conquer the world.

With the State Department's propaganda program drastically curtailed by Congress, I suggested that letters from individual Americans could take its place, and that what relatives and friends in the United States told the people of Europe would carry greater weight than Communist propaganda.

Since then, thanks to the patriotism of such men as Generoso Pope, publisher of the Italian-American newspaper Il Progresso, and Mayor Mike diSalle of Toledo, several million letters have gone to Europe. New York Postmaster Albert Goldman estimates that mail to Italy alone has increased by 100,000 a day during the last two weeks.

Exactly how many votes this will swing in the April elections is impossible to estimate, but it may be just enough to tip the scales in favor of democracy.

Note 1—Up in Schenectady, W. J. Warnock conceived the idea of sending night-letter cables to Italians urging them to vote against communism. This idea has now spread to other cities until several thousand cables are leaving the United States daily.

Note 2—One current report spread by the Communists is that John L. Lewis is in jail.

China's Super-Lobbyist

After Flying Tiger Claire Chennault's dramatic appeal to Congress for military aid to China, he conducted a vigorous backstage lobbying campaign for even more generous measures.

The steel-jawed war hero is now pressing for a full-scale United States military mission to bolster Chiang Kai-shek's government. Privately he is urging Congressmen to pour American officers into China and authorize them to go into the field with the Chinese forces. He wants Americans spotted with the Chinese down to company level in the army, down to squadron level in the air force and down to battery level in the artillery. This, Chennault estimates, will take at least 10,000 United States officers, but he argues it will stop Asiatic communism in its tracks.

No mention of this ambitious plan was made in Chennault's public appearance before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, but he has been quietly pushing the plan backstage.

Except for a fishing trip with Louisiana's former Governer Jim Noe aboard his houseboat, Chennault has stuck close to Washington, whispering doggedly in the ears of influential Congressmen. When veterans of the Fourteenth Air Force, who flew with him in China, staged a dinner in his honor, Chennault asked to bring an entourage of Congressmen. Some of the airmen, who didn't share his views on China, stayed away, while most of the Congressmen also begged off. Only a handful, led by Minnesota Republican Walter Judd, finally showed up.

Chennault's Chinese Stake

Gradually word has got round that Chennault came to Washington as China's lobbyist extraordinary at the bidding of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek. Behind his action was personal loyalty to the generalissimo and affection for the Madame. In addition, the rugged solider-of-fortune had for interests of his own.

With the help of the generalissimo he borrowed two million dollars from UNRRA and built up a new air line in China. The money had been earmarked for fishing equipment, but was diverted to aircraft instead—over the objections of the generalissimo's brother-in-law, T. V. Soong, who is a director of the competing China National Airways Corp. Pan American Airways, which owns 20 per cent of CNAC, also raised a howl.

But Chennault pushed ahead with his plans and soon had a hard-flying, commercial line built around the former Flying Tigers. He wanted to call it the Chennault Air Transport Line, but the Chinese government considered C. N. R. R. A. Air Transport more appropriate (C. N. R. R. A. being the Chinese offspring of UNRRA). Chennault considered this too awkward, finally compromised on Civil Air Transport—since CAT already had been painted on the planes.

Under the present agreement, Chennault's line must reserve 60 per cent of its space for the Chinese government. Naturally all this gives Chennault a personal stake in the future of the Nationalist government in China.
